

Cold, Wet Predicted For Vital Buff Series

Siebler To Duel With CU's Standout Puleo; Lewis Moves Into Team Batting Lead

"Cold and wet!" was what baseball coach Tony Sharpe said when he was asked for a prediction on the crucial three-game series that is scheduled to begin with Colorado this afternoon. If the weather man can hold out, there will be a single game this afternoon beginning at 3 o'clock and a double header tomorrow starting at 1 p.m.

Sweep A Must
Coach Sharpe said that the Huskers must sweep this series in order to remain in top contention for the conference title. He will be pitting his top pitchers, Dweight Siebler and Charlie Ziegenbein, against a comparatively weak Colorado batting lineup in the first two contests. The Buffs have a team average of .210. He is yet undecided about the starter in the third game, but he indicated that Lefty Hevner may get the nod. Colorado has five left-handed batters in their lineup.

Sharpe said that Al Karle has sufficiently recovered from a bruised heel and will be starting at shortstop. This switch will make it necessary to move either Gil Dunne or Doug Sieler over to second base. The rest of the starting lineup will be about the same as it has been with Gary Reimers in center field, Larry

Lewis, the leading batter at .429 in right field, Jim Kane, catch, Gene Torczon in left, Ken Ruisinger on first, Jerry McKay on third, and Siebler, pitch. Ruisinger has been working out on the mound and may get a pitching assignment during this series. Torczon, who was the leading batter, dropped down to .333 for second place but is still way out in front in the RBI department with 19 runs batted in.

Pueblo Leads

The weak hitting of the Colorado Buffaloes has been considerably offset by a strong pitching staff, which is led by Joe Puleo who has not allowed an earned run in conference action to date. The Buffs have a team batting average of only .210, and they have only gotten 26 hits in 6 conference games. First baseman Chuck McIntyre is the only regular over the .300 mark with a .333.

Buff coach Frank Prentup plans to start Puleo, Bill Subry, 1-2, and probably Del Ritchhart, 0-1, in the three games. Sophomore Don Hoyt may get the nod in one of the contests.

Nebraska and Colorado are tied for fourth in the Big Eight Conference with records of 3 wins and 3 losses. Oklahoma State with a 5-1 mark is flying high and may be tough to beat. The Huskers are two games behind the league leaders but could be pressing if they should sweep the Colorado series.

Oklahoma State's Cowboys suffered their first loss in Big Eight baseball action this week but managed to hold on to their first place rung in the conference standings.

The Cowboys split a double header with perennial contender, Oklahoma Tuesday, winning the second game 9-1 after dropping a 4-3 heart-breaker in the opener. The split gave other conference squads little opportunity to analyze the relative strength of the two teams from the land of red dirt and black oil but this weekend's contests should be revealing.

This weekend Oklahoma State will be at Kansas for a three game set. The Jayhawks figure to make it tough for anyone trying to get in the championship door. Kansas has a squad composed almost exclusively of returning lettermen from last year's fourth place finishers so this week's Lawrence series should prove vital.

Iowa State At Oklahoma
Iowa State will travel to Oklahoma's Norman camp to try to get their last year's championship squad back on the track.

In results last week, Colorado took two of three from Kansas State. The wins moved the Buffs into a tie with Nebraska for fourth in the conference. Nebraska and Colorado will settle the disputed position in a three game series in Lincoln Friday and Saturday.

Missouri's slugging Tigers were rained out of a Saturday doubleheader with Kansas, but had enough time to bomb the Jayhawks vaunted pitching for a 25-14 win in the Friday encounter.

The victory gave the Tigers undisputed possession of second place, a half game behind Oklahoma State. Oklahoma is third.

Huskers Take Two

In other results, Nebraska took two of three from Iowa State. Dwight Siebler, the Husker's unbeaten righthander, mowed down the Cyclones in the Friday game 16-6 while Charlie Ziegenbein won the first half of the Saturday doubleheader 7-3. Iowa State came back for a 13-6 third game victory.

Soccer Club

The University of Nebraska Soccer Club will open their spring soccer tournament this Sunday at Peter Pan Park at 5 p.m. when they meet the Young German club from Omaha.

Starting for the Huskers will be Steve Takacs, Martin Carracedo, Fernando Lagos, Les Heathcote, Bob Bone, Ali Gundour, Albert Arregunaga, Martin Bowden, Ladislav Bednar, Vagn Christensen and Mausour Melak.

Four Husker Relay Teams Headed For Drake Event

... Pollard Only Individual Entry

This weekend the Nebraska track team will invade the Drake Relays in Des Moines Ia. and the Huskers will have their eyes on a national mark they barely missed last year.

The mark is held by Missouri in the 480-yard shuttle hurdle relay. The Tigers set the record of 58.8 when they beat Nebraska by a scant two-tenths of a second. The shuttle team will consist of Keith Young, Bill Hawkins, Bill Marten and the fabulous Keith Gardner. All but Young ran on last year's team. His place was taken by Ken Pollard.

Four Others Entered
Nebraska will also enter four other relay teams in hopes of improving on their showing in the Kansas Relays. The first team to see action will be the sprint medley foursome. The event is an invitational affair and Nebraska has drawn the fastest heat. They will be matched with Texas, Texas A and M, Oklahoma, Houston and Kansas. Oklahoma set a world mark last week at the Kansas Relays with a 3:19.5 timing. Keith Gardner will run the 440, followed by Keith Young and Dick Jahr both running 220s. Mike Fleming, who clipped off a 1:53.0 880 in Kansas, will run the last 880 yards.

The 440 yard tandem will see their first action in the preliminaries Friday when they try to qualify for the finals on Saturday. The Huskers, who are capable of going under 41 seconds, will be pressed to beat the Kansas Relay champion Texas crew. Texas holds the world mark which they set last year in the Kansas Relays. Keith Gardner will be lead-off man followed by Keith Young, Tom Hodson or Dick Jahr, and Don Philipps, who will run the last leg.

The 880-yard relay team will also see preliminary action Friday. Keith Gardner will again run the first leg. He will be followed in order by Keith Young, Tom Hodson and Dick Jahr.

There is a possibility that Don Philipps will take Gardner's place in the preliminaries as he did at the Kansas Relays. Both Gardner and Young are running on four relay teams. This is a total of seven races in two days.

The last relay team to see action will be the two-mile quartet. The relay is run in two sections. Leading off for Nebraska will be Ken Ash. Joe Mullins will run the next leg followed by Knolly Barnes and anchor man Mike Fleming.

Ken Pollard will be the only individual competitor. He will be entered in the pole vault on Saturday.

Spring Day: Jennings Promises Game Drill

Spring Day, which in the past has featured intra-house rivalries, will come up with a new twist this year—intra-class rivalry. The freshmen will be trying to outtell the upperclassmen at the newest Spring Day attraction, a freshman-varsity football game.

Game Conditions

Tom Smith, in charge of the event, made arrangements with coach Bill Jennings to stage a full-dress scrimmage under actual game conditions. The squad will be divided with the freshmen facing the sophomores and the juniors. The game will begin at 4 o'clock in Memorial Stadium. All freshmen will sit in the East Stadium and cheer for their own team, while the upperclassmen will take their positions across the way in the West Stadium. Smith believes that the attraction may be one of the highlights of Spring Day events, for it will give the student body a chance to get an early preview of the Husker football team under game conditions.

Coach Jennings cited several players who will be the men to watch in the contest. Max Martz, speedy halfback from the varsity, and Pat Fischer, Martz's counterpart on the frosh team, have dazzled in early drills. Dick McCashland, a converted center, is also showing up well in the backfield for the upperclassmen as is John Minnick in the line for the freshmen.

Heavy rains forced drills to be called off Wednesday, but things were going in full swing against yesterday. The postponed practice will probably be made up next Tuesday barring any conflicts in players' class schedules. All in all, the squad should be in pretty fair shape for the exhibition game a week from today. Complete rosters will appear in the Daily Nebraskan early next week.
