Parties, Pinnings
Highlight Weekend

By Sue Healey
 News of weekend Greek activities and a host of pinnings and engagements greeted the social editor today.
 Zeta Tau Alpha girls took their dates to a "Sock Hop" in the basement of the house Friday. The dimly-lighted room represented a harvest scene with leaves, pumpkins and cornstalks.
 Chickens and "about 200 people" crowded into the Kappa Sigma house for a "Barn Dance" Saturday. Hay bales and sawdust, horse collars and lanterns helped to furnish appropriate atmosphere.
 "She Delta Theta of 1958" is Monica Ross, a Phi Beta Phi junior in Teachers from Gibbon. She was named at the annual Phi Delta Theta party Saturday night.

Ag Expects 500; Four Talks Stated

Approximately 500 persons are expected to attend Home Economics Day on the Ag campus today.

Speakers, panel discussions and open house in the dormitories will mark the event. Any homemaker in the state may attend.

Dr. Lemo Dennis Rockwood, a former professor of family relationships at Cornell University, will be the featured speaker. She will talk on "Do Six Rooms Make a World?"

Chancellor Clifford Hardin will speak during the morning. Mrs. John Bieggert and Mrs. Rex Ruchsdasel, Home Economics Section of Organized Agriculture officers, will preside.

Mrs. John Steele will talk about home and family life in Turkey illustrated with slides and pictures. Vern Pangborn will moderate a panel discussion on "Planning for Ourselves as Tomorrow's Elder Citizens."

Home Economics club members will sell beverages and desserts during the day. Agriculture students will help with ushering.

Events begin at 9 a.m. and last until 3 p.m.

Arnold Air Society

All cadets interested in joining the Arnold Air Society should attend a meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. in Room 203 of the M&N Building.

...Columns

The resignation letter of the columnists further stated: "One of the other undersigned columnists has, however, taken a stand on the Tribunal which is contradictory to the Rag's views. Some time ago he was told that he should not express his views on this matter, because they included the opinion that our newspaper had been biased and in bad taste in its reporting as well as its editorializing of this issue."

Letterip Is Open

The editor, to this charge, commented that he had only followed the same policy Shugrue had and that any other editor would follow in this type of situation. He emphasized that the Letterip column was always open to adverse comments on the paper.

The columnists' letter added: "Though the others of us do not necessarily agree with his views in this matter, we must take issue with your refusal to let him publish those views."

"Moreover, we cannot in all conscience submit our views for publication in such a newspaper when we have no control over them from the time they leave our hands, when they are subject to the alleged discretion of the editor so that they may appear as only partial representations of our opinions."

"Therefore, we ask that you either accept the resignations of the undersigned or make public a new policy of freedom for us and for those who may succeed us in our jobs. In addition, we insist that if our conditions are met, you reinstate all of us."

Denies Charge

Hines denied that he had ever purposely edited views of the columnists when in opposition to his, although he had insisted on good taste and not allowed the persons—as columnists—to criticize in their articles a paper of which they were supposedly an important part.

The editor said that he was somewhat surprised that Shugrue would join Basoco and Schultz in objecting to a policy which Shugrue imposed originally on the grounds that it was the only logical manner for an editor to manage columnists.

Hines added that he was not opposed to printing arguments not in agreement with his as long as they were not by columnists interested only in turning clever phrases to the destruction of the paper. He reported that he had told Dave Keene Monday that if stories on the Tribunal were incorrect, that Keene could submit a report of these errors and that they would be printed. Keene was instrumental in establishment of the Tribunal.

"I am not opposed to freedom of expression, but I am opposed to allowing persons connected with the paper to write articles not in its welfare. Anyone else," Hines said, "may criticize it freely. And this is, as far as I know, the only way a paper is ever operated."

Ex-Housemother Dies

Mrs. Myra Cox, 73, former housemother for Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, died last week in Polk, Neb., following a lingering illness.

Outside World

The Russians aren't as satisfied with their education system as the United States thinks. Nikita Khrushchev recently ordered the system of Soviet Education changed. It was turning out an "inordinate number" of misfits.

The Soviet system has been subject to frequent change since the revolution.

Jets to Service City

Lincoln will be served by small jets or turboprop aircraft by or before 1965, according to an official of the United Air Lines.

John M. Hodgson told Lincoln Rotary Club members that as many as 40,000 passengers will be handled from Lincoln as compared to the 592 served in 1928, when the airlines began its service here.

Gas War Rages

A small gas war is raging among a majority of independent service stations along the Cornhusker Highway north of Lincoln.

The stations are selling regular for as low as 22.9 cents and ethyl for 26.9 cents per gallon, according to James Weaver, Weaver Oil Co.

The war apparently originated when a new independent station on the highway sold gas five cents cheaper, said major brand station officials.

Weaver said that the conflict is a local situation which the stations are trying to isolate from town.

Cooler Weather

Partly cloudy skies and cooler weather is predicted for most of the state today. Daytime temperatures will be in the 50's.

Peterson Blasts U.S. Complacency

Complacency is the Number One weakness of the West in the cold war, Dr. Wallace Peterson, associate professor of economics told Phi Beta Kappa at their first fall meeting Tuesday.

"We seem to treat the whole matter as a kind of gigantic world series in which the virtuous Yankees are sure to win out in the end."

There is "no inherent reason why western civilization will survive." Instead, he maintained it must "find the means and the will" to do so.

Americans must realize, he said, that they can afford to do whatever is necessary for defense. Dr. Peterson observed that in western Europe there is "fear and uncertainty about the continuing ability of the United States to defend the west."

The United States should be spending more money for aid "that really counts—economic aid for rapid development—rather than for aid aimed at creating alliances that are of 'doubtful military value," he stated.

Ivy Wisdom: Don't Dunk!

Among the more serious of problems noted in exchange college papers recently was a bit in the Syracuse Daily Orange.

A worried coed wrote in to the "Dear Toby" column "When I'm down at the DH I often see people dunk their doughnuts. Is this the ivy thing to do?"

The advice came back that if said coed was having lunch with the chancellor, this would probably not be the thing to do.

Social Institute Features Larsen

More than 175 persons are expected for the annual Nebraska Social Work Institute to be held Thursday and Friday in the Union.

Dr. Garnet Larson, University associate professor of social work, will lead a group section concerning "Services in the Aid to Dependent Children Program."

At the Friday luncheon, Everett Peterson, University extension agricultural economist, will speak on "Nebraska Tomorrow."
