One is the fact that the cost of the building as originally designed will equal number of vice-presidents to exceed the limit they had put upon the same twelve months ago. the other reason is that some of the dent's "inability to discharge the bidders did not fully comply with the powers and duties of the said office.

requirements of the proposals. Now everybody knows that the advance in the cost of labor and materials since last year is from ten to twenty per cent. A court house that could have been built last year for $150,000 cannot now be built for much less than $180,000. We are reliably informed that responsible parties are ready to contract for the building under Mr. Myers' first-class fire proof plans for $175,000.

The people of Omaha and Douglass county want a first-class fire proof building and they will have nothing else. They voted $125,000 in bonds with the distinct understanding that a fire proof building was an absolute necessity, and they expect the commissioners to make good their promise, even if the building should cost $25,000 or $50,000 above the original estimate. No reasonable man expects the commissioners be able to build on last year's estimate at this year's advanced price of labor and

The general of the army and the secretary of war may use the regular army for police duty in the territories, but they have no right to send these troops into any of the seates. Again the constitution commands the president to communicate to congress the state of the country and make such recommendations as he may deem proper for their legislative action. Congress may pass laws, but no law can go into effect un til it has been approved by the president. That function makes the presi dent a part of the law-making power of the government, and in the exercise of that function the president's act is not merely clerical as in the signing of a commission, but he is bound to employ all the mental faculties that are requisite in passing judgment upon every import-

There is nothing in the whole instru ment nor in the proceedings of congress by which it is possible to determine whether the "disability" con templated is a temporary or permanent one or both. The question still must obtrude itself, whether in case of a protracted, though not necessarily permanent disability of the president, the duties of the chief executive shall devolve upon the vice-president for the time being and be laid aside when the president is able to resume his official duties. It is a singular fact, which has but recently been brought to notice, that the constitution has not sufficiently given to congress any power to make provision for the disability of the president to discharge the powers and duties of his office, when there is a vicepresident upon whom they may de volve. It distinctly declares that congress shall provide by law for the case of removal, resignation, death or inability of both president and vicepresident. No provision is made for the vice-president acting temporarily as president or defining the procedure by which the inability of a president is declared removed and his functions are resumed. Probably on account of the failure of the constitution to be explicit upon this point, congress has neglected to make provision

Ex-Senator Conkling has one official privilege left. He may send and receive public documents free of postage until De-cember 1st. Assistant Attorney General Freeman has decided that a senator who has resigned is entitled, under the act of March 3, 1879, to the same privilege as one whose term has expired.

Gov. Smith's reign has been an exciting Gov. Smith's reign has been an exciting one, and his name will be found on the pages of histery as the great Badger war governor. The sharp and decisive carapaign against the Chippewa Indians, the call to arms against the Eau Claire strikers, and the sagacious cavalry raid through the Eau Galle fastnesses all give military prestage to the governor and his staff.

The greenbackers are planning to hold an extensive jubilee at Muscatine, Iowa, at an early date, lasting four days. The intention is to commence on some Saturday yet to be appointed. Hon. Jesse Harper will orate on the first day; the Revs. De La Matyr and P. P. Ingalls will preach funeral sermons on Sunday and other lights will hold forth on the remaining twodays.

There will be a lot of picturesque material for a new party on the outside of politics presently. There are Butler, Forney, Sickles, Mullett and Conkling already out, and David Davis threatens to join them. Then there are Gorham and Tuthill, who would go if there was anything to be made by it. It would be a great pleasure to all these persons if they could be in a party so small that all of them would be visible to the public eye all the time, and it would be a great pleasure to both the old parties to know they were there.—[New York Tribune.

Syracuse Journal (Rep.): The republican party of this state is not divided; the heartburnings caused by the severe contest at Albany are rapidly disappearing; the results of that contest are accepted wise and proper ones, and such is the good discipline axd the innate spirits of the republicans of this state that, in order that disaster shall not come from that cause, they will put forth extraordinary efforts to overcome any drawbacks that might tend in that direction. The shaping of the state ticket can as yet be only a matter of conjecture. The present state officers are understood to be candidates for renomination, except that Controller Wadsworth seeks a seat in congress instead of another term as except that Controller Wadsworth seeks a seat in congress instead of another term as controller.
