

Yuletide at NU... Candle Lighting...

HOLIDAY TRIMMINGS—Joan LaShelle lights a candle under one of the green wreaths decorating the Union this week.

Tree Decorations...

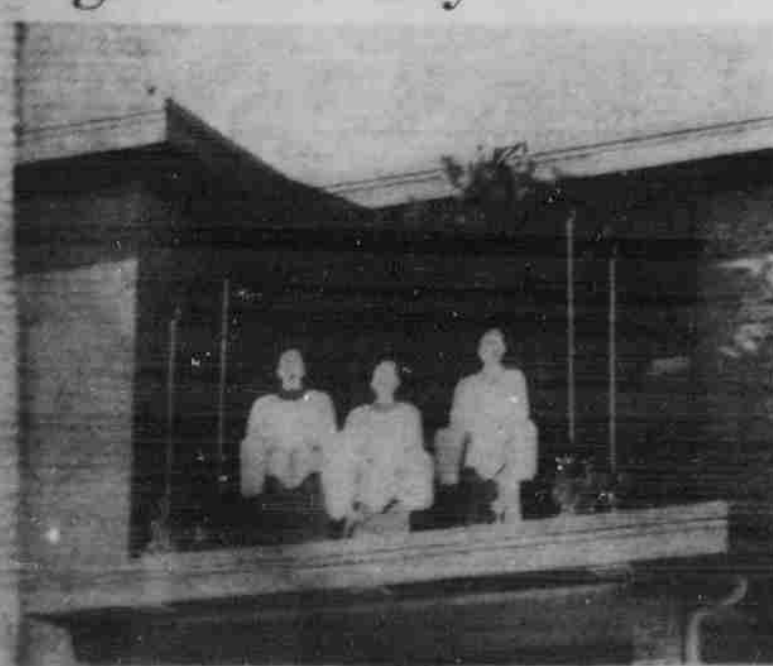

PRIMPING FOR SANTA—Marilyn Coupe adds the feminine touch to the big Christmas tree displayed in the Union's main lounge. A decoration party of Union workers, also carried the season's theme to the twin evergreens on each side of the Union steps. The trees are colorfully lighted.

Out of the Cold...

SYMBOLS OF WINTER—Remove your gloves, light up a cigaret and order a cup of coffee. That is one of the favorite winter sports at the University. After being out in zero winter, most students feel the need for a good hot cup of java. Students may be seen at all hours in the Union or other campus eating places drinking coffee and discussing the latest developments.

Angelic Choir Boy...

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT—Delta Tau Delta's holiday decorations of singing choir boys and red candles typify the spirit of Christmas on the campus. In the afternoon and evening Christmas carols trill forth from the Delta decorations. The Christmas tree background is topped with a lighted star. The candles also blaze with light throughout the evening.

Procedure Changed For Ag Registration

Registration procedure at Ag Division will swing into full gear this week. About 1,000 students begin today the trek from Dr. Hixson's office to adviser, back to Dr. Hixson's office in some cases, and then to assignment committee on city campus. "As fast as possible" is the way Dr. Hixson, associate director of resident instruction, describes the Aggie system of registration this year. The procedure has several points that differ with systems of previous years and also with that system used on the city campus this year. Advisers Hixson advised that each student see his adviser prior to Christmas vacation. He added that students who have received notice of transfer from Junior division but who have not yet been assigned a new adviser should visit his office immediately in Room 206, Ag hall. The procedure for all Ag students except those in the Junior Division is as follows: Go to adviser and make out work sheets, in most cases, three copies. If scheduled for less than 12 hours or more than 18 hours, go to Dr. Hixson's office for an okay. Go to assignment committee at the Military Science building on the following days: Jan. 4—seniors, 88 hours or more. Jan. 5—juniors, 53-88 hours. Jan. 6—sophomores, 27-52 hours. Jan. 8 and 9—freshmen, under 26 hours. No Numbers Work sheets will be the means of admittance to the assignment committee. Ag college students do not need assignment numbers. Junior division students' procedure differs only slightly. Two copies of the original work sheet are for the Junior Division and one for the student. An additional copy must be made if the adviser desires one. Junior Division students take the two Junior Division work sheets to the office of Dr. Hixson. They then will be checked at the door of the Military Science building during registration so they may be admitted without a work sheet. Dr. Hixson stressed that Ag students do not need assignment numbers. This differs from city campus procedure, and is designed to facilitate prompt Ag college registration.

MB 'Operation Corsage' Like Novelty Shop

Campus coeds had a chance to let their creative urge run wild Friday night. Dime stores and novelty shops were invaded by the fiendish females during the week in their "Operation Corsage." The results were interesting but weird when on the big night everything from Christmas greetings to live skunks were hoisted on the unsuspecting males. Several of these monstrosities featured that wicked liquid known as alcohol. One fellow sported a wooden keg (with spigot), another a large cardboard bottle of whiskey. Hadacol was also used for various purposes. One of these featured a healthy, blooming flower with the notation, "Ah, been sprinkled with Hadacol." Christmas decorations were the order of the evening for many. Perhaps the most striking of these was a complete Santa Claus suit. Another wore a large star-shaped hat with multiple streamers of silver tinsel rope streaming down. Animal Act Numerous animals shared the spot light with their uncomfortable owners. One date tried to dance with a turtle bowl on his head—complete with the turtle. There were bird cages and fish bowls, a live skunk (tame, of course) and elephants (most of them pink). "He's lit up to-night" was the sign on the back of the fellow who carried a kerosene lantern burning brightly. Even when the light went off, the words still applied. Another girl expounded the "habits" of her date when she presented him with a plastic leg filled with weeds. The accompanying sign read, "He has birds' eyes! they flit from limb to limb." On the lapel of one chesty fellow was a television set with a one-inch screen. During the evening he carried a three-foot television antenna.

Love Formula

Potential professions entered the picture too. One chem major carried a beaker and complicated formula resulting in love. A forestry student wore several pine trees with various animals of the forest running loose in them. A pinmate told the world she had hooked her man, but the hook was in a position where not many corsages are worn. As a matter of fact, everything imaginable was used to embellish and embarrass the men on the one night of the year when the girls take charge—the night of the Mortar Board Ball.
