

IM Squash Meet Plans Set

All men wishing to enter the all-University squash tournament must meet in room 114 of the Physical Education building at 5 or 7 p.m., Monday, Feb. 23.

The tourney will determine the championship by single elimination. Games will be scheduled according to times the handball courts in the Coliseum are available. Two out of three games will constitute a match, and winners of the match will advance in the tournament.

In case of a large entry list, winners of the leagues will play for the individual championship. Pairings will be posted on the bulletin board in the P. E. building.

The team winner will be determined by points awarded by advancing in the tournament. Advancing in each round adds one point toward team score. If a winner's tournament is held, the same point system will be in effect for the team championship honors.

A trophy will be awarded to the championship team on the point basis. Names of the champions will be etched on the Coliseum and Physical Education building championship plaques.

NU Cagers Face Hawks

Coach Harry Good's Husker cagers, seeking revenge for two previous defeats by Kansas, face an underdog role Saturday night when they invade the Jayhawk home court at Lawrence.

Nebraska's losses to KU were 66-73 at the Kansas City pre-season conference tourney, and 59-65 Jan. 12 in the Coliseum.

Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen's Jays, who throttled Oklahoma Monday night to take over the Sooner's top spot in the league, stake most of their hopes on big KU pivot, B. H. Born, who hit 34 points against the Huskers in the last NU-KU outing.

On Monday evening the Scarlet Hoopsters meet Coach Bruce Drake's Sooners at Norman, Okla.

The OU team is currently in third loop position, following the Kansas loss. K-State is second, behind its cross-state rivals. The Huskers are in a tie for third and fourth place with Colorado.

HERE SATURDAY . . . Kansas University's Bill Biberstein will show his timber-topping abilities Saturday when the Jayhawks invade for a dual meet with the Huskers on the indoor track in the East Stadium. Sophomore Biberstein ran a winning .07.3 flight of the 60-yard high against K-State last weekend, and is expected to provide Nebraskan Dan Tolman with top-flight opposition in the barriers. The meet will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Thinclads Engage 'Hawks Saturday

The University of Kansas track team, defending champion in both the Big Seven indoor and outdoor championships, comes here Saturday for a dual meet against Nebraska.

Running events start at 7:30 p.m. at the stadium indoor layout.

The Cornhuskers will be definite underdogs. Kansas State, which won from Nebraska, 55 1/2 to 48 1/2, lost to Kansas 39 1/2 to 64 1/2.

Coach Ward Haylett of Kansas State, says the Jayhawkers are stronger than they were a year ago when they walloped Nebraska 65 1/2 to 33 1/2.

However, Coach Ed Weir believes if his sophomores come through, the Huskers can press the Jayhawkers to a point where the relay may decide the meet.

"We may be too optimistic but we feel we have a chance to score an upset," Weir said.

Kansas, with great depth on the track, will be sparked by Wes Santee, distance runner who competed in the Olympic games at Helsinki.

Santee likely will double in the mile and the 880. He ran a 4:12 mile against Kansas State and holds the Kansas-Nebraska meet record at 4:17.6.

The meet entries: Mile run: Kansas, Wes Santee, Lloyd Koby, Dick Wilson, Keith Palmquist; Nebraska, Clayton Scott, Haorid Sampson, Bob Kutz.

60-yard dash: Kansas, Dick

McGinn, Don Hess, Bill Hawkey, Frank Cindrich; Nebraska, Bob Fairchild, Irving Thode, Charles Chamley.

440-yard dash: Kansas, Don Smith, Capt. John Riederer, Frank Cindrich, Frank Rodkey, Jay Hardy; Nebraska, Brien Hendrickson, James Hurley.

60-yard high hurdles: Kansas, Bill Biberstein, Adolph Muller; Nebraska, Dan Tolman, Gaylord Smith, Dan Lindquist.

2-mile run: Kansas, Dick Wilson, Keith Palmquist, Lloyd Koby; Nebraska, Clayton Scott, Don Wilcox, Forrest Doling.

Upsets Continue Fast Pace In Intramural Cage Action

By BILL MUNDALL, Intramural Sports Columnist

Intramural basketball's dizzy season of upsets failed to alter its course Wednesday night and the surprises kept flying. A limited schedule of eight games still produced two major upsets and another in the "almost" category as overtime frays took the spotlight.

Ninth Independent-ranked Phalanx received a severe jolt at the hands of the unrated Fliers as they dropped a 43-42 overtime decision in perhaps the wildest and weirdest action seen this year.

Owning one victory over the Fliers this season, the Phalanx started out as if to make it an easy two-in-a-row Wednesday night. With the Fliers completely baffled, the favorites piled up a 14-0 lead and then tapered off to a 14-4 quarter margin. Five points by Charles McAfee and four by Harold Dickens sparked this first-stanza Phalanx spurge. Harvey Gott managed the winners' only counters here.

The second stanza was much the same and everyone on the Phalanx outfit got into the scoring act as they ran the margin to 26-15.

For four minutes in the second half, the pattern was the same and at one time the losers held a 30-17 advantage. But slowly, the tide began to change.

Don James connected on two fielders for the Fliers and that was the signal for fireworks. Slowly and methodically the winners began their climb, but no one was much concerned as everyone figured the final outcome was pretty much settled.

The Phalanx were victims of "scorebook jitters" in the final stanza. Even as Clark Betcke of the Fliers went on a one-man scoring spree, the Phalanx were unmoved as frequent inquiries of the running score indicated that they were well in the lead. It wasn't until Betcke had meshed his tenth consecutive point and the Phalanx had stalled out the last minute, thinking they had won, did the true score come to light.

And at the game's final buzzer the actual tally was found to be 39-39.

A check of the scorebook brought the Phalanx out of their dressing rooms and back on the floor for a three-minute overtime, still wondering what was going on.

Betcke put the Fliers ahead in the extra period on a pair of perfect gift tosses, but in the process Claire Johnson drew his fifth foul and that left the Fliers with four men. With a minute remaining, Maurice Russell tied it up for the losers with a lay-up and the Fliers found themselves in deeper water as Chuck Beatty fouled out, leaving them with three players.

There was still insane hope for the Fliers as Don James who fouled and dunked both shots. Now the count stood at 43-41 with 30 seconds to go. Five against three, the Phalanx stormed to the attack and missed one, two, three shots before Charlie Bryant was fouled just as the final horn was sounded.

Bryant, who already had eight for eight at the charity line, saw the Phalanx hopes go up in smoke as his first toss rimmed the hoop and fell out. His second shot was true, but it was all over.

The wild victory increased the Fliers' playoff hopes and pushed their season record to 2-4, their only other win coming via the forfeit route.

The Nebraskans took the advantage in the overtime as Don Gabriel hit from underneath, but the Mustangs were back right away with Larry Schmidt netting a goal from the circle. With 50 seconds remaining Eudell Jacobsen sent a swisher through for the Co-op from the left side and although the Mustangs tried desperately, they couldn't match it.

Aden's ten points led the way for the winners with Dostal contributing another six. Schmidt topped the losers with eight.

Other Wednesday action went true to form as the Methodist Student House blasted the Baptist House, 58-17, and Phi Delta Theta crushed Alpha Gamma Rho, 57-13.

The surprises were not confined to the Independent division. Sigma Nu topped its first intramural win of the entire school year as their "A" team thundered over Sigma Alpha Epsilon to a stunning 46-17 victory. The Nu's win shaved the list of winless outfits in cage action to six.

With Andy Buntin leading the way, the Nu's roared to an 11-3 average. Johnson is also the leading rebound grabber.

Good, playing the guard spot along with Seger, is settled in third place in the scoring ranks.

Both of the winners led all scorers with 14 points while Betcke's torrid last-minute flurry netted him the runner-up spot with 12. Johnson added another ten to the winning total. McAfee with ten was tops for the losers while Bryant's nine free throws and eight from Dickens and Jon McWilliams kept the Phalanx in the game.

The surprises were not confined to the Independent division. Sigma Nu topped its first intramural win of the entire school year as their "A" team thundered over Sigma Alpha Epsilon to a stunning 46-17 victory. The Nu's win shaved the list of winless outfits in cage action to six.

With Andy Buntin leading the way, the Nu's roared to an 11-3 first quarter advantage and were never again seriously challenged by the defending All-University champions.

Buntin's 18 points led all scorers while Steve Sutton contributed another ten. Pat Lange topped the losing Sig Alphas with seven.

The Mustangs nearly added Nebraska Co-op to the list of upset victims as they were forced into an overtime before falling, 26-28. The Horsies, who had entered the fray fresh from a stunning upset of the Hoopsters, started off as if to do it again. Commanding the play throughout, they suddenly found themselves facing an extra period as Al Aden and Bob Dostal dunked a pair of goals in the waning moments.

The Nebraskans took the advantage in the overtime as Don Gabriel hit from underneath, but the Mustangs were back right away with Larry Schmidt netting a goal from the circle. With 50 seconds remaining Eudell Jacobsen sent a swisher through for the Co-op from the left side and although the Mustangs tried desperately, they couldn't match it.
