An Albany Sensation.

ALBANY, June 17.—There was a sensation in the joint convention this afternoon, when the name of H. H. Tutill was called. He made a speech denouncing Depew in the strongest terms and charging wholesale bribery in connection with the canvass.

ALBANY, June 17.—The joint convention resumed at noon. The ballot for a successor to Conkling resulted as follows: Wheeler 36, Jacobs 47, Cornell 8, Lapham 16, Conkling 27, Freeman 3, Bradley 1, Folger 3, Crowley 1.

The following is the joint vote for Platt's successor: Depew 53, Kernan 48, Wheeler 2, Cornell 10, Crowley 6, Platt 2, Lapham 1, Total 142.

On motion of Strahan the convention adjourned at 12:45 until noon tomorrow.

The Bradley Investigation.

ALBANY, June 17.—The Bradley bribery investigation held a two hours session this morning, which was devoted mainly to the identification of the money paid Bradley and an inquiry into the bank accounts of A. D. Barber and various senators.

Sharply being cross examined, said he had played cards for money but not in A. D. Barber's room. Several of the talkers and officials of the Albany city, national bank were examined regarding the account of the various persons connected with the legislature, and to large checks recently passed through the bank.

The Bradley committee resumed at 3 p. m. Gen. Thomas Conway sworn: Said Bradley told him he had been voting for Conkling, but that it displeased his constituents and he would not vote for Conkling any more, but would vote for Depew.

W. F. Wheeler, R. D. Atherly and N. V. Franchot, of Cattaraugus county, testified corroborate of Austin's testimony yesterday, in relation to Bradley's conversation in Olean June 4th.

Bradley asked to be recalled before the two latter witnesses could give full testimony, and said that he withdrew from his former testimony that he had not met witnesses and not said to them that the money was given for his vote, and that he meant to change his suit his constituents. The most important testimony given in the investigation was that of Senator Strahan, of New York, who is a stalwart leader, and was called on the part of the prosecution for the purpose of clearly showing the attitude of the national administration in the senatorial contest. He said on the 18th of May he received the following telegram:

WASHINGTON, D. C. May 18, 1881. To Robert H. Strahan, Senator at Albany. (Confidential.) It is very important to you personally that you meet me at the club, tonight at 11 o'clock. Say nothing to anyone in reference to this dispatch, but meet me without fail.

and Platt gave their reasons for resigning, and I considered their reasons as given in the letter to be inadequate to the resignations and the consequences which they would entail, but notwithstanding if Conkling should be a candidate my regard towards him and my feelings in the matter would lead me to support him and under those circumstances I should have to decline the office." He said, "You had better think it over to-night and meet me at the Fifth Avenue hotel at 9 or 9:30 next morning."

I should have said that he stated when he made the offer, "you will have to accept it on the jump, if there was to be a cabinet meeting tomorrow at 11 o'clock or at 11:30 and I am to have your answer there at that time."

He said the cabinet was to meet the next day and said: "Your name will be sent in and you will be immediately confirmed." I stated to Davenport, "I will meet you to-morrow morning at 9 or 9:30, but there is no probability of my changing my mind in regard to the matter during the night."

I met him the next morning at the Fifth Avenue hotel. He said, "What is your final answer?" I said, "I decline the appointment." He said, "All right; I must telegraph it over, because the cabinet will meet at 11 o'clock," and we parted. I have not heard from or seen him since.

During the cross-examination witness stated that he did not know how he came to be subpoenaed; did not show telegram to any one till last night, when he showed it to Blakie. After he was subpoenaed he did not want to be here under the circumstances and stated that it was by agreement of his, never displayed the name of the signer of the telegram; he said he was indignant at the service of the subpoena and consulted with Blakie as to whether or not he should obey the subpoena, and in that consultation exhibited the telegram to him.

Witness stated that on the morning following the publication of the special dispatch from Washington, dated May 19th, to The New York World, saying that he (Strahan) had declined the office of marshalship for the southern district of New York, said to a gentleman who roomed with him that that was the object of his visit to New York; newspaper men visited me and asked me if there was truth in the story. I told them there was, but never disclosed the contents of the telegram nor individual who sent it. He said he did not telegraph to Washington declining the office but presumed Davenport did, for he told him he was going to; witness stated he had done everything to avoid being subpoenaed and appearing before the committee and said, "I went to Gen. Arthur's room last night and told him I didn't think I should have been subpoenaed without consultation, and didn't want to go and felt very much like resigning the subpoena, and stating upon my right as a senator, 'I don't want to discuss the subject with you, or advise you one way or the other,' and peremptorily refused to discuss it with me. After an interview this morning with Bangs I thought the matter over and concluded upon the whole perhaps the proper thing for me to do was to appear before the committee."

Grant Again. NEW YORK, June 17.—General Grant arrived here at noon to-day, in company with some members of his family. He looked tired and unwell, but was accessible to a reporter, with whom he held a short conversation. "My mission to Mexico was an entire success," he said, "and I return to the city in the full belief that New York will, before a great many months, be in direct connection with the City of Mexico by railroad."

"If I thought I could secure the election of Conkling and Platt I might go, but I came here on business and under the circumstances I shall not go to Albany. I know but little about it, but, judging from the press, I think that this legislature will adjourn without electing anybody. Conkling and Platt ought to be returned, and would be if it were not that the influence of the administration is used against them. Robertson was made collector because he proved a traitor to me at Chicago, and my friends have been insulted because they stood true to me. Blaine is at the bottom of the whole fight. Grant said it was weak and easily influenced. Blaine is using the administration to defeat Conkling. He may succeed now, but not in the end."

There is talk of a public meeting and serenade to Grant, at which Conkling will speak, and the services of the general will be placed in contrast to those of Blaine and Grant, who will hold up as having insulted him.

Among the few callers were ex-Gov. Warmouth and Kellogg of Louisiana. It was stated that a subscription fund of $250,000 will be presented Grant in a short time. Ex-Senators Conkling and Platt arrived in this city to-night from Albany. They went directly to the Fifth Avenue hotel and had a conference with the general.

Over two thousands people witnessed the fighting and five thousand dollars changed hands.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS. NEW YORK, June 17.—Special trade and industrial reports to Bradstreet's from thirty-four leading centers received by wire and mail to-day, show that the arrival of summer weather does not appear to have caused dullness in trade so large an extent as had been anticipated. Telegraphic advices from important points throughout the great wheat-growing states convey the intelligence as to the injury sustained by their crops, which do not meet the anticipations indulged in. At the present time it is impossible to form any comprehensive and reliable estimate of the exact extent to which the wheat crop has been injured. Only sixty-six failures reported to Bradstreet's the past week. There is a decrease in all sections except the South, where the increase offsets.

A Terrible Forest Fire.

CHICAGO, June 17.—4 p. m. A St. John, N. B., dispatch says a terrific forest fire is now raging around the mining colony of Little Bay. There is a population of two thousand people in the settlement. Hundreds of miners are engaged in felling woods around the mining quarter of the town and the remainder of the owners are busy with their families and children are burying underground their goods of a perishable character. At last accounts the prospect was very gloomy. At one point the fire had reached the town and swept away six houses. At several other points it has rapidly advanced. Two large steamers ready for sea have delayed to take the people away if necessary. The rain is now pouring down in torrents and the people are hopeful. There is no telegraphic communication with Little Bay and some days may elapse before further particulars are obtained.

A LONG LITIGATION ENDED. SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 17.—Judge Wallace of the United States district court who has had under consideration for some time the case of the Canadian Southern railroad company vs. the International bridge company, rendered his decision to-day. The litigation was for the purpose of deciding the rate of compensation to be paid by the plaintiff for the use of the bridge of the defendant. The plaintiff claimed that an act of congress of 1876 gave the judge of this district power to decide the rate of tolls to be paid, which was denied by the bridge company, who claimed that even if congress conferred that power it would be unconstitutional. Judge Wallace, in an elaborate opinion, holds that, assuming that congress intended to confer upon the court authority to prescribe the compensation which the bridge company might charge, no doubt is entertained of the constitutionality of the act, but in his opinion congress did not intend to confer such power. He dismissed the petition of the railroad company with costs. The effect of this decision is to allow the bridge company to fix its own rate of toll.

Died in a Duel. BREADFORD, Ind., June 17.—Later particulars regarding the death of Wm. Arrangements were made between Huff and Barnum to fight at a country church day before yesterday. They met, Barnum being equipped with a revolver and Huff with a shot-gun. MEXICAN ROADS. CITY OF MEXICO, June 17.—Daily trains are now running over the Central railroad between Mexico and Tula, and sixty miles of road is graded beyond Tula. The Mexican press are antagonizing the concession made to Mayor DeGress. The Republican asks why subsidize this road and not Grant's?

Diario of Ciel replied that it is subsidized in order that the road may have a low tariff that Gen. Grant deprecates no subsidy and Gen. Frisby's road is unsubsidized on account of the competition. The Republican says that the roads in the United States will build the same road unsubsidized. Railroad engineers report as practicable the route from the Rio Grande to the City of Mexico.

A DEBUT. ST. LOUIS, June 17.—Quite a sensation was created in railroad circles this afternoon by the rumor that tickets to New York via Chicago could be bought for $18, the regular fare being $24.25. Correspondence of The Daily Bee.

FREMONT, Neb., June 16. Many years ago when the chief occupants of Nebraska were cayotes, prairie dogs and semi-barbarous Indians, it was necessary to protect the extremity of civilized settlement from extermination by these Indians. When bad blood stood in the eye of the restless Pawnee, Gen. John C. Fremont was sent out with a small detachment of U. S. forces to guard the unprotected settlement. He took position upon a bluff on the south bank of the Platte river, opposite the present beautiful city bearing his name.

Fremont settlement is among the earliest made in the territory, but its possibilities as a real city date only from the entrance of the S. C. & P. railway, in 1869. For years it was the only town west of the Missouri river having the advantage of two lines of railroads. A line of road from Lincoln to Fremont is on the boards for this fall, and the people of Fremont would most heartily welcome it, though there is no disposition to proffer aid to indefinite companies for the construction of roads.

Fremont has now a population of 3,500 people, and is a very beautiful little city. The streets are wide, clean and lined with shade. The site is a level flat of high bottom land with scarcely slope enough to drain in a wet time. Artificial drainage and water works are needed improvements. Fremont has 120 men in mercantile business, and five firms do a creditable wholesale trade. May Brothers are erecting a brick on their old corner. C. Christensen has completed his new store building and now occupies it. Z. Shick occupies nearly a whole block with his immense establishment. The Occidental hotel, by Burgess & Son, is a three-story brick, 300x175. It is one of the finest hotels in the state and the traveling man's resort.

H. Fuhrman's wholesale dry goods house would be an honor to many larger towns. The mammoth general store of J. G. Smith is soon to pass to the hands of J. G. Smith & Co., E. D. Packard, the present foreman becoming a partner in the firm.

W. A. Wilson is buying the bulk of wheat brought to the Fremont market, at the S. P. & P. elevator. The unjustly light assessment of railroad property is very keenly appreciated by the leading business men of Fremont. The great national highway passing through here is assessed at $11,000 per mile, and for every mile of this road there is a representative value of $15,000 in bonds that are claimed to be worth 110% in the market, which makes a real representative value of $137,450 per mile; and yet this is assessed at $11,000 less than nine per cent. of the true value. The farmer's cow that is held for sale at $25, is not assessed at $2, but at about $16. The merchant's property is assessed at corresponding figures.

A mad dog was shot in the post-office yesterday.

The report of small-pox in this place has been very much exaggerated. There were a few cases in mild form, but all are now well, and no deaths have been reported.

This morning the temporary fence was torn down from around the inclosed deeding. The sanitary condition of the city is excellent except in the neighborhood of the U. P. stock yards, from which rises a most shameful stench. The mayor and council have been petitioned to abate the nuisance. Fremont boasts of fine horses and cattle, and numerous fruit orchards. Considerable interest in sheep is manifested by a number of farmers, and Dodge may be counted upon as one of the great sheep counties within three years.

There seems to remain very little interest in the Hanlon-Bradley affair. The investigation has adjourned till Monday without showing anything farther than that both the men were in liquor that Hanlon shot first and that he came to his death by a bullet, shot by the hands of Bradley. Pat Hanlon was one of the city council and was respected by the business men of the place. He has left a wife and eight children, the youngest of which is only one month old and the eldest seventeen years. He has a brother living at Bradwood, Illinois, a sister at Arlington, Wisconsin, and a sister at Schenectady, N. Y. He has lived in Fremont eleven years and has always been engaged in the saloon business. He has a farm of some value in this county and three in Saunders county, besides some town property and money.

A False Report. NATIONAL ASSOCIATED PRESS. CHICAGO, June 17.—The sensational dispatch sent from Phua yesterday stating that J. W. Hamilton, formerly a well-known journalist, had been thrown from a sleeping car near that city and killed proves to be without any foundation. It has been learned that Mr. Hamilton is now in Springfield and will reach this city on Sunday.
