Crucial Saturday Activities Plotted By MBs, Innocents

Members of Mortar Board and Innocents Society will mask and tackle respectively an unrevealed number of juniors in Ivy Day festivities Saturday.

The 19 Mortar Boards who will mask their successors are: Jan Steffen, president; Barbara Bell, vice president; Neala O'Dell, secretary; Lura Ann Harden, treasurer; Barbara Adams, Connie Clark Karges, Joyce Johnson; Sue Gorton Lawlor and Harriett Wenke Campbell. Susan Reinhardt; Darlene Gooding; Barbara Spilker; Shirley Murphy Maly; Joy Wachal; Barbara Raun; Marilyn Erwin; Sue Brownlee; Barbara Crowe, and Jane Calhoun Weaver.

Innocents, who will tackle thirteen outstanding junior men, are: Eldon Park, president; Rocky Yapp, vice president; Ernest Bebb, secretary; Carr Trumbull, treasurer; Mac Bailey; Ken Rystrom; Cal Kuska; Stan Sipple; J. Benedict; Dale Reynolds; Bob Peterson, and Bob Hasebrook.

An interesting sidelight on the members of the senior honoraries is that four Mortar Boards and one Innocent, Bob Hasebrook, were married during the year. Although the number of Innocents is set at thirteen, Mortar Boards may choose from five to 25 coeds to take their place. As in the past, officers of the two groups will mask and tackle in the same order as they were chosen—beginning with the president and continuing down through the officers.

Fulfilling another Ivy Day tradition, hooded Innocents and masked and gowned Mortar Boards will stalk through the crowd during the festivities in order to spot their quarry.

Rathbone Script

The personal translation of "King David" belonging to Basil Rathbone was lost following the performance Sunday evening and has not yet been located.

Rathbone said that the script was of utmost importance to him since he has been asked by Eugene Ormandy to take the role in the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra's presentation of the cantata. The narrator had noted all his cues, inflections and various reminders on this script.

Dr. Foltz, University director of "King David" said that it might have been taken by some souvenir hunter who did not realize the personal value of the script. Any information leading to its recovery would be appreciated.

Corn Cob officers will explain the purpose and organization of the club to all freshmen who attend the meeting which is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in Union Parlor X. Col. C. J. Frankforter, Corn Cob sponsor, will give a short speech.

Magic Carpet Displays Include Ancient Writing

Gold Bindings, Lost Colors Shown

By SAM JENSEN Staff Writer
Wedge-shaped scratches that initiated the modern form of writing 3500 years before Christ were viewed by University students and faculty when the Magic Carpet on Wheels opened a three-day display on campus.

The traveling library, which is located west of Temporary "L", contains exhibits that span a period of over 5400 years. The display will be open to the public Friday and Monday.

Dr. Elliott Hatfield, curator of the traveling exhibit, said the scratched letters vied for attention with modern examples of printing and binding. The two most rare exhibits, Hatfield said, were a fragment of the Gutenberg Bible and a papyrus leaf from the Egyptian "Book of the Dead."

THE MAGIC Carpet will make four stops in Nebraska, visiting the University, Omaha University and Hastings and Kearney Colleges. Hatfield said that the exhibit has visited more than 200 colleges and universities.

"The exhibit is taken to Universities," he said, "so that students and future teachers may see these displays and make teaching more alive." He pointed out that the exhibit was non-commercial and the main objective of the Grollier Society in sponsoring the trip was to take the displays to locales where nothing of a like nature existed.

HATFIELD SAID that the exhibit which attracted the most interest was a display of old children's books and some colorful book binding. Students of art, music and literature were attracted to particular displays, he said.

The Magic Carpet's exhibits are all original or unusual with the exception of five items which are copies of rare articles. Many of the bindings are illustrated in gold leaf and colors that, even with the aid of modern technology, would be impossible to reproduce, Hatfield said.

THIS YEAR is believed to be the 500th anniversary of the invention of moveable type by Johann Gutenberg. The traveling exhibit is dedicated to this event. For the last three years, an average of 1,000 persons have seen the exhibit each week. It has recently been displayed on the West Coast and is working
