has become a serious problem according to a recent article in a national magazine. A writer charges, "College students steal. They steal more each year than the safeguardi year before."

The security chief for one Big Ten school countered the charge saying that "We have no more crimes on campus than in any other populated area."

Fifteen Theft Reports

Capt. Eugene Masters, spots where it's difficult to Campus police chief, reported keep an eye on them. that "not too many" theft reports were made at his office. He said there were only securely locked at all times. about 15 such reports in the last month.

Some of the thefts were incidents of loss of bicycles, billfolds, clothing and purses. Most of the items reported stolen, though, were car accessories, Masters said.
