Study Committee Plans Legislation For 18 Vote

By Toni Victor
Senior Staff Writer

Michigan's denial Tuesday of voting rights for 18-year-olds will have "no effect" on work for similar legislation in Nebraska, according to John Schrekinger, head of a Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth (NCCY) study group.

The Study Committee of Minimum Voting Age, an offshoot of the NCCY, approved a plan to work for the lowering of the Nebraska voting age to 18 Sunday. The decision came after several months of researching the feasibility and justifications for such a proposal.

Schrekinger, a junior at the University, noted that the group had gathered facts and figures on lower voting ages across the country — especially from the four states that have lower than 21 suffrage.

The Committee will recommend to the NCCY in early December that such a proposal be placed before the Legislature at the next session. With the approval of the NCCY, Schrekinger stated that the group would go ahead and submit a bill to lower the voting age to 18.

The group would then serve to interpret the bill across the state to various individuals and organizations, in an attempt to gather support.

Explaining that such a bill has died in committee four times in the past, Schrekinger said that it was mainly because no organized group was behind it.

Similar bills were proposed in 1945, 1947, 1953 and 1957. Each time it has been "indefinitely postponed," from lack of enthusiasm, according to Schrekinger.

There are four states that currently have voting ages lower than 21. Both Georgia and Kentucky allow 18-year-olds to vote in elections. Alaska and Hawaii have ages of 20 and 19, respectively.

"If Michigan had passed its proposal during the Tuesday election, it would have strengthened our position, but since it did not, we will still continue in our efforts," stated Schrekinger.

There are several reasons for lowering the voting age, according to reports presented at the committee meeting Sunday.

"Lowering the voting age to 18 would get more people involved in government and politics," stated Schrekinger, citing a study that showed a marked disinterest in politics until the age of 27.

The question of responsibility of an 18-year-old's voting ability is partially answered, according to the committee, by looking at the responsibilities 18-year-olds have in the business and economic community.

The committee reported that many 18-year-olds have left home and are supporting themselves in positions of responsibility.

It was also noted that workers above 18 are allowed to vote in labor union elections.

If such a bill to lower the suffrage age to 18 passed the Legislature, it would be placed in general election as a constitutional amendment, with the citizens of the state voting for or against it.

Committee Suggests Structure Changes

The convocations committee of the Faculty Senate gave its report Tuesday afternoon to the monthly meeting of the senate, according to Dick Gilbert, secretary of the senate.

In the report, read by the committee chairman, Foster Owens, the committee recommended that the composition of the committee be changed from its present structure of 5 faculty members.

The proposed change would cut the number of faculty members on the committee to 3 and add one student representative from ASUN, one student representative from the Union Program Council, the Director of the Nebraska Union, the Director of Public Relations for the University, and the Dean of Faculties.

A question was raised as to whether the committee would adopt the recommendation if the report was approved. "It was determined that this would not occur," said Gilbert.

"Instead, the recommendation will go to the Faculty Senate Committee on Committees, with the final approval of any change in the committee's composition belonging to the Faculty Senate," he stated.

The report also gave the financial picture of the committee. It reported that it had a surplus at the end of last year of $252, with expenditures totaling over $4,000 dollars.

The report announced that the committee expected an all University convocation next semester.

The Senate approved a motion, made by the Chemistry department, that the University marching band find a new location to practice, before it endangered some of the academic responsibilities of the University.

Gilbert explained that the motion was not a "slap" at the band, but rather action so that a solution to the problem should be found before the problem becomes acute.

Skit Themes Due For Coed Follies

The deadline for living units to submit their themes for Coed Follies skits is Nov. 14, at 5 p.m. according to Steph Tinan, Coed Follies chairman.

The plots should center around the "Centennial '66'" theme.

Final skits, including lighting plans, complete dialogues, songs, backdrop designs and itemized budgets must be completed by Dec. 5, Miss Tinan explained.

Tryouts will be conducted Jan. 5 and the selected skits will be performed for the Coed-Follies revue Feb. 24.

All University living units, Towne Club and the University School of Nursing in Omaha are invited to participate, Miss Tinan said.

Speaker System Aids In Museum

University Students will now be permitted to use the audio system in operation in the Museum at Morrill Hall.

The audio system was just completed this fall and until now has been available only to public groups.

Students will be able to rent portable speakers for the entire Museum for 25 cents. At each station, the system gives information on what the exhibit is, where it came from and other pertinent information.

In the past, the Museum provided guides for public groups and had only labels at each exhibit for University students.

The audio system was started last year and was operated on a part-time basis. This summer the entire Museum was outfitted with the system. Since that time, it has been in operation on a full-time basis.

Winter Slides In . . . Ice Claims 1st Casualty

Winter arrived on the scene Wednesday and University students felt its effects as they slid to classes on ice-covered sidewalks and streets.

Ear muffs, knee socks and furry hats were pulled from their summer storage niches to combat the 25-degree temperatures and chilling 15 m.p.h. winds.

Snow, sleet and freezing drizzle swept across the entire state, according to the U.S. Weather Bureau. Lincoln roads streets were reported to be 100 per cent ice-covered Wednesday and seven minor traffic accidents occurred in the early morning rush hours.

A University coed was hospitalized after falling on the icy sidewalks. The Student Health Center reported Margie Nobbman, 18, of Pleasant Dale, in good condition.

Lincoln had recorded .11 of precipitation as of Wednesday afternoon, according to the weather bureau.

The heaviest snowfall in the state was recorded in Sidney where four inches of snow fell.

The Lincoln forecast for Thursday is for fair to partly cloudy and temperatures to reach the upper 30's. The predicted low for Thursday night is 20 degrees.

Staff Influx Causes Paycheck Problems

Many payroll checks have been late or incorrect because of the large influx of student and faculty employees in September, according to University Comptroller Carl Yost.

Yost said that this is an annual problem and that the situation should be in order by the end of November.

Pointing out that there are several thousand people on the University payroll, Yost said that any of a series of clerical or machine errors can cause mistakes or delays, and that these errors are especially troublesome at the beginning of the academic year.

Yost added that this was the first year of operation for the computer system in the state capitol. All the state warrants are printed in the statehouse.

Through September part-time students were being added to the payroll, Yost said. This made the administration of the pay checks more complex.

The system includes the compiling of personnel records, total work hours, the sending of the figures to the statehouse and the redistribution of the checks when they are returned from the statehouse.

Yost said that the faculty has the same paycheck problem as the students. He added that he was himself an addition to the University staff in September.

Yost termed the situation in September a "nightmare" and the one in October "not bright". He added that now that things have stabilized, November's checks may include only a one-half per cent normal error.

He predicted that the situation would be brighter next year when the computer operations gain in maturity.

Yost said that a larger staff could somewhat solve the early-year problems but that such a staff would be too large for the remainder of the year.

Yost said that there was a University revolving fund to take care of emergencies, but that this fund was not large enough to accommodate all of the late payments or errors in September or October.

The comptroller foresaw no answer to the problem other than an increased efficiency of the computer. He said that the situation usually resolves itself as the academic year progresses, but until then remains an "inconvenience and nuisance."

Four Lab Plays Free To Public

Four University of Nebraska Lab Theater plays will be presented Sunday and Monday.

"Architecture," by Pinget and directed by Jean M. Maclean will be presented in Room 303, the Arena, of the Temple Building at 8 p.m. "Zoo Story," by Edward Albee will follow at 9 p.m. in the same room. It is directed by John Holms.

Simultaneously "Private Ear" by Sraffa and directed by Dan Steadman will be presented in Room 201 of the Temple, the Lab Theater.

At 9 p.m. "The Man of Destiny" by George Bernard Shaw and directed by Jim Selemeyer will be presented in the same room.

There is no admission to any lab play and all four plays are being presented both nights to permit interested spectators to see them all, said a theater spokesman.

Union Offers $50 In Photo Contest

The Union Contemporary Arts Committee's third annual Nebraska Union Photography Contest will begin Friday, according to Sheryl Severin, contest chairman.

Cash prizes totaling $50 will be given. The winning entries will be displayed in the Nebraska Union, she added.

Interested students may pick up the rules in the Program Office of the Union, Room 136. The contest ends Dec. 2.

Graduate-Faculty Coffee Set Friday

A graduate-faculty coffee hour will be held this Friday from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m. in Room 235 of the Union. The coffee hour is open to all graduate students and interested faculty.

Similar coffee hours will be held each Friday afternoon. The coffee hour is an attempt to form a "graduate faculty" by improving inter-departmental relations among graduate students.

Yearbook Photos To End Tuesday

Tuesday is the deadline for pictures for the 1967 Cornhusker to be taken. Students who wish to have their pictures taken should sign up for a time on one of the sheets in Room 231, Nebraska Union.
