

Baseballers To KSU— Team Hopes To Climb From Big Eight Cellar

The Husker baseballers leave this afternoon for Manhattan, Kansas, for a three-game series with the Wildcats...

The Huskers will be out to boost themselves into seventh place in the Big Eight by defeating the Kansas Staters in at least two out of their three games.

The Huskers are now 2-10 in the league following last weekend's doubleheader victory over Colorado. Kansas State's record is a close 2-7.

Coach Tony Sharpe has seen definite improvement in the team, especially on the mound and in the field. He commented that Tom Larsen, Bob Hergenrader, and George Flock were all coming along well with pitching duties and George Landgren was especially providing his worth in relief.

However, it is hitting that has been hurting the Huskers, and Kansas State has a couple of tough hurlers waiting for them even if the Wildcats' hitting isn't so tough.

Sharpe went on to say that Kansas State has never had as good a club defensively before this year, but that their hitting will be their weak point.

Al Bolte and Bill Frasier will probably start the doubleheader Friday for the Wildcats. Frasier took Missouri into extra innings several weeks ago as the Staters lost 2-1.

Oklahoma had to work for 14 innings to finally nudge the stubborn Kansans 5-4 against Bolte.

Sharpe will go with the 1-2 sophomore southpaw punch in the form of Larsen and Hergenrader with Landgren in relief in either game. Saturday will see George Flock on the mound.

Randy Harris still leads the team in hitting with a .286 average. However, no one else has been hitting the ball consistently enough to give the Huskers the clutch hits they have needed.

Another new face in the lineup this weekend may be Denny Gemar playing in center field. Gemar has been hitting the ball hard and Sharpe wants to give him a chance.

If Gemar doesn't start, the line-up will be as follows: Harris 2b, Gaughan 3b, Tunison If, Brenning 1b, Douglas rf, Roux ss, Johnson cf, and Borneschlegel c.
