Peru College Will Hold Art Teachers Workshop July 14

A three day art workshop, especially designed for persons who will be teaching art in public schools during the coming school year, will be held July 14, 15 and 16 on the Nebraska State Teachers College campus at Peru.

The course will be conducted by Violet M. Eckhoff of the Binney and Smith Co. of New York. Miss Eckhoff's background includes nine years as a local art director in Missouri, three years as an instructor at Wichita (Kan.) University, and one year as a teacher at Heidelberg, Germany.

There will be no tuition or materials cost for those enrolling. It will not be a lecture or demonstration series, as all students attending will be required to work at the various projects to be undertaken.

Instruction will include the use of many art materials.

Only about ten more enrollments can be accepted for the course, the sponsors said, as 35 or 40 teachers from Utah, Nebraska, Iowa and Kansas have already enrolled.

To enroll, write to Norma Diddle, In-Service Art Workshop, Nebraska State Teachers College, Peru, Nebraska.

The doctor examined the patient and then took the wife out into the hospital hall for one of those consultations which usually makes the patient feel worse than his ailment.

"I don't like the looks of your husband," the doctor whispered confidentially.

"Neither do I," she whispered back, "but he's good to the children."

Mizzou 'Beats Drums' Over '52 Grid Hopes

It's only the middle of summer, but already the University of Missouri is beating its drums over the prospects of the 1952 gridiron season.

Operating off both the Split T and spread formations, Don Faurrot's 15th football team at the Tiger school should be generally improved this fall.

Mizzou's ground attack, which carried the Tigers to only two wins last year against eight defeats, should be more formidable. Last season, Missouri went often to the air, finishing second nationally in forward passing offense.

Biggest hopes for a rejuvenated rushing attack are pinned on more experience and talent at quarterback and fullback, both key positions in the Split T scheme. Also, except at center, line losses were not too heavy—and the offensive blocking should be better.

Jim Hook, blond 170-pounder, emerged as a full-grown quarterback during spring drills—and he'll be spelled by Tony Scardino, passing specialist, who probably will be the spread tailback.

At fullback, Bill Rowekamp—fast 195-pound transfer from Army—should help in a vital Split T position. Rowekamp lettered as a defensive end for the Cadets.

Defense is a worrisome item. Gene is Bill Fuchs, linebacking ace, and most of the Tiger secondary.

Twenty lettermen will be returning in every position except center. Missouri's only Big Seven win last year was over Nebraska by a score of 35 to 19.

Dunn Named To All-American Baseball Team By Coaches

Husker Outfielder Is Third In Row From NU

Jerry Dunn, top hitter of the 1952 Cornhusker diamond squad, has been named to the third team of All-Americans picked by the American Association of College Baseball Coaches.

It is the third year in succession that a Husker player has been named. Bob Cerv, now with the New York Yankees, was named to a first team All-American berth in 1950, and Bob Diers was selected for the third team last year.

Dunn, who paced Coach Tony Sharpe's hitters this spring with an average of .385, has a year of competition remaining. The Stoughton, Mass. slugger plays right field.

The entire Big Seven conference placed five men on the three teams named by the coaches, three of them members of the Missouri squad, Big 7 title holder. Those named in addition to Dunn:

Centerfielder Junior Wren and Pitcher Don Boenker of Missouri, first team.
Second baseman Ken Kurz of Missouri and first baseman Gene Sheets of Oklahoma, third team.

Sports and Reports

Marvin Franklin, former NU end coach, has accepted the position as assistant pastor at St. Paul Methodist church.

Dr. Frank Court, pastor at St. Paul, made the announcement Sunday. Franklin recently resigned as end coach to return to the ministry. He received his degree at the Yale School of Divinity.

Pretty Mrs. Eleanor Engle, 24, almost became the first woman to play in organized baseball. She signed a contract with the Harrisburg, Pa., Senators, but minor league president George Trautman turned thumbs down.

Much to the dismay of his Nebraska boosters, Don Cooper, ace Nebraska pole-vaulter, failed in his attempt to win a berth on the United States Olympic team. Cooper placed fifth in the Olympic trials Saturday going out after clearing the height of 14 feet, one and three-eighths inches. Cooper was hampered by a faulty pole and a strained arch muscle, which he had injured just a week before.

THE LINEUP

By CHARLES KLAASEK

In a report released by the University Athletic News Service this week, Coach Bill Glassford, who maintains contact throughout the summer with his football squad, tells what his players are doing and where they are.

Ted James and Ron Smaha, one of Harry Good's charges, are bicycling around Europe carrying packs and sleeping bags. They expect to climax their tour at Helsinki for the Olympic games.

George Prochaska, end, will attend ROTC camp and spend the remainder of the time working on his father's farm near Ulysses. Bob Smith, Grand Island halfback, is working for the Union Pacific and playing city league baseball. Dan Brown, quarterback, is playing baseball in his home town of Sioux Falls, S. D., while John Bordogna, also a signal caller, is working as a painter in Turtle Creek, Pennsylvania. Dennis Emmanuel, end from North Bend is a member of the University of Nebraska anthropology camp near Alma, Nebr.

Ray Novak, fullback from Omaha, is playing baseball and serving as groundskeeper for Lexington in the Nebraska Independent League. Bill Giles, end from Alliance, is playing baseball with Holdrege in the NIL and doing construction work. Halfback Bob Reynolds has been playing baseball with Holdrege, but is now at ROTC camp at Wichita Falls, Tex. Cliff Dale, guard from Falls City is putting in a 12-hour day as life guard and assistant manager of a swimming pool. Toney Winey, guard from Shelton, operated a bulldozer earlier in the summer but is now in ROTC summer camp at Aberdeen, Md.

Tackle Jerry Minnick of Cambridge is working as a lineman for the REA. Don Bolt, tackle from Scribner, is in ROTC camp at Fort Benning, Ga. Ken Osborn, guard from Ainsworth, is working with a blue grass company in the sand hills. End Bill Schabacker of Minden is working as a section hand and playing baseball for his home town. Carl Brasee, Omaha guard, is in ROTC camp. Ed Hutmarm, tackle from Ogallala, is in ROTC camp at Fort Benning, Ga.

Max Kennedy, halfback from Beatrice, is serving as a counselor in a boys camp near Rhineland, Wisconsin. Denny Korinek, halfback from Ulysses, is playing baseball with David City and working for Huhes Brothers at Seward. Kay Curtis, guard from Laurel, is working on the state highways and now weighs in at 220 pounds. Verl Scott, center from Mitchell, is also in Fort Benning, Ga., for ROTC camp.

Yes, the boys are scattered far and wide now, but leave it to Mr. Glassford and his staff to bring them back together this fall and mould them into a real conference challenger.
