

Circuit Quintets Open Play Dec. 3

A tight race, with tall teams dominating the picture, looms in the offing as Big Seven basketball teams begin play in the 1949-50 season this week-end.

Among the conference teams seeing action Saturday night are co-champion Nebraska, who meets South Dakota State at Lincoln, Kansas playing Rockhurst College at Kansas City and Iowa State, who tangles with Luther College at Ames.

Phog Allen's Kansas Jayhawkers will have one of the tallest teams in the Big-Seven this year. Allen, whose teams have tied for the cellar the last two years, boasts a sophomore center named Clyde Lovellette who stands six-foot, nine-inches tall and weighs 235-pounds.

Pivot Man

Lovellette is professed to be one of the greatest pivot men ever to play at the Lawrence school.

Three other sophomore skyscrapers will be toiling for the Jayhawkers this season. Jack Carby, 6-7, 229-pounder from Kansas City and forwards Bill Houghland, 6-4, and Bill Lienhard, 6-5, round out the list of talented second-year men.

At the other conference school in Kansas, Jack Gardner has eight lettermen back to start the campaign for the Kansas State Wildcats. Rick Harman and Clarence Brannum, All-Big Seven performers, lead the way for the Cats drive for the title.

K-State Finish

Kansas State wound up the season last by winning five consecutive conference games, one each from co-champions Oklahoma and Nebraska.

The tallest team in Cyclone history is slated to start for Iowa State Saturday. Capt. Don Paulson and Don Ferguson anchor the all-veteran team. The average height for the second lineup is nearly 6 feet 3 1/2 inches.

Coach Harry Good, starting his fourth year at Nebraska, will also field a tall team. All-Big Seven center Milton "Bus" Whitehead will be playing his last season for the Cornhuskers. The 6-9 rebounder was runner-up to Claude Retherford in the Husker's individual scoring last season.

Retherford, conference scoring leader last year, graduated last spring and left Good with the chore of filling his "quarterback" position.

Missouri, Colorado and co-champs Oklahoma are not to be counted out of the picture as they all will field veteran teams with plenty of height.

Novak Toogoo Named on AP All-Big Seven

Two Nebraskans, Tom Novak and Charley Toogood, have been named on the Oklahoma dominated Associated Press All-Big Seven football team.

Toogood, the Huskers' powerful tackle, is one of the three juniors named to the mythical eleven. Iowa State's passing combination of Billy Weeks and Jim Doran are the other two juniors named. The rest of the team is composed of seniors.

Novak, in being picked on the AP's eleven, became the first Husker ever to be picked All-Big Seven for four consecutive years. Novak was placed in the fullback spot when he was a freshman
