Tau Kappa Epsilon Pledges $50 To Polio Fund Relief

Homecoming Display Money Contributed

Nebraskan To Send Check To Proper Authorities

By DON PIEPER Associate Editor

Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity wrote a $50 check for polio relief Thursday—$50 which would have ordinarily gone for Homecoming display.

The check was presented to The Daily Nebraskan and an accompanying letter explained that the fraternity wished "to have the privilege of contributing our Homecoming display fund to the National Foundation to combat polio."

Polio Effects Noted In New NU Students

After effects of polio had been noted in many students entering the University this year, according to Student Health Director, Dr. Samuel I. Fuening.

Dr. Fuening said that he had noted at least three or four incoming women who had been affected by polio.

He said that he thought there was probably a like number of men suffering from the after effects of polio.

Dr. Fuening said that most of the cases he had seen had been comparatively light, and the students were only slightly impaired. Most of the cases of muscle damage were confined to the leg, hand, foot, and arms, he added.

Dr. Fuening said the University is equipped to give aid to students who are suffering from the after effects of polio. Help can be given through the use of physical therapy and with corrective exercises and devices.

At this time the Daily Nebraskan is not supplied with definite numbers concerning the total number of University students who have had polio. However, in the near future the Daily Nebraskan will have definite facts on how polio has affected University students.

The Nebraska recently printed information about a project at the University of Kansas where all the sororities and several fraternities gave the funds they would have used for Homecoming displays to the local polio collections.

In both Nebraska and Kansas the polio epidemic has reached record proportions. Money for aiding families hit by this disease is available through the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—the organization to which the TKE's made out their check.

The letter made it clear that Tau Kappa Epsilon is still in agreement with the "spirit of Homecoming," but the fraternity feels that it "can best typify this spirit in 1952 with a contribution to combat polio."

The letter also urges other campus organizations to "feel fit to contribute to this worthwhile fund."

The Nebraskan will forward the check to the proper authorities. Any other money sent to this office for polio relief will also be forwarded.

Representatives of the All University Fund have told the Nebraskan that no money they collect goes to polio funds because the National Foundation did not want to take part in separate drives.

The annual March of Dimes in February is the only source of money the Foundation has besides private endowments.

AG EXEC BOARD

Dale Olson Elected President

New Constitution Adds Six Voting Members

Dale Olson, Ag college junior, was elected president of the Ag Exec. Board, Wednesday night.

He succeeds Wayne White as president of the Ag governing body.

Other officers recently elected are Lura Ann Harden, vice president—Mary Ellen Maronde, secretary and Dale Reynolds, treasurer.

The board is made up of 18 voting members and four non-voting members. A new constitution went into effect with the first meeting of the governing body of Ag campus. The new constitution increases the voting members by six.

The board selected the co-chairman of the Farmers Forum during its first business session. Ramona Laun and William Waldo are the co-chairmen of the dance.

Olson said the meeting time for the board will be 7:30 p.m. the second and fourth Wednesday of each month.

Cornhusker Deadline Set For Monday

Cornhusker sales books and money must be checked in to the Cornhusker office on Monday from 1 to 6 p.m. by all Tassels and Corn Cobs, states Don Noble, Business Manager.

Unless special arrangement is made with Noble, pep club members who do not check in by Monday will be penalized by their organizations as to the total number of yearbook sales made.

This drive was to give an idea of how many Cornhuskers will be sold. The second drive, which will end in the latter part of November, will determine the number of beauty candidates that each organized women's house may nominate. This number will be based on the amount of sales made. The third and final drive, which will close about two weeks after the second semester begins, will be the last chance for anyone to purchase a Cornhusker.

Applications Soon Due For AWS Post

Tuesday is the deadline for applications for the vacancy on the Associated Women Students Board.

Jean Loudon, AWS president, urges all unaffiliated sophomore women who can meet requirements to file immediately in the main lobby of Ellen Smith Hall.

The requirements are: The applicant must be living on the City or Ag campus. She must have passed a minimum of 24 hours last year. She also must have a 5.7 weighted average and be registered for at least 12 hours in the current semester.

IFC Decision Slated For 5-6 P.M. Today

The executive committee of the Inter-Fraternity Council will hand down a decision concerning fraternities charged with violating rushing rules between 5 and 6 p.m. Friday.

The Daily Nebraskan erroneously reported the time of the committee meeting in Thursday's publication. The error was unintentional. The Nebraskan staff wishes primarily to bring the news—as it is—to its readers and makes every attempt possible to avoid incorrect statements.

School Of Journalism Sets Up Special Political Exhibit For Faculty, Students

To help students in the School of Journalism follow the election news and the coverage of the elections by leading American newspapers, a special exhibit has been put up on the bulletin board in the journalism reading room in Burnett Hall. Students and faculty from all other divisions of the University are invited to examine the exhibit and the critiques of news coverage of the election which will be maintained until after the voting in November.

The main exhibit consists of an outline map of the United States on which has been marked the cities of publication for more than fifty daily newspapers being received in the reading room of the School of Journalism this fall.

On the map is marked the outline of the territory around these cities covered in the circulation of these newspapers. The electoral vote of each state, and a tabulation of the number of times the state has gone Democratic or Republican in the presidential elections since 1932, also appear on the map.

The daily newspapers for this fall's reading room list have been selected with a view to covering as much of the United States as possible. The list has been made to select particularly influential newspapers and to select an adequate variety of newspapers in some of the key political states.

A list of the newspapers received, with their circulation totals and a list of recommended reading for persons wishing to follow the coverage of the elections, are also included in the exhibit. Each week additional displays will be prepared to supplement the main features.

States as possible, according to Dr. William F. Swindler, director of the school. Special editorial

P. M. Headlines

By SALLY ADAMS

MARTINSBURG, W. VA.—Gov. Adlai Stevenson has been challenged to reveal payments made from an Illinois Democratic fund unless he "has something to hide." The query was set forth by Gov. Sherman Adams, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's top adviser. He said the Democratic nominee has a private fund for providing Christmas bonuses and other gifts to deserving Democrats in his state administration.

An Illinois Supreme Court justice said he received a $500 Christmas check from Stevenson while serving in a non-salaried committee post before his court appointment.

Stevenson has said the fund was used to attract competent men from private occupations to lower-paying state jobs.

ABOARD EISENHOWER SPECIAL—Eisenhower and Sen. Richard Nixon are back to the tough business of waging a presidential campaign after a dramatic reunion in Wheeling, W.Va. Party unity was at its peak following a 107 to 0 vote of confidence given Nixon by the Republican National Committee.

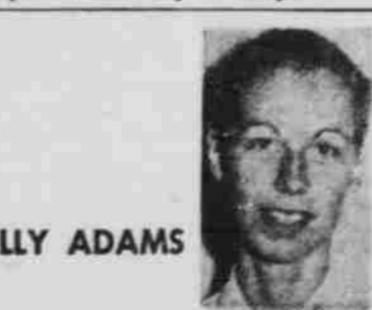

In praise of his running mate, the general said, "So far as I am concerned, he has not only vindicated himself but I feel that he has acted as a man of courage and honor and, so far as I am concerned, stands higher than ever before."

WASHINGTON—President Truman believes all top government officials should be required to make public accounts of all their income each year. In a news conference, he said he had long advocated such action. He said he first set forth his attitude in a message to Congress on Sept. 27, 1951.

The President refused to comment on the expense funds used by both Senator Nixon and Governor Stevenson.

TOKYO—Communist radio operators have tried to trap United Nations B-26 light bombers by giving false radio information. The report in the Pacific Stars and Stripes said the Communists, many of them speaking near perfect English, are attempting to lure the night-flying reconnaissance bombers into anti-aircraft traps.

None of the pilots have fallen for the trick since the messages originated in late August and early September. An airforce officer said, "Their radio procedure is pretty poor but their English is fair. When we ask them to authenticate, and they can't, they go all to hell."

Piastro And Symphonette To Play In Coliseum Oct. 2

The Longines Symphonette will present a concert Thursday, Oct. 2 in the Coliseum under the auspices of the Student Union.

This personal appearance is one engagement of a ten-week tour which will take the Symphonette through the United States, Canada, and a part of Mexico.

The Symphonette made its radio debut in New York over the local radio station WOR under the direction of Mishel Piastro. In 1948, it made its CBS premier broadcast. Because of its rise in reputation and popularity, the Longines Symphonette has been presented with an award repeating it to be the finest orchestra concert ensemble in radio, according to the vote of 800 music critics of the U.S., Canada and Mexico.

The Symphonette has made personal appearances in Carnegie Hall in New York and in Symphony Hall in Boston.

The Symphonette is a miniature replica of a symphony orchestra. The musical selections of the Longines Symphonette are based on a smaller scale in keeping with its small instrumentation and its limited radio program time. Its selections are movements of the complete works of the old masters and some lighter pieces. The policy of the orchestra is to play every piece of music, as far as possible, from the original score.

Student tickets are being sold for 75 cents. Students will be seated at the south end of the Coliseum. Tickets are now on sale at the Union office and at Wait's Music Store.

BABW Hello Girl Selecting Gets Revision

Voting for the 1952-53 Hello Girl will be done on an all-University basis this year.

The Barb Activities Board for Women will hold its annual Hello Dance Oct. 17 in the Union Ballroom from 8 to 12 p.m. Tickets are 60 cents and may be purchased in the Union lobby beginning Monday, Oct. 6.

Following their custom, the unaffiliated women's houses on the campus will each put up one girl as a candidate for Hello Girl. Each candidate must have a 5 average and be interested in activities.

Pictures of the candidates will be posted in the Union a week preceding the dance and voting will take place on Thursday and Friday before the dance.

Darlene Gooding, Hello Girl last year, will crown the winner of the contest this year during the dance.

Dance music will be furnished by Jim Phillips' combo.

GONE AGAIN

Squabbie Tours Campus, But Where Is He Now?

By PAT PECK Feature Editor

Scorning the shelter of darkness, the Squabbie Stealers ride again.

Squabbie, the black and white mutt that has adorned the Delta Tau Delta house, has disappeared again and his whereabouts have not been discovered.

In the wee sma's Thursday morning I awakened to the sound of voices and the scraping of some foreign object against the side of the building.

Dragging myself to the window, I stared down into the blissful upturned faces of a dozen strange men. A ladder was propped against the third floor balcony on the front of the Residence Halls for Women and up the ladder, full in the glare of the "big light," came a young man with Squabbie clutched under his arm.

The dog was decorated with a set of painted Greek symbols, but unfortunately, my grandstand seat was directly behind a post, I could not identify them.

I dozed off again, lulled to sleep by shouts of "Hurry up, you guys! Let's get that ladder out of here."

Before breakfast this morning I rushed down the front walk and turned to view the new addition. Gone. And to my disappointment, the second crop of Squabbie Stealers had failed to wake me. Of course, this has the possibilities of an inside job.

The Delts are mourning the loss of their pet (again), but perhaps it is just as well. Rumor has it that one of the sororities called the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and reported that the Delts were keeping a dog tied on the roof. The SPCA called the Delts house and demanded to know why the dog had been tethered there and for how long. They also called for his immediate release.

Squabbie is free.

Jane: Can you tell when your pinmate is lying? I can't. Grace: It's easy for me, because if his lips are moving—he's lying.

Prof: If there are any dumbbells in the room, please stand. (After a long pause, a freshman stood up.) You mean you consider yourself a dumbbell?

Frosh: Well, not exactly that, sir. I just hate to see you standing all by yourself.

Well, here it is again. And though I had to sound like a broken record, it's going to be bright and sunny and warm again.

To those of you who haven't found a place to live yet, you can always sleep outdoors on some political bunk.

1st Frat Man: Did you have a nice weekend?

2nd Ditto: I'll say. I kissed a girl over the telephone.

1st F. M.: Oh come now, how can you do that?

2nd F. M.: It was easy. We were in the same booth.

That's all.
