Lois O'Love answers questions of love worn

Hello, dear readers. My crimson colored mailbag is filled to overflowing with queries from readers about weddings. Let's reach into today's postal pile and pull out the first postcard.

Dear Lois O'Love: On your advice, I married Alan, a man whom I'd been dating for about a year. The first few months of married life were swell, but lately, I don't know what all's gone wrong. I get the feeling Alan doesn't care a whit for me.

It's as if I weren't even there. I'll call his name, he won't respond. I ask him a question, he won't answer. I'm about at the end of my rope. After all, I'm only human — I need my presence to be acknowledged. Oh Lois, what should I do?

Depressed in Detroit

Dear Lois O'Love: I hope you can help me.

I love my wife, but she's always trying to get in my show at the Club Tropicana. She bore me a child, who plays the drums. We live next door to an older couple who have been married for years, but don't particularly like each other, and actually never really have anything to say. Lately, I've noticed everything's in black and white.

What should I do?

Romancin' Ricky

Dear Ricky: Waaaaahhhhhh!

Dear Lois O'Love: A friend of mine told me that Hitler and Eva Braun weren't married. I had always heard that they were. Which of us is right? Please reply, Lois, as there is a can of C-rations riding on this one.

Perplexed in Potsdam

Dear Perplexed: For your question I turned to Alan G. Goodman, the world's most renowned expert on World War II marriages. He tells me that yes, Hitler and Eva Braun were indeed married. Furthermore, travel brochures found by the Russians in the burned remains of Hitler's bunker indicate that the couple seriously considered the possibility of disguising themselves as Shriners and honeymooning in Niagara Falls.

Dear Lois O'Love: I have always heard that Dwight Eisenhower had an affair with his driver Kay Summersby. Is there any evidence that this is true?
