

'Y's' Need Workers For Mock Primary

Students who would like to serve on the boards may apply to the YM and YWCA sponsored mock primary elections Monday.

A voting board of two Republicans and one Democrat and a counting board of one Republican and one Democrat are yet to be selected. The two-one ratio on the voting board alternates with each primary.

Panel To Discuss Primary Elections

Following the YMCA and YWCA sponsored mock primary, from 5 to 6 p.m. Monday, the same groups will hold a joint all-membership meeting open to the public in the Union Faculty lounge.

A panel will discuss various conceptions of the primary election system.

One member will advocate a national primary. Another will suggest an all-star primary in which voters could write in names not approved or registered within the state where the primary is being held. A third member will stand up for the present system.

The fourth member of the panel will act as moderator.

Sen. Estes Kefauver will be invited to sit on the panel if he is available at that time.

Bus Trip Fills Course Requirements

A 5,250 mile bus trip through Western United States is being sponsored this summer by the University Extension division.

The trip is cataloged as geography 164 for three hours credit with a prerequisite of sophomore standing or above.

A $22.50 tuition fee and a blanket fee of $181 covers costs of the trip syllabus, transportation, lodging in motor courts and hotels, admission to national parks, escorted city tours, boat trips and bridge tolls. Students must pay for their own meals estimated to be about $60.

Buses will leave the University July 27 and return August 17 allowing students to attend the University summer session and go on the trip also.

Buffett, Wedemeyer To Ask Students For Taft Write-Ins

Representative Howard Buffett and Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer will support the Taft write-in campaign at 8 p.m. Thursday night in the Union ballroom.

Buffett stated he will explain to University students the significance of the Nebraska primary to Taft's candidacy and to the course of national events. Gen. Wedemeyer's talk will include comments on the nation's military problems and the international situation.

In a letter to The Daily Nebraskan, Buffett announced, "The big story is the attempt of New Deal elements in the East to take over the Republican party by dictating—or rather conniving—to decide for the Republican party, who they shall nominate."

"This propaganda blitz," the congressman added, "is the most amazing story of this year, if not of our time."

Buffett stressed he and General Wedemeyer are looking forward to the question period to follow their talks. Buffett said he is anxious to discuss students' questions so that they may understand Taft's campaign.

"Your judgment," stated Buffett, "is only as good as your information." He continued, "We will be there filled with information."

Delta Theta Phi, legal fraternity, is sponsoring the meeting. Lincoln citizens included on the executive committee for the "Crusade for Taft" are Charles Thone, B. Frank Watson, Russell Brehm, and Cal Ceulter.

A non-partisan campaign encouraging presidential write-in votes has been started. John H. Agee, retired Lincoln businessman said money has been raised to buy a half-page ad in all the state's daily papers.

"We tell the people," said Agee, "who all the candidates are on both tickets. People should express their own choices," he added, "and should not be limited to voting for only those few persons whose names will be included on the ballot."

Absentee Ballots

Students voting in primary elections by absentee ballot must vote in the presence of a notary public. The National Bank of Commerce has announced that their notaries will provide this free service for students. The bank is open from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Danforth Award Offered To Ag Coed

One outstanding freshman woman majoring in home economics will be chosen recipient of a $50 Danforth scholarship this spring.

Winner of the award will attend a two week leadership training school at Camp Miniwanca on Lake Michigan.

Four-fold development—social, religious, physical and mental—will be stressed when applications are judged. High school religious, scholastic and activity records will also be considered for choosing a winner.

Ag freshmen desiring to apply for the Danforth scholarship should contact Carolyn Ruby, associate professor of home economics, by Friday.

Epstein, Devries Named To Lead '52 Yell Squad

Ira Epstein was chosen the new Yell King Wednesday night by members of a yell squad advisory board. Don Devries was named assistant Yell King at the tryouts.

New males to the Yell squad are Dan Fogel, Don Hodge and Roy Curtis, regulars, and Don Seibold and Gary Hild, alternates.

Two new females to the squad are Pat Nellis and Marilyn Eaton.

Epstein is a member of Student Council, N-club, gymnastics team, Corn Cobs, New Student Week committee, rally committee and president of Sigma Alpha Mu.

Devries, past Yell King, is a member of Kosmet Klub, Yell squad advisory board, chairman of the rally committee and belongs to Phi Delta Theta.

Forty-five freshmen women and 15 men were present at the tryouts for the Yell squad. There were three candidates for Yell King.

Fogel is a member of the gymnastics team and Sigma Alpha Mu. Hodge, also a member of the gymnastics team, is a Union committee worker and belongs to Delta Tau Delta.

Curtis is a member of the "Girl Crazy" cast and Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Seibold is a member of the "Girl Crazy" cast.

Hild is an Ag Builders worker and a member of Alpha Gamma Rho.

Miss Nellis is a Union committee worker and a member of Alpha Chi Omega.

Miss Eaton is a member of Builders, Red Cross, a Cornhusker worker and belongs to Pi Beta Phi.

Holdover members of the squad are Dick Claussen, Judy Wiebe and Jo Berry.

Members of the advisory board are: Jerry Johnson, Innocents society president; Gene Robinson, Corn Cob president; Mary Ann Kellogg, Tassel president; George (Potsy) Clark, athletic director; Don Devries and Ira Epstein, Yell squad; Jake Geier, gymnastic coach; Donald Olsen, director of debate; and Don Lentz, University band director.

Other eight which were in the top ten are: Marilyn Muller, Jan Harrison, Marybelle Baldwin, Mary Jane Mapes, Rita Angell, Lynn Holland, Jody Seifert and Mimi DuTeau.

Application For College Representatives Open Monday For 1952 Student Council

Filings for Student Council college representatives will open at 8 a.m. Monday, George Wilcox, chairman of the Council elections committee, has announced.

Application blanks will be available in Dean Frank Hallgren's office, Room 209, Administration building, until Saturday noon, April 5.

Any freshman or sophomore, with the exception of Law college students, may file as a candidate to represent the college of which he is a member.

Freshmen in the four-year Law college curriculum may file to represent their college.

All candidates must be carrying 12 University hours and have a weighted 5 average.

Each candidate must fill in the following information on his application blank or his filing will be invalidated:

1. Name, address, sex.
2. Position sought.
3. Grade average, class, college.
4. Membership and offices in social fraternity or organized house.
5. Membership and offices in professional fraternities and societies.
6. Membership and offices in campus activities.
7. Signatures of 25 bona fide students enrolled within in the candidate's college.

Candidates must also sign the following statement:

"I hereby agree that if elected to the Student Council I will serve to the best of my ability and I will arrange my school schedule to permit my attendance at the regular meetings of the Student Council."

Council positions will be filled by elections scheduled for May 5. Students in each college will vote for their representatives. The number of college representatives on Council will be:

Agriculture—two (one man and one woman).

Arts and Sciences—three (at least one man and one woman).

Business Administration—two.

Engineering—two.

Law—one.

Pharmacy and Dentistry—one representative for both colleges.

Teachers—three (at least one man and one woman).

Qualifications and filing dates for representatives from campus organizations will be announced later.

Council Plans To Support All Sports Day Program

George Cobel, Student Council president, Wednesday asked the Council's support for all-sports day, April 5.

Cobel also asked the student organization representatives present if, in the event of a Union open house that night, the organizations having offices in the Union would open their offices and have representatives present to talk to visiting high school students.

Cobel said it was up to the student body to sell the University to visitors.

The Union open house will be held during a free dance sponsored by the N-club and Union. All high school and college students are invited to attend.

In further Council business, John Adams, engineering executive board representative, registered a formal protest against the circulation department of The Daily Nebraskan. The protest was referred to the Campus improvements committee for investigation.

The complaint came from a claim by Adams that few, if any, Nebraskans are distributed in the Mechanical Arts building, Bancroft hall and Avery lab.

George Wilcox, circulation manager, said that only 4,000 papers could be printed for the approximately 6,000 students and 1,500 faculty members. Wilcox attributed this shortage to a paper shortage.

Council migration committee members are trying to cut the price of football tickets to the Colorado migration. Cobel reported that an exchange student rate on the tickets might be worked out. This would mean that Colorado students coming to Nebraska could attend the game at our student ticket price and Nebraskans traveling to Colorado would attend at their prices.

Such a cut might reduce the ticket price from $3.50 to $1.00.

John Foster Dulles Resigns

WASHINGTON—John Foster Dulles, Republican advisor to the state department, resigned his position.

In his resignation statement to reporters, Dulles said he hoped soon to be able to express his own views on foreign policy. He added, however, that he did not intend to torpedo the bi-partisan policy of the government, nor would he attempt to embarrass the state department.

Dulles was formerly foreign affairs advisor to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and he is considered the architect of the Japanese peace treaty.

Army Uses Atomic Shell

FT. HOOD, Tex.—The army confirmed the use of an atomic artillery shell in the Operation Longhorn maneuvers at Ft. Hood. The towering cloud of radioactive dust and smoke betrayed the presence of the first such shell fired in connection with troop operations.

Earlier an air force F-80 surprised a group of 300 men on the leeward side of a hill to drop a simulated atomic bomb. Men of the "aggressor" 82nd airborne division were caught flat-footed while umpires called out, "You're all dead."

It has not been definitely disclosed that we actually have an atomic bomb small enough to be carried by a fighter plane, but the report from Ft. Hood seems to indicate that we do.

French Arrest Tunisia Premier

TUNISIA — The French clamped tight censorship on news from Tunisia after arresting the native premier and three members of his cabinet. The jailed men are reported to be leaders in a nationalistic movement which agitates for more Tunisian self-government. Communists have allied themselves with the cause and riots are frequent.

MOCK UNITED NATIONS

NUCWA To Elect Two Conference Chairmen

Two committee chairmen for the Nebraska University Council for World Affairs spring conference will be elected at NUCWA meeting Thursday evening. Members and delegates are to meet in Parlors X and Y, Union, at 7 p.m.

The three-day session, to be held April 3 to 5, will be a mock meeting of a United Nations charter amendment conference. According to Charles Gomom, secretary-general of the mock Secretariat, in charge of arrangements for the session, the purpose of the conference is to draw up possible amendments to the UN charter and make recommendations to a theoretical drafting committee.

Pat Allen, head of the department of conference procedure of the model Secretariat, chairmen will be elected at the beginning of Thursday's meeting. One chairman will lead the veto problem committee and the other will direct a committee to discuss the powers of the general assembly.

Both committees will work toward finding "some plausible amendments," Allen said.

After the election, Allen plans to announce that Jack Solomon, senior in Law college, will act as president of the plenary sessions. "A mock election will be held the first day of the conference in accordance with actual UN procedure," Allen said, "and delegates will elect Solomon at that time."

Several points of parliamentary procedure will be discussed at Thursday's meeting, after which Allen will explain rules of procedure for the spring conference.

NUCWA members will be appointed to go to various campus houses Monday evening to give two or three minute speeches publicizing the conference.

Students who wish resolutions to be considered by the mock delegates in April should bring the resolutions to the meeting Thursday, President Virginia Koehler announced.

Allen said the resolutions will be mimeographed by the model Secretariat and distributed at the time they are brought up during the April session. Delegates must propose each resolution orally, Allen explained.

When a resolution is suggested at the model session, its introducer may speak for seven minutes in favor of it, Allen said, and then may move its adoption. One opposition speaker may then speak for seven minutes and each speaker thereafter may talk only three minutes.

According to Allen, the type-written resolutions due Thursday evening should be set up as follows:

Upper right hand corner—date, language used (English), original language (the language of the country proposing the resolution).

Seven inches down—First Plenary Session and Charter Amendment Conference.

Centered—names of sponsoring nations and title of resolution.

Body of resolution.

Motions and amendments may be considered during the mock conference, Gomom said, but no major resolutions will be considered except those mimeographed by the Secretariat in advance.

Absent Minded Professor: "Do you know what time it is?" Student: "Yeah." A. M. Prof: "Thanks."

The sergeant walked into the lounge of the Military and Naval Science building and shouted, "All right you lazy . . . s, hop to and fall in."

The students grabbed their hats and lined up—all except one who lay on a couch blowing smoke rings.

"Well," roared the sergeant. "Well," replied the student. "There certainly were a lot of them, weren't there?"

More of the same. That's the weather prediction for today. Skies will continue partly cloudy and the high will be around 38. If you're planning to go sledding you'd better do it soon—it won't be long before all the white stuff is gone.

For good I hope!

Senator Kefauver To Address Students In Union, March 31

Sen. Estes Kefauver will speak to University students and faculty members on the eve of the Nebraska primary elections.

As Democratic candidate for president, Senator Kefauver (Tenn.) will make his last state appearance at the Union before Nebraska voters go to the polls, April 1. He is scheduled to speak at 8 p.m., in the ballroom, Monday, March 31.

Plans for publicizing Senator Kefauver's Lincoln schedule will be made at the Young Democrats for Kefauver meeting at 7:30 p.m. this evening in Parlor C, at the Union.

Particular functions of the University Kefauver—for president campaign are delivering handbills ducers benefit from a contract, they are bound by it. The purpose of the bill, he said, was not to raise natural gas prices, but only to keep the federal government from interfering in the natural resources of a state.

The question-answer period, which lasted only 20 minutes despite Kerr's insistence on another second, followed a speech of about the same length.

Quoting Thomas Jefferson and Alfred Lord Tennyson, he told his audience of the "concept of freedom, liberty and justice of the country." He linked together the Christian cross, the statue of liberty and the standard of the Democratic party.

A lanky, bulky man (somewhat resembling the late Sen. Kenneth Wherry), Kerr had to bend over to speak into the microphone. But his voice was that of a true orator—he could have been heard throughout the room without the public address system.

The senator warned against "the architect whose knowledge is based on the specifications of the past." Democracy is dynamic, he said, and the "keystone of Democratic thought and principles is that we look to the future."

Labeling Jefferson the radical of his day, Kerr declared that he "is disappointed in youth who are not radicals and in old people who are not conservatives." Young persons, he added, must have the "capacity to dream and to plan a further journey without the burden (conservatism) which age brings."

As proof of the progressive principles of the Democratic party, he pointed to its record during 20 years in national power. He reported that whereas in 1932, the average per capita income was $400, it is now more than $1600. When quizzed later concerning the increase in prices due to inflation, he estimated that "the average man is still a little better than twice as well off" as he was in 1939.

"The United States is the greatest, richest, most productive, strongest nation in the world today," he said; "no one can conquer us."

Breaking into the oratory for which he has long been known, Kerr declared, "Of course, it hasn't always been like this. There were 12 years when things were different—when we hardened under Harding, cooled under Coolidge and hungered under Hoover."
