The Cornhusker football team has suddenly taken on a golden hue. But it doesn't come from the angelic rays of a halo around their heads. The hue seems to devlop from thinking about a coming football engagement with the GOLDEN GOPHERS of Minnesota. And if thinking and working for a victory means anything, then the Bernie Bierman squad best tighten their belts and pre-pare for a long stand.

"If there's a man on this traveling squad who doesn't think we can beat Minnesota, let him come into my office and we'll take his name off the list." It's doubtful if the most ingen-ious scientist could have analyzed the case better than J. William Glassford did when he made that statement to the Scarlet and Cream gridders.

Mr. Glassford needn't worry about wasting his time scratching names off the traveling squad because of bad morale. The Huskers are psychologically the game, They went through their stunts with a zip and zoom that showed they aren't worried about those giant killers Mr. Bierman has on his
