

NU Committee Relates Changes

Three changes were announced Wednesday in the membership and administration of the Faculty Senate Subcommittee on Student Publications by William Harper, committee member and Treasurer of the Student Activities Fund announced.

Robert Knoll, Assistant Professor of English, was appointed chairman of the committee by Phillip Colbert, Dean of Student Affairs, Harper said. Knoll replaces Mabel Strong, Assistant Professor of English.

Also appointed to the committee were William Hall, Professor of Journalism and Director of the School of Journalism, and Lyle Young, Assistant Professor of Engineering. Young and Hall fill positions vacated by Strong and Frank Hallgren, Associate Dean of Student Affairs.

Other members of the subcommittee are C. Bertrand Schultz, Professor of Geology; Ken Keller, Assistant Director of Public Relations, Harper and student representatives Pat Coover, Marvin Breslow and Biff Keyes.

Other business transacted Tuesday by the subcommittee included a recommendation of a set of policies to guide the staff of the Cornhusker. The recommendations included the outlining of more uniform practices in the use of space and the charges for it, according to Harper.

According to Linda Butman, editor of the Cornhusker, the subcommittee made some changes in the editorial staff of the Cornhusker.

Another senior member was added to the staff as associate editor increasing the number of associate editors to two. The new associate editor replaces the present layout editor. The two associate editors and the editor will be in charge of copy and engravings. The former job was in the hands of the managing editor.

Miss Butman stated that the changes were made because "it was felt the senior staff would be able to produce a better relationship between the copy and the layout and that valuable talent was being lost by retaining only two of the junior managing editors."

Gene Spence, business manager of the Cornhusker, announced that cards will be sent out to campus organizations this spring inquiring if they desire space in the 1958 annual. Organizations returning a positive reply will be sent contracts next fall.

Ivy Day Sing Rules For Men Announced

The official Ivy Day rules for men's organized houses were announced Tuesday by Bob Schuyler, Ivy Day chairman. They are:

1. Song names should be submitted to Bob Schuyler at 1425 R St. by 6 p.m. April 9. In case of duplication, the fraternity that first submitted the song will hold precedence.

2. Song groups will be limited to 25 men who meet the usual University eligibility requirements.

3. Names of men singing in each fraternity song group must be submitted in alphabetical order to Schuyler by April 12. Eligibility will be checked through the office of Student Affairs.

4. No song which was sung by any fraternity in last year's Ivy Day Sing may be sung in this year's sing.

5. Medleys will not be allowed.

6. Songs will be judged on the basis of tone quality, interpretation, balance, attention to the director and originality of selection.

7. The order in which each fraternity will compete on Ivy Day will be ascertained by a drawing of numbers at a later date. The song director of each fraternity will be notified at this time.

8. Costumes will be prohibited.

9. An entry fee of three dollars to help defray the expense of the meals, transportation, etc., of the judges must be paid before a fraternity will be allowed to compete.

Hungarian Student: Martin Says Project 'Fizzling Out' At NU

Dr. John Martin, assistant professor of journalism, has accused the Hungarian Student Project of "fizzling out," maintaining that the original enthusiasm of the students has petered down and the burden is now borne by one or two students.

Both the students and the administration have failed in their duty to the Hungarian students, he charged.

In a special interview with the Daily Nebraskan, Martin stated that "We have a public relations job to the United States. If the students are unfavorably impressed with America the effect will be detrimental both on them and on other people with whom they come in contact."

Martin claimed that the administration of the University opposed the bringing of the students to the campus in the first place and are now failing to take their proper responsibility towards them.

The five Hungarian students now on campus feel "left out" and "as though life is passing them by," he said.

Martin suggested that more students attempt to include the Hungarians in activities and that more students attempt to find them jobs.

"The University ought to be able to find jobs for these students right here on campus," he stated.

Two Named To Fill John Selleck's Post

Joseph Soshnik has been appointed Comptroller of the University and Carl Donaldson was named business manager by the Board of Regents.

Both positions are presently filled by John Selleck, former University Chancellor, who is scheduled to retire in July.

Dr. Soshnik is now director of the Department of Management and University auditor at Creighton University in Omaha. He comes to the University highly recommended by The Very Rev. Carl Reinert, S. J. president of Creighton.

Dr. Soshnik joined the Creighton staff as an instructor in management in 1946 and has served as auditor and budget consultant since 1952, the year he earned his doctorate in business organization and management from the University. Donaldson has been with the NU business office since 1928 and was appointed director of the purchasing and procurement department in 1948.

He will take charge of the University's physical plant including all buildings, grounds and equipment and will supervise the employing of all non-academic and non-administrative personnel.

Eugene Ingram was appointed director of purchases and procurement to replace Donaldson. He has been assistant director since 1951.

Women Frosh Scholarship Established

An annual $180 scholarship for a University freshman woman has been established by the Associated Women Students' Board through the University Foundation, it was announced today.

Perry Branch, Foundation director-secretary, said the scholarship recipients must be "worthy of financial assistance and have character, leadership and academic accomplishments indicating success in their chosen field."

The University's general scholarship awards committee will select the recipient each year.

Carol Link, president of the student group, signed the agreement with the Foundation.

Faculty Resignations Double Normal Rate

The resignations of 38 faculty members at the Board of Regents meeting Tuesday brought forth a discussion of the seriousness of the situation at the University by the Board and the Chancellor.

The Chancellor emphasized that the competition is still as strong as ever and, in fact, is increasing.

The Regents received and approved 38 resignations which, coupled with previous resignations, meant that instructors were leaving the University at twice the normal rate of turnover, according to Chancellor Hardin.

When asked by whether the attitude of the Legislature was hurting the University and adding to the outflow of people, the Chancellor said "The people cannot be blamed for leaving and since they are looking for long range security, as is anyone, the delaying and debating of the Legislature cannot help their peace of mind."

Arthur Thompson added to the comments by saying: "People don't want their salaries depending on the whims of the weather man. Somethings must be done to insure security and advancement of our faculty."

James Stuart, President of the Nebraska Alumni Association, stated: "This is my first experience first hand with the seriousness of the situation. The idea of losing 38 people from the staff at one meeting is very disquieting."

In the same vein, Clarence Swanson added: "People who do not see the first hand examples of the situation do not realize how critical the situation is."

Among the resignations were: —Dr. Varro Tyler, Jr., associate professor of pharmacology and chairman of the department, effective next September. A staff member since 1953, he has accepted a similar position at University of Washington. A native of Auburn, he was graduated from Nebraska City High School.

—Dr. Roy Matelski, associate professor of agronomy, effective April 18. Dr. Matelski has accepted a similar position at Penn State University. He has been a member of the staff since 1947.

—Dr. James Fisher, assistant professor of geology, effective Aug. 31. A staff member since 1955, he has accepted a faculty position at Michigan State University.

—Dr. Charles Riley, assistant professor of geology, effective Sept. 1. He has been assistant professor of geology at Arkansas, where he was an assistant professor. He earned his Doctor of Philosophy degree from Iowa State College in 1956.

—Kenneth Pruess, as assistant entomologist at North Platte Experiment Station, effective April 1. Since 1954, he has been research assistant in entomology at Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station. In Nebraska, he will do full-time research on wheat cutworm.

—Dr. James Vance, Jr., as assistant professor of geography, effective Sept. 1. He has been assistant professor of geography at University of Wyoming since 1955.

—Sabri Sungu, as assistant professor of mechanical engineering, effective Sept. 1. A native of Turkey, he has been a part-time instructor for the past two years in Turkey. He obtained his Master of Science degree in mechanical engineering at University of Michigan in 1942.

—E. John Staba, as assistant professor and acting chairman of the department of pharmacology. Mr. Staba is now working on his Doctor of Philosophy degree, which he expects to receive next August from the University of Connecticut.

In other action, the Board of Regents: Appointed Lee Chatfield as director of the Junior Division and Counseling Service, with the rank of professor. Mr. Chatfield has served as acting director since May, 1956.

Named Dr. Harold Wise as associate dean of the Graduate College, effective July 1. Dr. Wise has been serving as acting dean since last summer.

At its Feb. 2 meeting, the Board named Dr. John Weaver, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences at Kansas State College, as dean of the Graduate College, effective July 1.
