U.S. aircraft carrier collides with Soviet sub

SEOUL, South Korea — The 80,000-ton U.S. aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk collided with a Soviet submarine in the southern Sea of Japan off South Korea Tuesday night, a Seventh Fleet spokesman said here Wednesday. The spokesman, Commander Steve Honda, said the carrier was taking part in massive U.S.-South Korean military exercises when the collision occurred. U.S. defense officials in Washington said there were no reports of injuries or major damage to the Kitty Hawk. They said the Victor class Soviet submarine had surfaced and had not responded to offers of assistance from the carrier and accompanying U.S. Navy vessels.

Mine incident minor, official says

WASHINGTON — A White House official said Wednesday a mine explosion that damaged a Soviet tanker off Nicaragua should not affect relations between Moscow and Washington. The Soviet Union lodged a formal protest with Washington Wednesday and said it held the United States responsible because the mine was apparently laid by anti-Sandinist forces that are receiving American military assistance. But White House spokesman Larry Speakes responded that Moscow's support of efforts by Nicaragua's Sandinist government to destabilize other Central American governments was a more important source of tension between the superpowers.

Reagan drops arms sale plans

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has withdrawn a heavily criticized plan to sell advanced Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to Jordan and Saudi Arabia, Speakes announced Wednesday. The plan drew strong opposition in Congress and from Israel and American Jewish groups. Speakes refused to say why Reagan had abandoned the plan to sell the shoulder-held Stingers to Jordan and Saudi Arabia, but other officials said he acted because of strong congressional opposition. Reagan acted after consultations with the congressional leadership, Speakes said.

'Star Wars' plan dismissed

WASHINGTON — A prominent scientific group Wednesday dismissed President Reagan's "Star Wars" proposal for an anti-missile space defense shield as an impossible and dangerous dream. In a detailed 86-page study of the multibillion-dollar proposal, the Union of Concerned Scientists said the quest for a perfect shield against nuclear weapons would be endless and to embark on it would have grave consequences "Such a system cannot be built now or, in all likelihood, ever," the group said. "A U.S. commitment to BMD (Ballistic Missile Defense) would precipitate Soviet responses and a chain of actions and reactions that would radically change the strategic environment to the detriment of both countries' security," it said.

Acid rain pact signed

OTTAWA, Canada — Canada and nine West European countries Wednesday formally committed themselves to a 30 percent reduction in sulphur dioxide emissions by 1993 to combat acid rain and urged other nations, notably Britain and the United States, to join them. "We have formed the 30 percent club," said Canadian Environment Minister Charles Caccia, who invited his European counterparts to a two-day conference here aimed at winning international action to reduce acid rain.

'Strawberry Fields' dedicated

NEW YORK — A part of New York's sprawling Central Park Wednesday was formally renamed Strawberry Fields and dedicated to the memory of John Lennon, who was assassinated across the street from the site in 1980. "This happens to be where John and I took our last walk," Lennon's widow Yoko Ono told more than 1,000 people. Ono donated $500,000 to the city to turn a 2.5-acre triangular piece of the park near the Dakota apartment house, where Lennon was killed by Mark David Chapman, into a memorial for her husband.
