

Judging Teams Take 3 Places In Ag Meets

The week-long stream of news from Chicago honoring Nebraska teams and individuals was completed yesterday.

The latest accomplishment by Nebraska was the University meats judging contest at the International Livestock exposition Tuesday.

This follows the announcement of the 2nd place ranking of the University livestock team and a 3rd place in intercollegiate competition by the crops judging team.

Meats Team

The meats team, composed of Grant Cornelius, Loran Schmitt and Merwyn French placed 2nd in pork, 6th in beef grading, 8th in lamb judging and 10th in beef.

Cornelius, Nebraska's high man, was 6th high individual for the entire contest. He was also second in pork judging. Schmitt was 8th ranking individual in pork production and beef grading.

The team, coached by Prof. Charles Adams, is expected to return to Lincoln today.

To Make People Better

Surmising that "intelligent people observe trends," he stated that while we are still trying to accurately measure intelligence and that "functional tests of the brain are still disappointing" the overall result should make people better.

Fishbein also discussed experiments with methods of child care and observed a possible trend away from the scientific exactness brought in by pediatricians, who would feed junior four ounces every 4 hours, regardless of how much he gave back—junior not being aware of the scientific.

Environment was given as the basis of much delinquency, as well as other mental disturbances. "Mom-ism" or over-protection resulted in 300,000 cases of psychoneurotic cases in soldiers who when put under stress could not respond naturally.

Benefit From Guidance

"There is not a month or a year when we cannot benefit from guidance," Dr. Fishbein declared in showing the need for applied psychology.

Dr. Fishbein said he foresees a new era with vast research to be done, and possibly an "international health movement as a prime factor in maintaining peace."

Chancellor R. F. Gustafson, a colleague of Dr. Fishbein on many research committees, introduced the speaker. Fishbein's topic was "Solving Students Mind Problems."
