HOW DOES HE KNOW?

A Two Legged Subject in the Hands of an Editor.

We know so little of pantaloons, says the innocent editor of the New York Graphic, as to be really no authority in the premises. It has always struck us, however, that pantaloons were the most absurd of all articles of human apparel. Your pantaloons, if we are correctly informed, is a piece of fabric, in some way, possibly with mullage. It is cylindrical with perpendicular tendencies, and so large as to be absolutely no protection to the limb it is supposed to surround. It is starched, and the embroidery at its base is as stiff and undemocratic as if each particular thread of it were a substance all alone by itself. The human limb designated for pedestrianism has gradually inward curve from a certain point below the garter to the ankle, and the ankle is small; but your pantaloons take no notice of that. It is unsympathetic. It disregards all rules as to drapery. It is like a section of topsy-turvy that has inadvertently got away from its companions and is in a continual state of wonder as to what has happened to solidify that smoke. The striped stockings that should ameliorate its wretchedness and imagination does nothing of the kind; it simply wants to employ the unwholesome and unbecoming, and to kick somebody, and it would choke itself to death with the circle above it if it had a throat to choke. When people talk of the clumsiness of skirts they mean rather the clumsiness begotten of the pantaloons. Take every skirt away from that abomination and the woman possessing it would still be clumsy. If she wanted to kick forward she would kick backward. Indeed, the fact that the woman cannot pull ball, invariably hitting the wrong man with the sphere whenever she doesn't happen to pitch her own eyes out, is due wholly, we are convinced, to the deleterious effects of the awkward and unwholesome pantaloons, whose influence seems to have permeated her entire being.

DRUGGISTS STORY. Mr. Isaac C. Chapman, Druggist, Newburg N. Y., writes us: "I have for the past ten years sold several gross of DR. WILLIAM BARKER'S PAIN-EXPELLER FOR THE LUNGS. I can say of it what I cannot say of any other. I have never heard a customer speak of it but to praise its virtues in the highest manner. I have recommended it in a great many cases of Whooping Cough with the happiest results. In fact, always have a bottle in the medicine chest ready for use."

ARMY OFFICERS' AGES. "Ten cents for such a little mite of pargoric as that!" she growled, as she held up the phial. "Yes, ma'am." "Has pargoric riz?" "No." "But I've often got double this amount for ten cents. You must have made seven cents clear profit."

Who Are the Seniors and Who the Youngest Are. The oldest captain on the active list of the army is Captain Pollock, of the Twenty-first Infantry. He will be 64 years of age in September next. He was a colonel of volunteers during the war, and came into the army as a first lieutenant in 1866. The oldest lieutenant is P. P. Barnard, of the First Cavalry, who is 63, being twenty years older than his colonel. He also came into the regular service from the volunteers, where he was a captain and assistant. The oldest lieutenant of artillery is F. C. Nichols, of the First, who is 60. He was a major of volunteers. The senior major on the active list is in the Twenty-first Infantry, is Edward Collins, of the First Infantry, who is 59. He came into the service in 1846 as a private in the battalion of engineers, and has been in the service ever since. He was promoted from a sergeant of engineers to a first lieutenant in 1851. The oldest colonel of the army is Brevet Brig-Gen. Jos. N. G. Whistler, of the Fifth Infantry, who is 61, and Lieut. Col. John Hamilton, of the Fifth, is 60, the oldest of his grade in the artillery. Gen. H. J. Hunt is the senior colonel of artillery. He will be 64 in September. Gen. Gilbert, colonel of the Seventeenth Infantry, is the oldest colonel of his arm of the service, being 61, and John P. Hatch, of the Second Cavalry, is the senior in years in the cavalry. The youngest major-general is Schofield, and the oldest is Pope, who is 61. Hancock is 59, and retires in 1888. Mackenzie is the youngest brigadier-general in the army. He is 42, and Miles, the next, is 44. Angler is the oldest brigadier-general, and is 62. There is a major-general in the army in 1885, a major-general and a brigadier in 1886, and again in 1888. The youngest colonel of artillery is a sergeant of volunteers, Merritt, who is 42, and of infantry, Pennington, who is 41. The youngest lieutenant-colonel on the staff of the army is J. M. Whittemore, of the ordnance, and Morrow, of the sixth cavalry, is the youngest lieutenant-colonel in the line. S. E. Tiltman, professor of chemistry, mineralogy, and geology, at West Point, has the correct rank of lieutenant-colonel. He is 35, and is, therefore, the youngest of the grade in the United States army. The youngest major in the army is William H. Smyth, of the pay department, who is 29, and George R. Smith, late of the Twelfth Infantry, who graduated from West Point in 1875, being only a few months older. The youngest captain of cavalry is Otto W. Budd, who graduated from West Point in 1868, and F. V. Greene and Carl F. Palfrey are the youngest in the corps of engineers. The youngest age of captain of artillery is 42, and in cavalry and infantry about 40. In the general staff of the army the youngest general officer is Gen. Bennet, chief of ordnance, who is 56, and the senior in date of commission, Adj. Gen. Drum and Surgeon General Crane, are 58, and Paymaster General Rochester, and Commissary General Harney, are 57. The oldest retired officer in the army is Gen. W. S. Harney, who was born in the last century, and who entered the army in 1818. He lives at St. Louis, and is probably the richest man in the army. Next to Gen. Harney in years is Gen. Pitcairn, colonel of the Eighth Infantry in 1861, who entered the service in 1820. Gen. Hunter entered in 1822 and Gen. E. B. Alexander, who was colonel of the Tenth Infantry when he retired, graduated from the Military Academy in 1823. Gen. Day also graduated in 1823 and retired as colonel of the Sixth Infantry in 1863. While promotion is slower in some respects in our army than in any service in Europe, yet there is neither in England nor on the Continent an officer of Gen. Mackenzie's age, outside of royal blood, who has attained his rank.

WE SHOULD HELP ONE ANOTHER. Mr. NORMAN HUNT, of No. 109 Chestnut street, Springfield, Mass., writes April 10, 1883, saying: "Having the affliction caused by kidney and liver diseases, and after enduring the aches, pains, weakness and depression incident thereto until body and soul were nearly distracted, I sought for relief and a cure for my trouble, and was told by a friend who had been cured by himself, that the best and only cure was Hunt's Remedy, and upon his recommendation I commenced taking it, and the first few doses improved my condition in a very marked manner, and a continuance of its use has justified all that my friends claimed for it—it was a sure and permanent cure for all diseases of the kidney and liver. Several of my friends in Springfield have used it with the most gratifying results, and I feel it my duty as well as a pleasure to me to recommend Hunt's Remedy in the highest possible terms."

MANUFACTURER'S TESTIMONY. Mr. H. W. FAYNE, manufacturer of Hains, saddlery, trunks, valises, etc., No. 477 Main street, Springfield, Mass., writes us under date of April 10, 1883: "GENTLEMEN, I have used Hunt's Remedy, the best medicine for diseases of the kidney, liver, bladder and urinary organs, and have received great benefit to my health from its use, and I find that it will do just what is claimed for it; it will cure disease and restore health. I therefore pronounce it the best medicine that I have ever used."

BOSTON & ALBANY RAILROAD. ALBANY HOTEL, East, paymaster Boston & Albany Railroad, at Springfield, Mass., writes April 23, 1883: "I have used Hunt's Remedy, and my experience with it has been such that I can cheerfully say that I am satisfied that it will do just what it promises to do if used according to directions."

peopans, are vastly superior to the aboriginal natives of Australia, both physically and intellectually. They number at present about 45,000, and are diminishing slowly but surely, as well as deteriorating under the influence of civilization and whisky. There is a diversity of opinion as to whether the progenitors of the race came originally from the Sandwich Islands or a more southerly group of Pacific islands. The language of nearly all the different parts in both North and South Pacific is very similar. The period of migration is estimated at the beginning of the fifteenth century. When found by the English they were considerably removed from barbarism, as they possessed stone weapons, domestic and agriculture implements, lived in houses, cooked their food by regulated heat, and were governed by a systematic code of laws. On the other hand, they regarded it as a religious duty to cook and eat as many of their enemies as they could catch. They are a warlike race and their conquest by the English was a work of extreme difficulty, as they fight in fortified "pahs," with extraordinary persistence. There is a legend of New Zealand history for which Anthony Trollope is my authority: "The Gate, pah, is supposed to have been held by about 300 Maoris. We had 1700 trained troops, as well as 15 Armstrong guns, including a 110-pounder; fired into the pah, and the Maoris came back in an infernal hailstorm of shot and shell throughout an entire day and then our men attempted to carry it by storm. They made their way into the 'pah' and the poor Maoris seemed to have attempted to escape by the back, but they were turned by others of our who had got round the back and they came back in the dark their numbers were multiplied in the imagination of the British soldiers, who had effected an entrance and a panic ensued, during which we lost twenty-seven killed and sixty-six wounded, of whom many afterwards died, among the dead being eleven officers. The Maoris remained in possession of the 'pah,' but during the night evacuated it. Nothing could have exceeded the dogged bravery with which they awaited death behind their palisades." On another occasion 135 of the attacking party were killed and the remainder of the Maoris escaped through a swamp. The Maoris are but solitary instances of the many republics maintained by the invaders' arms, and it was only after a vast expenditure of blood and money that the Maoris were effectually quelled.
