Battle of the Budget . . .

Here's an item to include in your next letter to your representative in the state legislature.

Tell him that our University, in asking for a budget increase, is not expanding. Tell him that we don't want a bigger University, but a better one. Tell him that we don't want a University which spreads its energies over every phase of human activity, but one for which we can be proud, a school which concentrates on improvement in existing fields, a school which heads the top of the list of the student deciding among Universities in the Corn Belt.

During the past two years, great strides have been taken to strengthen detailed phases of the University's teaching-research-public services programs. A number of overlapping functions have been eliminated. Two examples are the maintenance department and the business or administrative branches.

But a few of our legislators still seem to think the University is expanding. See what your legislator says when you tell him that without a bigger budget part of the University hospital may be shut down. Tell him that it may threaten the offering of a four-year professional course in Law. Tell him that it will scuttle the opportunity for the building of a greater University under the leadership of Chancellor Gustavson.

Social eventing this week-end climaxed with many pinnings and engagements.

"Girl of AOP!" Candy Jones announced pinned and engaged couples who came through the rose arbor and led the dancing Friday at the Rose formal in the Cornhusker ballroom. Newly engaged duos included Jeanine Sallander and Will Mead, Darlene Pothast and Jerry Tomsick, Pat Meyer and Lee Arnot. One step behind her brother was Jenny Tomsick who received a pin from Don Hodder. It was also the beginning of a steady arrangement between Marilyn Lafler and Dave Overturf.

The Estes Carnival provided Ag excitement what with ghosts running loose and the mock court kidnaping culprits to try. A couple of couples attending were Donna Pearson and Charles Fairley, Doppa Lipe and Bob Scheve.

Social chairmanship the Love Memorial Hall spring formal was Charlene Eggert who originated the very effective show Boat theme. Seen dancing at the Saturday night affair were Joan Engelkeimer and Ralph Hild, Dorothy Bowman and Stan Lambert, Alice Boswell and Don Smith and Jean Wielage.

Friendly we dedicate the following:

- Love Me Not, Jo Johnson.
 - Congratulations, Chick Thompson.
 - You Broke the Only Heart that Ever Loved You, Jean Stockstill.
 - Rings on her Fingers, Houtz Steenberg.
 - You're an old Smoothie, Dutch Meyer.
 - I Love You so Much it Hurts Me, Ducky Rodin.
 - A Kiss Goodnight, Bev Larson.
 - Either It's Love or It Isn't, Poochie Rediger and Don Cook.
- Pinned
- Marion Stapleton and Chuck Tremain.
 - Dennice Cave and Roger Housfield.
 - Jackie Boeka and Perry Geistlinger.

'Easter Parade' Party Planned By Red Cross for Vet Hospital

Plans for the Red Cross "Easter Parade" party at the Veterans hospital April 11, are being formulated by the Institutions planning committee, according to Carla Renner, chairman of the party.

Highlight of the event will be the crowning of the "Easter Parade Queen" and the "Crazy Hat King."

The queen will be chosen from representatives from each women's house on the campus. They will model the latest spring fashions including suits, date dresses, formals and campus wear.

THE "CRAZY HAT KING" will be chosen from representatives from men's houses on the campus who will model hats designed by the veterans. The hats and decorations have been donated by Lincoln stores, and workers will take them out to the hospital Monday, April 4, to get the veterans started working.

Stage decorations will be handled by Ann Figge, chairman.

They will center around an Easter theme with a rose arbor. Mary Ann Pederson is in charge of auditorium decorations. Programs will be handled by Carol DeWitt.

MASTER OF CEREMONIES for the party will be George Wilcox. A group of skits will be presented as part of the program. Houses wishing to participate in the skit program should contact Jean Bay, chairman, or Rod Riggs.

The party will be the outstanding feature of this semester's work on the Red Cross Institutions committee, said Jean Fenster, chairman of the committee. Last semester, the greatest emphasis was placed on the Christmas activities, which covered over 11 institutions in the city.

The "Easter Parade" party is the first to be sponsored solely by the Red Cross college unit. All previous parties were given jointly with other groups in the city.

98% Veterans May Receive More Training

Ninety-eight percent of the veterans who have entered training under laws administered by the VA are eligible for additional training, according to the Veterans Service.

By January 31, 1949, a total of 6,288,707 veterans had entered training under the GI bill or Public Law 16. On that date, only 61,406 former veteran-students and trainees had exhausted their entitlement to further training, and 81,899 disabled veterans had been declared rehabilitated.

Of the 6,288,707 who had entered training since the inception of the laws, more than one-third were enrolled in schools, colleges and institutional on-the-farm and on-the-job training courses.

Congregationalists Plan Talks About War, Labor, DP Views

Still in the process of being developed, the activities of the Congregational Student Fellowship center around discussions by undergraduate and graduate groups, according to Rev. John R. Lepke.

The point of view of the Congregational church toward war, general views toward organized labor, what can be done to aid displaced students are a few of the topics which are discussed. The undergraduate meetings are on Sunday evenings in the Temple building. Graduate students hold separate discussion meetings.

DEFINITE ACTION has resulted from the talks about displaced students. The fellowship has also been trying to arrange for assurances for the students. Rev. Mrs. Lepke is working on the general committee for displaced students as treasurer for the general fund.

Another important project now being considered is the merger with the Evangelical and Reformed church group. Since the churches are planning to merge nationally, the student groups are going ahead with their plans separately. The name of the combined organization would be United Student Fellowship.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES of the students are carried on by the Lincoln Congregational churches, and by the girls club, Sigma Eta Chi.

The present Evangelical Student Fellowship carries on its activities through the Evangelical Covenant church under Rev. J. A. Johnson.

The House of Representatives sent a repeal of the 63-year-old tax on oleomargarine to the Senate Friday. The measure will allow interstate shipments of oleo, but all oleo sold in public eating places must be identified as such.

Administration support is assured for the bill and all that will prevent it from becoming a law, will be a Senate rejection.

MUDDY and impassable Nebraska roads defied snow plows and other equipment Friday as state engineers battled to free isolated towns. Additional rain in the area increased the difficulties of road-breaking. Bloomfield merchants say that their business has dropped 68 percent since roads become impassable.

GOVERNMENT officials were optimistic about the employment in the United States, as the rate of jobless workers decreased 54 thousand. This is the first decline in five months and leads spokesmen to believe it is the end of unemployment.

"CALLING a Cab" is not so easy in New York these days. Nine-tenths of the taxicabs are on strike leaving New York almost without cabs. Armed violence has been reported in parts of the city between the two striking cab companies.
