Sooners Crush NU Bid For Loop Laurels 41-0

You can't CATCH a bear in a mouse trap!

Regardless of the strength of the mouse trap, the spirit it demonstrates against the bear will go for naught because the size of the beast and its strength it will only give a little snort and shake of the trap before it causes any damage.

This is an analogy of the Oklahoma-Nebraska gridiron contest that took place Saturday, Nov. 19. The bear trounced the mouse trap by a score of 41-0. But, the affair was not as much a run away as the score indicated. It was still the most resounding defeat that the mouse trap suffered on the gridiron this fall.

Oklahoma, the Bear, had trouble shaking the inspired Cornhuskers, the mouse trap, but after a slow first half, the Sooners marched all over the Memorial Stadium sod.

Nebraska went into the Big Seven Conference championship battle with a decided psychological advantage since this was to be the last game for their coach, Bill Glassford. But, the oil barons from the southwest proved that football is definitely a physical game.

Oklahoma marched down the field for a touchdown the second time they got their hands on the ball. At the first quarter marker, the Sooners held a slim 7-0 lead.

Then the Huskers started their first and only drive deep into Okie territory. With second down and four to go on the Sooner 8, Nebraska tried a pass play. It backfired and the men from the land of red dust and black oil had the ball on their 41 yard line.

Coach Bud Wilkinson sent in his second unit to try and penetrate the Cornhusker defense. Glassford countered with his second unit. However, Oklahoma's second team looked about as good as the first unit and marched down to score with the second quarter half over. Nebraska tried to stage a comeback. The Big Bad Bears dug in their claws and proved their defense was just as good as their offense. At half time, the Sooners had a 13-0 lead and it looked as if the Nebraskans might prove to be the toughest team they had faced all year.

The second half was a different story. The oil barons took the kick-off and without giving up the ball, scored with a few seconds more than four minutes gone in the third period.

Before the game was over, the Cornhusker dam was broken open three more times by the relentless outfit from Oklahoma.

If there was any difference in the 36 monsters that Wilkinson brought up from Norman, it wasn't noticeable to this observer. The linemen looked like their contemporaries that perform on Sunday afternoon in the pro ranks, and they moved with the speed and agility of a crew of Olympic sprinters.

Nebraska played hard, spirited ball for 60 minutes, but didn't get more than two decent breaks all afternoon.

Girls' sports have been clicking fast and furious, this past week with the volleyball, duckpins, and bowling tournaments going into their second week. Last year the Chi Omegas won the volleyball tournament while the Delta Delta Deltas captured the duckpins crown. In the bowling tournament Barb Ferguson knocked down the most pins to grab that championship. Are they going to be as successful this year?

Sonn athletic minded women will turkey, cranberries, and pumpkin pie instead of volleyball. But as soon as the stuffing is over, intramurals will resume in full swing. For all girls who are participating in the bowling tournament, the bowling alley is Rosewilde Bowling Parlors located at 1126 P which is a half block south of the Nebraska theatre. Also check the bulletin board for the correct time that you play.

Big Seven Play:

Eight In A Row For Sooners; Huskers, Colorado Next In Line

Oklahoma's powerful Sooners wrapped up their eighth straight Big Seven Conference football championship Saturday afternoon as they defeated Coach Bill Glassford's Cornhuskers 41 to 0.

This was Glassford's final game as head coach of the Nebraska eleven despite the fact that the Huskers finished second in the conference for the second straight year. This was quite an accomplishment for a team that was picked earlier to have a very dismal season.

Both the coaching staff and team must be congratulated on a job well done.

The same afternoon as the big championship game Dal Ward's

Colorado team which was dropped 37 to 20 just a week earlier rebounded to soundly defeat Iowa State 40 to 0. This game moved Colorado into a tie for third place in the conference with Kansas State.

The Buffs gained nearly 400 yards to less than one hundred for their opponents in the rout which was witnessed by a dismal crowd of only 12,500 in Boulder. This dropped the Cyclones into a fifth place tie with Kansas.

In another Big Seven game Kansas University won its first loop contest in two years as they upset Missouri 13 to 7 and shoved the Tigers into the cellar and their worst season since 1935.

Substitute quarterback Dave Ureston sparked the Jayhawkers as he passed 19 yards to End Lynn McCarthy for the winning tally in the third period, to thrill approximately 30 thousands Kansas homecoming fans, who witnessed the game which was tied 7 to 7 at halftime.
