Seniors Wisest, Says NU Study

A campus tradition which holds that seniors are wiser than other students on the campus has some basis in fact.

A study just completed at the university shows that grades earned last school year by all seniors averaged about 82 percent. The average of grades received by all freshmen students averaged about 74 percent.

Sophomore grades, the study shows, averaged about 77 percent and the juniors about 79 percent.

In all four classes the average of grades earned by women students was consistently higher than those earned by the men. During the first semester 4.5 percent of total grades given students were "flunks" or failures, but in the second semester this dropped to 2.9 percent.

Activities Committee and the School of Fine Arts, the concert will be presented at 8 p. m. Sunday, Nov. 20, at the Union ballroom.

Tickets may be obtained now from the Union office without charge and are being issued on a first come, first served basis. Students must show identification cards and faculty members must call in person. Since the ballroom seats only 800 persons, admission to the concert will be by ticket only.

At the concert, Miss Powers will appear with the orchestra in Wieniawski's "Concert for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 22." Wieniawski, who died in 1880, is accepted by musicians as one of the great violin virtuosos.

The concert program:

I. Concert Overture for Orchestra - Sowerby, 1895 -

II. Concerto for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 22 - Wieniawski, 1835-1880; Miss Powers and Orchestra.

Ag Student Reports On Life in Finland

BY ARLEN BEAM.

Duane Sellin, who just returned from a two and a half months' stay in Finland, says that altho the Finns know well the menace of the Soviet Union, they are living as usual and even planning far into the future.

He was among the 31 delegates who visited European countries under the International Farm Youth Exchange project. He was the only representative from Nebraska making the trip.

Sellin, a senior at the College of Agriculture, spent about four and a half months visiting several foreign countries, including Finland, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, France and Germany. Most of his time in Finland was spent on two farms, one in the southern part of the country and one in the central portion.

Diversified Farming. The Finns, he said, don't specialize in crops and "grow most everything." The yields, he added, are almost double to that of crops raised in Nebraska. He explained the Finns have an excellent system of soil testing, similar to the facilities at the university, and the farmers keep their land in a high state of fertility.

As for the people, Sellin said he believes the Finns are more sincere than Americans. He said he has never seen a more completely honest people. "If you leave something in the middle of the street, you would probably find it there two days later or it would be returned to you."

Slow to Change.

He said the people are very shy at first meeting and they are slow to change from their way of thinking. "But when they have something proved to them, there's little hesitation in changing."

Sellin spoke highly of the 4-H program under way in Finland. He said it's patterned after club work in the United States. There's an enrollment of 65,000 from Finland's population of approximately 4,000,000.

With one semester left to complete his major in general agriculture, Sellin plans to return to the University at the beginning of the second semester. Sellin is the first University student in several years to make such a trip.
