

Glassford Plans No Rough Work; NU Seeks First Win

By ABLEY BONDARIN
Sports Staff Reporter

Six down and four to go. That is how the scoreboard reads as the Nebraska Cornhuskers dug in preparation for Saturday's contest with the Iowa State Cyclones at Ames.

In readying his charges for the Cyclones, Coach Bill Glassford did not give the Huskers too large a dose of the rough contest work. However, all phases of the Husker machine were given plenty of work under the watchful eyes of Glassford and his assistants.

The sieve-like Nebraska pass defense again received special attention. Cornhusker opponents this season have averaged ten completions per game good for 843 yards. The lack of an adequate defensive secondary against passes has been a direct cause of the Nebraska lack of success.

The Husker defensive line come in for some work in order to maintain the fine standard established in the Kansas game as the boys turned in their most outstanding performance of the season.

Coach Glassford praised defensive linemen Ed Husmann, Jerry Minnick, and Don Boll. Glassford singled out big Boll, 240 pound junior guard, as being one of the most improved ball players on the squad. The work of these three men has shown brightly throughout the drab season and has formed the bulwark of the defensive line.

Tackling and general defensive polishing were stressed in anticipation of a Cyclone attack which has ground out wins over Kansas and Missouri, victors over the Scarlet and Cream.

On the offensive side of the ledger, the footballers ran through offensive drills with an emphasis on passing. On the throwing end of the pigskin were Don Norris, John Bordogna, Bob Reynolds, and Jim Cederdahl. Blockin', a controversial subject as to its effectiveness this season, was worked on in order to find the key to a successful offense, something which the Huskers have not been able to maintain this year.

As all Nebraska fans know, the Cornhuskers will enter Saturday's game against Iowa State without a win to its credit. With Colorado, Oklahoma, and Miami coming up on successive weekends this game appears to be the Huskers best chance to pull out a victory.

Except for a habit-forming second quarter lapse, the Huskers turned in their finest performance of the year against Kansas. But fumbles, pass interceptions and a leaky pass defense turned a seeming close contest into a rout for the Jayhawkers.

Coach Glassford had praise for his boys after the Kansas tilt and commended them on their progress since early games. Glassford stated that the work of the defensive line was the best he had seen in his three years at the University.

The work of sophomore full-back Ray Novak was particularly encouraging. Novak, filling in for the departed Nick Adduci, ground out 99 yards in 17 carries against the Jayhawkers to take over the lead in ground gaining among Husker ball carriers.

Frank Simon's pass catching in the Kansas game was also an outstanding feature of the Husker attack. The veteran senior end from Burchard leads all Huskers in the reception department and is well up in the list of Big Seven pass catchers.

Assistant Coach Neal Mehring will be in Boulder, Colorado this weekend to scout the Colorado Buffs in their game with Utah. The Buffs will be in Lincoln on November 17 to provide the Huskers with some stiff opposition.

Sig Eps Bounce Phi Gams 27-6 In Semi Final Clash

By DOUGLAS WILCOX
Sports Staff Reporter

The finals of the intramural season are just about here as the semifinals were played last night at the Ag College playing grounds.

With the semifinals came the defeat of one of the more powerful squads on the campus as Sigma Chi Epsilon defeated Phi Gamma Delta 27 to 6 in the bitter cold weather.

After a pretty close battle, the Sig Eps slipped into the lead on a 20 yard pass play originating from Ted Kratt, who does most of the fine Sig Ep passing, to center Bill Anderson.

This combination resulted in a T.D. and 6 points for the Sig Eps. On the try for the conversions, the Sig Eps were again successful as Kratt passed to Anderson.

On an attempt to tie the game up the Phi squad scored on a pass from Rich Olson, a fine passer for the Phi Gams, to Jack Schull. The extra point was no good so the Phijs were unable to tie the game up.

To continue scoring the Sig Eps Kratt again passed 25 yards to Anderson for a touchdown, but were unable to make the extra point at this time.

Just to prove that the Sig Eps could score without using a pass play, Ted Kratt did some fine running as he scampered 18 yards to score. The extra point try was accomplished in the same manner on a run over with Kratt carrying the ball.

With Fred Peterson, the fine right end for the Sig Eps racing to the double strips, Kratt threw a well placed 40 yard pass into his hands after which Peterson scampered 5 yards for a touchdown. For the extra point it was a pass combination from Kratt to Bob Diers, left half for the Sig Eps.

With the final scores made the score stood at 27 to 6 with the Sig Eps victorious over the Phi Gams.

As far as outstanding players, there were many team members who played their best, but the outstanding players were Ted Kratt and Bill Anderson on offense. On defense it was the good work of Bob Svanda and Al Hansen who helped determine the outcome of the game.

The winners should not be the only men to be recommended for the defeated Phi Gam squad has won outstanding players.

Men like John Sinclair and Rich Olsen should not be left out of the outstanding men list.

All-American

FIRST TIME... Many Iowa State football fans will have their first opportunity to see All-American Bob Reynolds in action when the Huskers play at Ames Saturday.

Cyclone Fans Get First Chance To View Reynolds

Bobby Reynolds, unanimous 1950 All-American Choice, leads his 1951 Cornhuskers into action at Ames Saturday when Iowa State plays football host to Nebraska.

It will be the first chance for many Iowans to see the youngster hailed as one of the greatest sophomores in football history. Last year Reynolds led the nation in scoring to set a new NCAA major school record of 157 points. He was all-everything despite being overlooked in pre-season ratings.

A shoulder injury held him out of action three games this year but he has come back to pose the same dangerous threat he did a year ago in the last three games.

Merl J. Ross, business manager of athletics at Iowa State, said Monday that tickets still remain for the Nebraska game. Reserved seat tickets, he said would still be available, on Saturday.

Iowa State players, meanwhile, are busy at the twin problem of the week—trying to make more economical use of its offense and to devise ways and means of halting Nebraska.

Scout Ray Donels, who watched Nebraska play Kansas last week, warned of both offensive and defensive power on the part of Nebraska. Ray Novak, young full-back, has come fast in the past few games to give Reynolds enough help to revitalize the Husker attack, Donels said. Defensively the Nebraskans are more rugged than a year ago when the two teams fought to a 20-13 win for Nebraska.

Good Tabs Huskers To Finish In Cellar

By GENE WELLS
Sports Staff Reporter

With the Iowa State game only three and one-half weeks away, Coach Harry Good is bearing down on his NU basketball prospects.

Although the squad is still separated into two groups, division into teams will come along shortly. With practice on fundamentals nearly completed, the cagers are now working on Missouri, Iowa State, Colorado and Nebraska.

Returning starters from the 1950-51 aggregation are Jim Buchanan and Joe Good.

The average height of the yearlings this season is much taller than usual, and if they can quickly absorb fundamental training and graduate into Big Seven type of ball soon enough, there will probably be a good percentage of freshmen on the 12 man team drills, such as two on two and three on three.

So far, however, there has been one full court scrimmage, but Good has slated a clinic at Fairbury this Saturday afternoon with a scrimmage following that evening. On November 18 Good and his squad will head another clinic at the Coliseum sponsored by the Lincoln Officials association.

The team is using a man-to-man defense with some switching, and a semi-post offense, where a semi-post offense, where the guards and forwards can either pass into the center or use him as screen when breaking in.

Good believes that lack of experience and the loss of such key players as Pierce, Akromis, and Bob Mercer, junior who joined the service, will drop the Cornhuskers to the bottom of the Big Seven race. Good picks the teams in this order: Kansas State, Kansas, Oklahoma, traveling squad before the season is over.

Pierce Joins Bus Whitehead With Phillips

Bob Pierce, 1950-51 basketball star, left Monday to join another former NU cage great, Bus Whitehead, with the Phillips 66 Oilers professional basketball team.

Last season Pierce playing center broke the Cornhusker all-time scoring record previously set by Whitehead, with 384 points, and was the mainstay on Coach Harry Good's fifth place 1951 squad, which was made up of mostly sophomores and juniors.

Cage Tourney To Start

The 1951-1952 intramural basketball tournament gets underway Friday, Nov. 19 at five p.m.

Alpha Gamma Rho scrubs meet Ag Men at the Ag campus. On court on at the Intramural building, Phi Gamma Delta A tangles with Sigma Phi Epsilon A. Sigma Alpha Epsilon A will meet Sigma Chi A at the same time on court two.
