"In the third game, what we were trying to do was just grab on, throw things in the spokes of the wheels of the other team until we could establish a rhythm," Pettit said.

"I'm not so sure we ever did establish a rhythm, but you've got to feel good about a team that's not playing well and still finds a way to close it out. That says something about talent and your mental abilities."

Coach says wrestlers lack 'scrap'

By Mike Reilly

Daily Nebraskan Staff Reporter
Nebraska wrestling coach Bob Fehrs said his squad lacked two of the most precious grappling commodities Friday in its 33-11 loss to the fifth-ranked Iowa State Cyclones at the Bob Devaney Sports Center.

"I don't think we scrapped as well as we could have," Fehrs said. "If you don't have the fight and scrap, it doesn't matter how hard you work on technique."

The loss to the Cyclones was the Husker's second consecutive attack errors than Pittsburgh, but out-hit the Panthers .313 to .241. Noth had 12 kills in 24 attempts to lead Nebraska, while Sue Hoover and Kohutlak, who each made 38 attacks, led Pittsburgh with 15 and 13.

Pettit said the crowd and the tournament made both teams a little tense before the match. Collier said the crowd of 1,290 may have shaken his team early.

"Nebraska got off to a great start, and in this game that's half the battle," he said. "It's great to have that kind of a crowd behind you but it's good for our kids to play in front of that many people."

Collier hedged to predict whether Nebraska would handle Western Michigan this week. His team never faced the Lady Broncos, but they did defeat Penn State just after that team won in three sets at Kalamazoo, Mich.

"Nebraska was a definite favorite to win this match, and we weren't worried about that," he said. "They won't be favored in the next one. It will be toss up."

conference dual defeat. The third-ranked Oklahoma Sooners crushed Nebraska 30-9 earlier in the week.

Fehrs said the pair of losses to the top 10 squads helped educate his young team, which started five freshmen.

"Both nights were strictly learning matches," Fehrs said. "Hopefully we'll use this as a teaching tool."

Only one Husker frosh, 150-pounder Keenan Turner, had his arm raised in victory against the Cyclones. Turner claimed a 4-1 decision over Tim Manning.

"Keenan showed the type of fight and scrap we're looking for," Fehrs said. "He gave a good account of himself."

Matt Campbell was the only other Husker to win a match. The junior from Havre, Mont., pinned Chuck Pearson with 1:37 left in the first round to win the 118-pound class.

Husker Gary Albright and the Cyclone's Darryl Peterson each scored on escapes to finish in a 1-1 draw for Nebraska's other point.

Spikers to learn fate after Midwest advance

Nebraska will learn today where and when it will play in the Midwestern Regionals of the NCAA volleyball tournament.

The Huskers beat Pittsburgh in three sets Saturday to advance to the second round against Western Michigan. The Lady Broncos, unranked at 25-7, defeated Illinois State 15-13, 9-15, 15-8, 17-15. Paige Paulsen, a sophomore outside hitter, led the Broncos with 16 kills, while freshman outside hitter Linda McLain and sophomore middle blocker Sarah Powers followed with 15 and 13 respectively.

The Huskers lost a first-round game at Kalamazoo last year.

The Lady Broncos drew the assignment, and may get a home court assignment for the regionals because of the large attendance at volleyball matches there. However, only 2,251 saw the Illinois State match as opposed to the 8,000 that saw the Nebraska match last year.

In the other Midwest match Saturday, Penn State outlasted Northwestern 7-15, 15-9, 15-4, 9-15, 15-13. The Lions will take on Pacific, the region's western representative, who got a bye into the second round: Pacific is coached by Terry Liskeyvych, who is leaving that Stockton, Calif., school in December to coach the United States' national team.
