ART METHODS DISPLAY . . . of David Zufelt's elementary education class is made of "boxes and imagination."

Art Course Stimulates Imagination, Creativity

By Toni Victor
 Junior Staff Writer
 Silly dachshunds, grotesque spiders and cunning caterpillars—all made out of boxes and imagination. That was part of the class project in elementary education 106.
 Taught by David Zufelt, the course is mainly for elementary education majors and some art majors.
 "This is a course in art methods and materials," said Zufelt. "It helps teachers to explore the art media and become more intimately acquainted with the aspects of art," he continued.

Zufelt said that the purpose of the course is to show future teachers how to make art alive for children in the classroom.
 There are five sections of the course that meet in the all-purpose laboratory in the education building.
 In addition to the assignment in box sculpture, the students concentrate on paper sculpture, crayons, clay, linoleum blocks, plaster of Paris, stichery and, in general, the whole spectrum of art.
 The prime ingredient for success in the course according to Zufelt, is imagination.

He noted that the course seeks to bring out artistic talents that students fail to recognize.
 The class spent three class periods completing the fanciful animals made from all kinds of available materials.
 "If the students don't want their animals back, we usually take them to children in an orthopedic hospital and distribute the toys," Zufelt said.

 sible in such a group as Sane Nuclear Policy (SANE).
 "I see our organization as a more militant group than SANE," stated McSpadden.
 He noted that though the group's appeal must be broad enough to include many persons, the policies must "not be watered down."

McSpadden termed the organization as a "specific action group—a temporary committee to disband or expand according to the Viet Nam issue."

Some of the proposals for the group's attention were submitted by Davidson.
 These proposals include mailing information; distributing leaflets to churches, high schools, and theaters; picketing and marching on federal offices, military bases and war industries.

A meeting for open membership will be arranged in approximately two weeks. At this time specific actions will be suggested and carried out, McSpadden stated.

IDCC Approves Articles For Officers' Proceedings

Articles concerning duties, impeachment and recall of officers for an interterm council constitution were tentatively approved by the Interterm Coordinating Committee (IDCC) Tuesday evening.
 At the IDCC meeting in Abel Hall, Marv Almy, president, explained that the constitution drafting committee included proceedings such as impeachment and recall so that the constitution would eventually be approved by ASUN.
 Tom Holeman, Abel Hall, suggested that the committee look into the advantages and disadvantages of being approved by ASUN as an organization.
 The article about officers is a continuation, since the election of officers section was previously approved.
 It defines the duties of the four executive officers, the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer.
 Vacancies must be filled within one week by the established election procedure, the article states.
 Impeachment proceedings against executive officers may be initiated by a majority vote of the council and tried before the association court.

 Larry Anderson, Selleck Quadrangle, questioned whether only the executive officers should be subject to impeachment. He suggested that the council have the power to recommend individual residence halls to reconsider their representatives.
 Recall proceedings for an executive officer state that a special election will be held by petition of 25 per cent of the residents in 35 per cent of the residence halls.

 Representation to the proposed interterm council will be considered at the next IDCC meeting.

 Greg Andrews, IFC affairs chairman, noted that the University campus when it only had a population of 7,000 had supported two strong Jewish fraternities.

The weekly YWCA community luncheon at the United Campus Christian Fellowship Church will not be held this week.

Candidates Given Debate Chance

ASUN candidates for Senate in April 27's election are encouraged to debate and explain their platforms Thursday in the Nebraska Union main lounge, according to Dan Looker.
 Looker, assistant talks and topics chairman, said that Hyde Park will begin as usual at 3:30 p.m.

Instructor: Salary Unpaid

A University faculty member has said that the University owes him $1,500 in unpaid salary, but the college dean insists that he knows nothing about the claims.
 Rocco Vanasco, instructor in romance languages, maintains that the University owes him money because he is teaching six more hours than he was hired to teach.
 Walter Militzer, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, reported that he knew nothing about Vanasco's claims. He said Vanasco had discussed the matter briefly with him, but no settlement was made.
 Vanasco has said that he can press for the unpaid salary, but that he intends, instead, to ask the University to use it to establish two $750 scholarships for students in Italian.
 He said that if he is unsuccessful in obtaining the salary from the University, he will donate some of his own funds for the establishment of a scholarship.
 Vanasco has been on the University staff for a year and is leaving in August to teach at the University of Washington.

 gory or in terms of confidence in the school.
 Unless and until faculty begin to "believe that this is a great University," he said, "they will never be happy here."
 Communication
 A. C. Breckenridge, vice chancellor and dean of faculties, also commented that the University has failed to communicate its needs to the state and this has resulted in lack of funds.
 He said the University has been plagued with the chronic "inability to convince the people of the state that the University has needs that must be met."
 Another resigning faculty member, Robert Hiller, associate professor of Germanic languages, said he feels the University "has great difficulty hiring staff."
 Hiller did not suggest specific reasons why this would be so, but mentioned the school suffers from "a general lack of funds."
