

Gunderson to Attend Meeting On International Student Funds

Ted Gunderson, All University Fund director, has been named a delegate to the annual International Student Service conference, which will be held July 25-August 4 at Wells College in Aurora, N. Y.

Approximately 60 Americans and 75 delegates from other countries will attend the meeting. They will take part in discussions on subjects connected with current and future

Stop The Presses

In the future the column "Stop the Presses," which we begin with this issue will be filled with choice happenings which occur after our paper goes to press.

Due to the advance publication dates of the summer paper it is nearly impossible for the staff to keep the news as fresh as it desires. Much of the copy must be written days in advance. In order to overcome this difficulty, "Stop the Presses" has been conceived.

THE NEWS in "Stop the Presses" will represent the last bit of interesting information available before the paper is printed. When the news is of vital concern the column will be found on page one. Usually it will be printed on page two.

We find that we have chosen a rather in opportune moment to introduce our column. For some inexplicable reason, events which might very well have taken place today decided to wait and we find our self with a column and nothing to put in it.

Our readers may be interested to know that over 500 people attended the open house at the Union Friday night or that Girl's Staters climaxed their week with a banquet in the Union Saturday or that Boy's Staters have gone home. Still our readers might be even more interested if we were to tell the truth and say that in filling space and hoping for tomorrow's edition we are simply ter things to come.

Oklahoma A&M will be the fifth district representative in the NCAA semifinal baseball playoff at Austin, Texas, June 16-17-18.

The Aggies, who will play the University of Texas, won from Kansas in a district playoff series at Stillwater, taking two out of three games. A&M took the first game 4-1. Kansas won the second, 6-3 and Oklahoma came back to win the third, 12-2.

Glassford Tells Training Schedule

The Nebraska Cornhuskers will put in the pre-school football training period at the University Agricultural School at Curtis, Coach Bill Glassford announced.

This is the first time in 30 years that the football squad has moved off campus for a pre-season training period.

Coach Glassford returned to Lincoln Friday after inspecting the athletic plant at Curtis. He found the facilities there "more than adequate," he reported.

The players will assemble so that practice sessions can start August 30. Candidates living near Curtis will go direct from their homes, and the others will make the trip in busses.

"We hope to accomplish two things," Coach Glassford said. "First, we hope for uninterrupted workouts to make up for the time lost in spring drills caused by bad weather. Secondly, we want western Nebraska Cornhusker football followers to get better acquainted with our team and our methods."

Union Bridge Lessons Begin

During the war, Tyson studied under a west coast collegiate champion. During the past year he has been working with Union bridge instructor, Dale Ball.

DP Committee Drive Collects Over 500 Books

The DP book drive is over! The campaign, which began before the close of the regular session, brought in some 500 books.

The displaced persons committee was sponsored by the now-extinct Student Council. It is headed by Phyd Cadwallader and Ros Howard.

Boxes for the collection of used textbooks were placed in organized houses and class buildings. The books were collected and placed in two categories. Salable books were sold and the money, some $50, turned over to the committee. The other books are being made ready for use in the fall, when the DP's arrive on campus.

The committee is considering holding another drive at the end of the summer session.

developments in schools all over the world.

UNIVERSITY students who have contributed to the AUF have an interest in this International Student Service. A portion of the money they give each year is sent Fund, which is sponsored in part by the ISS.

The aims of the ISS are to work with students and professors the world over to strength and develop university solidarity and co-operation, and to promote the university ideal of disinterested search for truth combined with a sense of social responsibility.

Representatives of every ideological tendency and all the various currents of political and social democracy are associated with its activities. The ISS is impartial and works without distinction of race, nationality, political or religious conviction.

IT DOES, however, maintain that the university has a right and a duty to protect itself against the infiltration of elements whose aim is the destruction of such principles as the following: The sincere search for truth; the training of men and women with a wide and coherent view of human culture and a sense of their responsibilities, with in society; and the strengthening of community life among students, between teachers and students and between students and the whole of society of which they form part, in such a way as to ensure their full development as members of the university.
