HURRAH, HURRAH, HURRAH! Three Cheers for the President's Pluck.

He Gains Ground Fast and Will Get Well. Dr. Hamilton Stakes His Surgical Reputation on it.

Cheering Bulletin From the White House Sick Chamber.

National Associated Press. WASHINGTON, August 29.—9:15 a. m.—The morning dressing of the wound has revealed no symptoms detrimental to the favorable condition reported in the morning bulletin.

The wound and gland are both doing well. Careful inquiry of the attendants in the president's sick chamber fails to elicit any information of a disquieting character. The president slept better than for several nights and the periods of natural sleep were longer. The incidents of the night comprised the administration of several portions of liquid nourishment, the giving of an enema, two sponge baths, a change of watch by the nurses between 3 and 4 this morning.

At the examination this morning the wound was found doing well. No rapid repair is yet noticeable, but the granulations are better. The flow of pus is slightly more copious and the character satisfactory. Dr. Boynton says that the feeling among the members of the family is one of increasing hope. Dr. Boynton says the president looks better and feels better.

The report that the president's lungs are affected, showing indications of blood poisoning, is positively denied by Dr. Reymann and Dr. Boynton. Dr. Reymann said he had examined them, and they were all right. Dr. Boynton said that the lungs had been tested a number of times. The physicians, of course, bearing in mind that the next stage below the lowest which the president has yet reached would be some pyemic affection of the lungs, have carefully watched those organs from day to day.

The rumor, too, that a secretion of pus had been found in the knee joint is also authoritatively denied. Dr. Hamilton said on his way to the train for New York last evening, "I'll stake my reputation as a surgeon on the president's recovery." DR. HAMILTON'S CONFIDENCE.

NEW YORK, August 29.—Dr. Frank H. Hamilton said to a reporter on his arrival this morning, and in reply to a request for an interview, "I think you will be satisfied if I say that the president is going to get well. I have no time to dwell on the subject now," he added, "but the worst has passed and I personally have no doubt whatever that he will recover entirely."

RECEIVING THE GOOD NEWS. CLEVELAND, O., August 29.—There is great satisfaction in family circles at Mentor and Hiram. A telegram from the president's sons to friends at home says: "Father is safe." FARMINGTON, O., August 29.—President Hayes has private advices of the president, and feels much encouraged. The immediate attendants of the president promise an improvement so decided as to give solid ground for the well-founded hope.

VERY FAVORABLE. Latest Bulletins This Morning From Washington.

They Show the President's Condition to be Improving. He Eats With Much Relish and Sleeps Tranquilly.

Interesting Scenes at the White House.

National Associated Press. WASHINGTON, August 29.—Dr. Bliss thinks from the present appearance of the case that the evening bulletin will make a better showing even than last night. Dr. Baxter, who has long had no friendly feelings toward the physicians, stated to-day that if the president's stomach held out and he received necessary care he was now in a position to recover.

The president has a good night and is having a good day. At 2 p. m. his pulse 103, and a decrease since the forenoon. For many days past the pulse has shown a decided increase by this time in the afternoon. The respiration is normal, and all other symptoms are reported by the surgeons to be favorable.

At the morning dressing of the wound the appearance of the "gathering" was so well developed that Bliss made a slight incision in the gland with a knife. A liberal discharge of pus followed. There are now four discharges from the gland and the swelling has begun to diminish.

The president has continued to take the usual amount of nourishment—day in addition to koumiss, milk porridge and peptonized milk. He has swallowed to-day a portion of the chicken broth, which he relished exceedingly. During the morning also a measurement was taken of the president's limbs for the sake of ascertaining how much he had lost in weight. It is probable that his weight is now from 130 to 140 pounds.

Dr. Bliss took the president's pulse at 4:30 p. m., and found it 104, full, and beating firmly. The doctor at that hour expressed his belief also that the expected rise in temperature for the evening would be comparatively slight.

Dr. Bliss has been feeling very confident to-day. He said that the size of the swollen gland was perceptibly reduced now. There was indication that another opening would have to be made in the gland to-morrow morning, but he said it would assist progress, and would not at all retard the case. The wound, he said, was looking better to-night than the morning dressing. The granulations were piling up better. A catheter could be pushed in about twelve inches yet, but the channel seemed slightly smaller. He fears no dangerous result from the wound in any event. He thinks the bullet has worked its way down the cavity and seems nearer the rectum. This is indicated by the gradual disappearance of the feeling noticed near the iliac region as if a hard tissue was encountered. The doctor says: "The nearer it gets to the rectum the easier it will be to get out, and you know we must cut the ball out some time." He says the president's stomach and bowels are all right.

The government offers no guarantee to the projectors of the bank, neither do they place any obstacles in the way of their visiting the principal cities of the interior in the interest of the bank, nor to their establishing branch banks in such interior cities as they may wish. The merchants who are interested in the above scheme think they should have the same guarantee from the government that were given the Franco-Egyptian bank, and for this purpose they have prepared a bill, which will be submitted to congress on its reassembling in September.
