I Was Just Trying It On For Size.

By Bob Warner

Recently a science symposium presented a forum for discussion of the political and economic abuses that are widespread in society. This symposium was one of the several held during the week of March 30 at the University of Nebraska. Among the topics discussed were the relationship between government and the people, the role of the media in shaping public opinion, and the impact of technology on democracy. The symposium was attended by a large number of students and faculty members, and the proceedings were widely reported in the media. The symposium was organized by the Nebraska Student Association, and it is hoped that similar events will be held in the future to promote a greater understanding of the political process and to encourage meaningful participation in civic life.
