Reliable sources indicate that the Budget Committee, now through with its hearings, is going to send to the Legislature a budget recommendation including a substantial reduction in the University budget, according to The Lincoln Star.

The University has requested a $5.5 million dollar increase over the amount appropriated for the 1955-57 fiscal biennium.

Governor Victor Anderson recommended the University be allowed $3,200,000 of that increase, but reports in the Star from "reliable sources" indicate the Budget Committee has decided to cut the governor's recommendation by a "substantial amount."

Senator Karl Vogel, chairman of the Budget Committee, said, when contacted by a Daily Nebraskan reporter Thursday night, "The Budget Committee has made no report. Any information received now is entirely premature and without foundation."

When asked if he were denying the report, Senator Vogel said, "I am making no statement."

Chancellor Hardin, contacted late Thursday night, said that he had "no comment" to make.

"The Budget committee has not contacted me about this matter," the chancellor said. "Therefore I feel that I should not make a statement at this time."

Gov. Victor Anderson could not be reached for comment.

James Pittenger, assistant to the Chancellor said, "I didn't know anything about this. This is a serious matter."

Dean of Faculties, Adam Breckinridge, stated that he "was not aware but if this is true it is shocking."

Other members of the Budget Committee contacted had no statements. The consensus of the members contacted was that any statement on the Star article would have to come from Senator Vogel.

It has been evident throughout the current session of the Legislature that the powerful appropriations committee was taking a thorough look at the budget requests of every state agency with an eye to shaving off as much money as possible.

The same source that reported the University budget was to be cut by a substantial amount also reported, according to the Lincoln Star, that the entire state budget would be cut from one to two million dollars below that recommended by the Governor.

The Budget Committee is scheduled to windup its final vote on Friday.

The budget controversy in the legislature began last month when the Chancellor presented his proposed budget to the legislative budget committee.

Vogel told the chancellor, "Go over and have your men make substantial cuts. If you don't we'll have to. If the time was right, we'd give you everything you asked for and maybe more."

The major portion of the budget asked by Hardin is for increases in salaries paid to University faculty. Hardin proposes raising faculty salaries by $2,484,292 and spending $833,031 on hiring new faculty.

There is also an increase provided for the Medical Hospital in Omaha. Dr. J.P. Tollman, dean of medical college has stated that "two wards in the hospital have been vacated to save on funds."

Of the $879,783 proposed increase for the University Hospital budget, Hardin has stated that $130,000 would go toward putting hospital employees on a 40 hour work week.

The rest of the 5.5 million dollar increase would go for fixed charges, Ag Extension Service, Experimental Stations, Extension Service, the 40 hour week in Lincoln and maintenance.

Hardin said he was not "proposing anything to keep up with Big 10 schools." In answer to committee questions, he stated "the University now is considering adding two hours to the class day (a committee has since been appointed to study the feasibility of conducting classes at 7 a.m. and at noon). This is in line with anticipated student enrollment increases of 600 to 700 during the next year."

The second appearance of Hardin before the budget committee saw the senators remain adamant. The committee discussed raising tuition by as much as $30 and charging for parking on campus.

When asked if there presently was a fee for parking on the University campus, Hardin answered, "Yes, we sell the students a hunting license. However, parking is another one of our problems and it would be hard to raise any great revenue from it."

Hardin also stated that raising tuition by $30 would give the University a maximum of approximately a million dollars in tuition. He said, "If a raise in tuition is going to come the money gained from it 'should be used for the teaching program — adding to the staff.'"

The three areas that would be hardest hit by the cuts proposed by the governor would be the program to add to the faculty, the medical college hospital and agricultural extension and experiment service.

"I am terribly concerned about this hospital thing, Hardin stated at the second hearing. "With this cut we wouldn't be able to operate the hospital in all its wards."

Hardin also told the senators that the proposed two million dollar increase in salaries is conservative. "The competition from other institutions is greater than we thought. We should really have more to compete with them on their own level."

A twenty per cent turnover in University faculty, double the usual rate, was attributed by Hardin to be due in part to lack of sufficient salary.

He has consistently pointed out that the University must compete for its instructors not only with other universities, but also with the field of industry.

Hardin pointed out Wednesday that the three men quitting in the geology department at the University are from 27 to 42 years of age, "the group we would hope to build on."

New Director: Ingram Set To Direct Purchases

Eugene O. Ingram, 33, assistant to the director of purchases and procurement at the University, was elevated to the position of director Tuesday afternoon by the Board of Regents.

He succeeds Carl A. Donaldson, who was named University business manager.

Mr. Ingram joined the University staff in 1948 as buyer and later was named assistant to the director in 1951.

He earned his Bachelor of Science degree in business administration from the University in 1948. From 1941-42, he attended Nebraska Wesleyan University.

Active in the Lincoln Junior Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Ingram was chairman of the board of directors and this past year was chairman of the Lincoln Heart Fund appeal and lieutenant general in the Community Chest drive.

Temperatures Set To Stay About Same

Not much temperature change is expected by the Weather Bureau for the University campus area. Occasional light snow and light rain is predicted for today, with lows near 28 degrees and highs near 38 degree today.

Moderate to fresh northerly winds may accompany the rain and snow, the bureau said.

The NU campus was lucky Thursday by missing the high winds and heavy snow that began in north central Nebraska bearing out the blizzard prediction. Roads were blocked in the Rushville and Chadron area Thursday, the Omaha Safety Patrol office said.

The late spring storm, battering sections of the Midwest, was expected to make a savage thrust into north central Nebraska.

Parking Lots

In Wednesday's Student Council meeting, Dave Keene, student representative on the university's special parking committee stated that two University parking lots, one located near 17th & Vine and the other just north of Avery Ave., were not being utilized to their full capacity. Keene added, however, that if the University would open a parking lot for 500 cars "we have evidence to show that it would be filled over night."

Suspended Students:

Regents Approve Colbert Desire To Readmit Rioters

The Board of Regents approved the request of Dean Phillip Colbert of the Division of Student Affairs that he be permitted to re-admit at his own discretion students who were suspended for being involved in the student riot on April 14, 1955.

At the time of the suspension, the board passed a resolution stating that the suspended students would be reinstated upon approval of the chancellor.

In other action, the Board:

Approved the recommendation of Dr. Floyd Hoover, registrar, that all entering students obtain physical examinations from their family physicians. In past years, the University has administered the examinations. Anticipated enrollments, Dr. Hoover said, makes it impossible to continue with the service.

Accepted grants totaling $137,424 for research work.

Authorized John Selleck, business manager, to retain a firm of engineers to prepare plans for the immediate installation of a new boiler and extension of steam distribution system at the College of Medicine. The extension will connect the University's plant with the proposed Children's Rehabilitation Center.

Four Proposals: Council Debates Parking

Dave Keene, student representative on the newly appointed committee which is studying the University parking problem, read four suggestions to the committee to the Student Council, Wednesday.

The following possible solutions were offered to the Council for discussion by Keene:

1. Keene stated that the cards students fill out lack some essential information and posed the question of whether the Student Council should help revamp them.
2. The possibility of restricting parking was listed as a topic for discussion by the committee, Keene said.
3. The committee, according to Keene, discussed the possibility of prohibiting freshmen and sophomores from parking during the rush hours. He stated, however, that the committee was in doubt as to how many cars this would eliminate.
4. Council president, Bruce Bruggman, stated that at the Big-7 Student Council Conference several schools had initiated this plan and stated that it didn't work.
5. Keene mentioned the necessity of publicizing the fact that many of the University parking lots are not filled during the busiest hours. The committee was also distressed, Keene said, over the fact that some students are taking their fathers to work and then using the University facilities to park for only a dollar a semester as opposed to downtown parking rates of almost $15 per month.
6. Harry Dingman, chairman of the general election, stated that 40 Student Council applications have been taken out at the office of student affairs.
7. The possibility of the Council purchasing some 125 "Student Chevrons" was discussed by Monroe Usher. A straw vote indicated almost unanimous opposition to such a plan.

Terry Carpenter:

Misquote Causes Budget Controversy

By RON WARHOLSKI
Copy Editor

The controversy and exchange of words between the Board of Regents and the Legislature, principally Regent C. Y. Thompson of West Point and Senator Terry Carpenter, is the result of a misquote in the Lincoln Star.

The Star reported that Regent Thompson had made this statement at the Board of Regents meeting Tuesday: "People want to go somewhere the salary does not depend on the whims of the Legislature."

Senator Carpenter, the next day, said that he was "concerned and astounded at such a statement."

The statement actually made by Regent Thompson was "People want to go somewhere where the salary does not depend on the whims of the weatherman."

When contacted by the Daily Nebraskan, Regent Thompson confirmed the misquote and said "My only contention was that a University is not an institution which can be let down one year and built up the next. The tax base should be broadened to allow for ample funds for the University. No insult to the integrity of the Legislature was meant or implied."

Senator Carpenter, when informed of the misquote, said "I presumed that what was said in the paper was correct. If I had known that the statement was a misquote, I would have made no comment at all."

Clarence Swanson, another Regent, said "Senator Carpenter was misinformed as to what was said at the meeting. The Regents realize that the legislature and particularly Mr. Carpenter has the interest of the University at heart."

Both the representative of the Lincoln Journal and the representative of the Daily Nebraskan who covered the Regents Meeting concurred that the statement made used the word weatherman instead of Legislature.

The statements were made concerning the resignations of 37 faculty members at the Regent's meeting. The comments resulted from the concern which the Regents and the President of the Nebraska Alumni Association felt over the situation of faculty salaries.

The chancellor has asked a general salary increase of 14 per cent for present administrative and academic personnel. This is contained in a $2.4 million additional request in the proposed budget.
