

SHEINWOLD ON BRIDGE

Three Unblocks Needed for Slam

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
In some hands the tricks are there for the taking. The problem is to get out of your own way so that you can lead from the hand that has winning tricks.

Bridge hand diagram showing North-South vulnerable, North hand (K, K104, AKQ, KJ5432), West hand (J98743, None, J764, 1098), East hand (Q1065, J876, 5, AQ76), South hand (A3, AQ9532, 109832, None), and a trump suit of hearts.

You trump the first club and lead the ace of trumps. By leading the ace (or queen) of trumps first you can guard against four trumps in either opponent's hand. When West discards a spade on the first trump, you must play the ten of hearts from dummy. This is your first unblocking play. You continue with a trump to dummy's king. Sooner or later you will lead another trump from dummy, and your unblocking play will permit you to win a finesse in your own hand with the nine of hearts. If you had kept the ten of hearts you would have to stay in dummy.

MORE UNBLOCKING
Before you can afford to continue the trumps you must get dummy's king of spades out of the way. That will allow you to cash the ace of spades later on. The third unblock is in diamonds. If you draw East's trumps before touching diamonds, you will use up all but one of your trumps. Then three rounds of diamonds will leave you in the dummy. Your one remaining trump will get you back to your hand, but your diamonds will still be unestablished. The right way to unblock the diamonds is to cash the king of diamonds before you get out of dummy, right after taking the king of spades. Then lead dummy's low trump to finesse the nine. Lead the queen of trumps to draw East's jack, and discard the queen of diamonds from dummy. The final step is to lead the ace of spades from your hand and discard the ace of diamonds from dummy!

You can now lead the ten of diamonds to force out West's jack, and you are sure of getting back to your hand for the rest of the diamonds because you still have a trump. You don't often get so spectacular a hand, but unblocking is necessary dozens of times per session. If you play to know the principles. DAILY QUESTION Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: What do you say? Answer: Bid two clubs. Your hand would be worth a jump to three clubs if you had slightly better heart support or a stronger club suit. As it is, save the jump for later.

J-Schoolers To Publish Newspaper

Journalism students will publish a special edition today in conjunction with the primary election. More than 40 reporters, photographers and an editing class will compile enough material for a regular-size newspaper. Two pages of the information will actually be printed in the school's typography laboratory. Herb Probasco, Ned Totman and Dave Calhoun will act as editors for the three shifts which will work during the day election and night. Reporters will visit polling places in Lincoln, party headquarters and the election commissioner's office. Others will cover police, court house and state house beats. Faculty advisers include Dr. Robert Cranford, Neale Copple, Ray Morgan and James Morrison. Dr. Cranford commented, "Covering an election is a unique experience, and we are not passing up an opportunity to let our students try it." Journalism students published a similar edition in November, 1953. Cranford said as far as he knows the University J-School is the only one where students actually publish an election paper.
