With Tongue in Cheek

Just when the world was settling down to a concept of the atomic bomb, all Hell breaks loose again on the scientific front. Einstein has been at it again. His 1949 Christmas present to humanity came in the form of a "generalized theory" of gravitation, which most leading scientists believe may become the most important development of all time. Now, we were inclined to be grateful to Mr. Einstein for his theory on relativity. We thought that was swell, and we weren't inclined to blame him too much when it eventually helped lead to the atomic bomb. But we balk when he starts messing around with gravity. We don't like the visions we see of future wars being fought by hurling millions of enemies right off the face of the Earth by some scientific legerdemain. Personally, we'd rather have an atomic bomb hit us, a possibility, we suppose, that also rather appeals to many of our readers. Or do we have any left? and a self-addressed envelope to The s (Free copies of this stirring bit may be obtained by sending 50c and a self-addressed envelope to The Daily Nebraskan.)

City Campus YM Plans Film Forum

A film forum will highlight the first city campus YM meeting of the year Wednesday, Jan. 9, at 7 p. m., in the Temple lounge. The film is "John R. ## Campus Chatter

BY JEAN FENSTER

Santa Claus evidently treated the gals about campus pretty good at Christmas and through vacation. We have practically nothing but pinnings and engagements to fill today's column—not a bad subject to write on either. Engaged are the following:

Phil Thompson and Gordon Pauley, Mary Lou Graham and Glen Clabaugh, Pat Watson and John Theodeson, Dorothy Borgens and Norris Harding, Kay Cogley and Cliff Christensen, Kathy Withe and Roz Howard, Kay Menke and Bill Denker, Pat Stoual and Don Stockholm, Lois Rodin and Larry Veta, Olive Gettman and Tom Brownley, Louise Sasserstein and Sidney Winn of Pittsburgh.

Kathleen Maharry and an ATO from Iowa U. Joyce Elihausen and home town beau, Nita Rae Bridenbaugh and home town flame, LeRoy Baughn and Marilyn Dixon (to be married Jan. 28), Peggy Ellis and Dick Capek, Margaret Napple and Pat Thomas, Pat Warwick and Gordon Ludlow (Haskings college), Jo Corzine and Bob Mason, Katy Elliott and Roy Yaley, Jane Bailey and Tom Ludwig, Norma Grothe and Warren Porter, Carol Russell and Ted Kelstrom, Barbara Dun and Dick Russell, Margaret Johnson and Bill Marsh, Rosie Kimball and Jack Wagner.

To add to the long list of engagements, there's another small list of pinnings. Pinned are: Dorothy Maxwell and Jack Meekin, Ann Penner and a Delt from Kansas City, Diane Thomas and Fritz Ware, Mary Ryons and Bill Stewart, Jan Ryman and Jim Kenner, Harlan Beideck and Dorothy Taylor, Jean Walker and Chuck Stewart, Sally Gardiner and Tom Lawrie, Jo Shickley and Annapolis flame, Lou Ann Fahnstock and Kenny Henkins, Pat Horstman and Ray Stryker.

There was one unpinning during vacation—Jody Loder and Steve Reed.

Vacation turned out to be a little joyous for Pat McCormick than she had expected. Tom Pederson came home unexpectedly from California and they are now going steady. Also going steady are Jean Smith and Bill Holmquist.

Peggy Walters entertained at a New Year's Eve Party in Omaha Saturday night. Bill Stoweel was with Peggy and other couples included Ajon Farber and Pat Lannon.

Bad Business . . .

"Student shoots fraternity brother at Ohio State university."
"Fraternity man accused of strangling girl friend after party at Iowa university."
"Cornell university officials strike drinking 'upper class social clubs' from recognition list when student nearly dies from drinking quart of Martini cocktail."
These are three stories which have been getting more than enough publicity in American newspapers during the past few weeks. Yet there's something behind these stories which every fraternity, sorority and social organization member should think about. It applies to Nebraska and any other school where such organizations are a part of campus life.

Simply this—Greeks will find it extremely difficult to survive unless they stop bringing adverse criticism upon themselves and start creating more good will via the good deeds route.

Of course, Greeks will say, "Sure, but why condemn the entire Greek set-up when the troubles are caused by a few individuals?" Granted. But the situation might as well be faced squarely. There are far more people who would jump at the chance to eliminate the Greek system than there are people who desire such a system.

Fraternities in all sections of the country are under fire because of racial discrimination clauses in their constitutions. This has naturally brought unfavorable criticism. Incidents such as those mentioned above also bring discredit upon the system. True, only one student shot his fraternity brother, and only one fraternity man strangled his girl friend. Nevertheless, all eyes focus back on the entire Greek system as a result of such happenings. The manner in which they are played up in many newspapers illustrates the feelings people have on the matter.

It only takes one such incident to make people say, "Yea—those fraternities—all they do is play and get in trouble." In other words, the bad conduct displayed by Greeks is more widely recognized and remembered longer, than the good conduct which is often forgotten.

Greek organizations can do a great deal of good for themselves and their universities, or they can do a great deal of harm.

The situation deserves some serious thought by those concerned in all colleges and universities.

Fritz Simpson.
