I can't get no clothing action

What a buy — I sold myself — I told myself — for the billionth time I found myself desperately rambling through racks, stacks and piles of hand-me-downs, throw aways and treasures collected in countless bonanzas at various thrift stores.

Little did I know that a five-year period of incorporating fashionables from past and present junk would cause me such problems in time . . .

My alarm clock, intentionally set in five-minute intervals, allows spurts of cognitive decisions on my outfit for the day.

7:48 p.m. — "... if this is it, please let me know, i . . ." thump goes the alarm clock, "what am I gonna wear today?" Roll over.

7:53 a.m. — "... what's love got to do with it, love's just an . . ." SLAM; "What about the blue dress, yea . . . but which shoes?" Out again.

7:58 a.m. — "... breath you take I'll be wa . . ." OK! I'm up! This is ridiculous, OK the off-white Naturalizer pumps . . . no maybe sneakers . . . I'll be riding my bike . . . Pearls are out, some- thing big, clunky . . . Purse? Oh no, what about the weather . . . whether or not I should roll over and wake to the evening sun . . .

GEFZ-LOUISE! By the seventh time my AM clock radio crackles another Top 40 hit through its teeny weeny, itsy bitsy tweeter or woofer (it only has one) I realize that seven gropes at the snooze alarm means I'm gonna be late.

I charge up from what resembles Oscar Madison's dis-sheveled sleeping place, scramble to the phone, turn off the answering device and call Donna to aid and abet my frantic situation while I floss my molars . . .
