Caterers offer tasty selections

Whether it's a bountiful feast or a more intimate gathering, several catering options can meet your wedding reception needs.

Offering a "virtually limitless" selection is John Golon of John's Catering in Lincoln.

Golon's business provides reception dinners for $2 to $5 a person, dinner buffets for either $5 to $10.95 or $11.95 to $17 a person and gourmet dinners for $18 to $100 a person.

"The gourmet dinners take five and a half hours to prepare," Golon said, "and about that long to eat."

John's Catering also supplies special features at wedding receptions like the wedding cake and champagne fountains.

Special theme dinners also can be prepared, highlighting ethnic or regional dishes.

"Everything we do is authentic," Golon said. "We don't cook out of a can."

In addition to food preparation, Golon said, he can provide hostesses, servers, musicians and total cleanup service afterward.

"We're probably the most expensive in town, but we're the best in town," Golon said.

For festivities on a smaller scale, a variety of catering services, such as Lincoln Fun and Food, can do the job.

"Weddings are not the majority of our business, but we do provide party platters," manager Mark Baehr said. Platters of deli meats and relish and bread trays are most frequently provided at receptions, he said.

Lincoln Fun and Food also charges per person. For 50 or fewer guests, the rate is $1.75 each; for more than 50, the rate goes down to $1.45 each.

"We can get our supplies at a cheaper price in bigger quantities, so we can just pass on the savings," Baehr said.
