

THE DAILY BEE.

COUNCIL BLUFFS.

Thursday Morning, July 19.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: By Carrier 30 cents per week, By Mail $10.00 per Year.

OFFICE: No. 7 Pearl Street, Near Broadway.

MINOR MENTION.

Additional local on seventh page. Cheap Railroad Tickets at Bushnell's.

Plasterers have begun work on Bechtel's new hotel. The city council will try to get together to-morrow evening.

The Wells-Webster neighborhood trouble is set for adjustment to-day. De Vol & Wright are the contractors for putting the tin roof on the new opera house.

Some prominent have invitations to appear in court to-day, to answer to complaints about maintaining nuisances.

Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Dodge entertained a goodly gathering of friends in a very hospitable manner, Tuesday evening.

A little son of L. C. Empkie, while playing on the steps of the congregational church, fell and broke his arm.

One of Bancroft's wagons collided yesterday with a phaeton belonging to Justice Vaughan, wrecking the latter vehicle somewhat.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Billups died at their home near this city Tuesday, and the funeral was held yesterday afternoon.

The Congregationalists expect to have a happy social time at Mr. Mueller's this evening. A musical and literary programme is arranged.

A lawn party was given yesterday at the residence of A. B. Walker, in honor of Miss Boss, of Iowa City, and Miss Gartner, of Indiana.

Leave to wed was yesterday granted to M. L. Shinn and Ida V. Gilbert, both of this city; also to B. Oscar Campbell and Nellie Middaugh, both of Walnut.

Frank Levin has captured a new Indian and placed him in front of his smokers' headquarters on Broadway, and poor Punch has had to take a back seat.

The old frame buildings on the site of the proposed Masonic temple are being put in condition for rolling off to-day, and work will then commence in earnest.

Joseph Lainge, night watchman at the Washburn freight office, has had a run and bruises as evidence of his having been struck by a buggy in which were seated two drunken men.

This evening Rev. G. W. Woodley, of Omaha, will lecture in Bloom Nixon's hall on "The History and Origin of the Negro Race." The lecture promises to be both interesting and instructive.

J. Leutzinger's new brick building on Broadway will soon be occupied by him, the shelving and counters being put in now, and his name already appearing over the door in neat letters of gold.

The police were yesterday trying to get at the details of the causes leading to the blackening of both eyes of a well-known sporting woman, and what a bartender had to do with it, if anything.

Chief Templeton kept his ears open all of yesterday to hear the bell tap as announcing that the newspaper men had passed over Sixth street bridge in safety and that the new structure would stand the weight. The bell didn't tap.

Mike Smith, the cranky tramp who raised such a disturbance with the women folk, was yesterday sentenced to twenty days in the county jail, and he was given an hour in which to leave the city, and of course, crossed the big bridge.

The man Cain who had the trouble with Mr. Engle was not to be found yesterday, and so Engle was discharged for lack of prosecution. The case against Cain still hangs over his head, it being for assault with intent to do great bodily injury.

Andy Dary, who was arrested for an assault in Johnson's saloon on Broadway, on the Fourth, tried to turn the tables and had McGill and Barron arrested on a like charge. They were yesterday discharged, and the cost taxed up to Dary. Very little satisfaction, that.

Property owners are now being notified to trim the shade trees along the sidewalks to regulation height, eight feet, so that men with silk ties and ladies with parasols may pass along with some sort of a show for their lives. With bad sidewalks catching the feet, and branches catching their heads, it is too difficult traveling.

The report seems quite generally scattered that the Union Pacific has bought the property of John Short, on Union avenue. If the company has bought Short's property he don't know it yet, and he is going ahead with his improvements just as if he owned it still. The Union Pacific is capable of all sorts of queer moves, but it can hardly yet take a man's house for nothing.

Sheriff Guittar yesterday took to the reform school at Mitchellville the young girl, Julia Lanning, who was recently found in the street drunk. The girl, though only fifteen years of age, seems to care but little about her reputation or whereabouts, and when taken away yesterday showed less concern than if she was going off on a picnic. It was a sad case of juvenile feminine waywardness.

A Cunningham, whom Officer Mullen arrested for being drunk, was yesterday fined $9.00. A Gallagher, arrested by officers Mullen and Caieck on a like charge, was fined $7.00, it being his first offense. In most kinds of business the larger accounts a customer runs the lower rates he gets on goods, but in the police court they do not seem to follow this rule, old and frequent customers being called on to pay higher rates than new ones.

The Bee man spilled a rope and tangle in Marshal Jackson's buggy yesterday, and naturally inquired what he was doing with them. "Doing with them? Don't you know? Why, I have to use them to pull people out of the bad holes in the alleys, which I have been fairly begging the folks to fix up. It keeps me busy, too, I can tell you." And he checked a couple or two times at the mare, and rolled off, apparently discouraged at the neglect of property owners to obey orders.

A young man named Arthur McDermott lately turned over to John Jay Frayne, a horse, in satisfaction of the latter's claim against him for legal services. The young man soon after rode the horse off, and a warrant was issued for him and a writ of replevin for the horse. The father of the young man claims that the horse did not belong to the son, but to himself and the young man is not found yet, the parties concerned are in the courts, each trying to get and hold the horse.

There seems to be a determination to break up Law France's colored female boarding house. She has been again fined $25, and judgment suspended to give her a chance to get out of the business as she proposes to do. The girls were fined $10 and costs, and sent to jail, where they fairly howled over the alleged spite of the officers, who persist in breaking up one colored house, while white houses, equally bad, and other colored houses are allowed to do business. The man Harris, claiming to be a cook in the house, was fined $20, but judgment was suspended, he promising to get work in some respectable place.

The man giving his name as Bennett, who has been serving a few days in jail for flourishing a revolver on Broadway, while drunk, was released Tuesday afternoon, but at nightfall seems to have fallen from grace again. Justice Vaughan had sentenced him to jail, and so moved by the fellow's story of poverty and no work, that he let him have a half dollar to get his supper with, on the evening of his release. He proceeded to drink it up, and then stole a saddle from D. Malby's barn. Mayor Bowman arrested the fellow, who this time gave his name as L. S. Benjamin. He again appeared before Vaughan, pleaded guilty, and was sent to jail for twenty days, being unable to pay the fine of $66.66. Benjamin is said to be a painter by trade, and claims Sioux City as his home.

Mr. Ward, the architect, has been devoting what time he could spare to preparing a series of plates for use in schools, his idea being that in learning to draw correctly pupils might as well learn the mechanics of something, as the other studies generally found in a course. For instance, he has prepared plates with instructions for teaching the drawing of circles, spheres, etc., and all of these plates are showings of astronomical facts and problems, so that while the pupil is learning to draw he is learning facts concerning the various orbits, the relative size and position of planets, etc. His purpose getting up a similar series of drawing plates for human anatomy, so that while students are learning to sketch they are taught accurately the shape, size and position of the bones, and taught how to faithfully reproduce them on paper.

William Barrett, who was arrested on the charge of disturbing the peace, preferred against him by Francis Warner, with whom he had been living, had his case adjourned yesterday, he coming to some sort of settlement with the woman, by which she dropped the case on his paying the costs. Deputy Marshal White says he was present at the division of the personal property, in accordance with the terms of the truce, and that Barrett received as his share, a hat, one shirt, and a quilt. A little eight-year-old girl seems also a matter of dispute, the woman and the man both claiming her. They say they brought the girl from Michigan, and each claim the child, but it appears that the man took the girl out of the poor-house in Macomb county, Mich., her parents consenting. Her name is Clara Kirkendall, and she will be ten years old next September. He is now willing that some good family shall take the child, and the court intimates that an order to that effect will be made.

QUIETLY MADE.

Superintendent Farnham Steps Down and Out, and Superintendent McNaughton Succeeds Him.

As announced in Tuesday morning's BEE, a change has been made in the superintendency of the public schools here, by which Prof. Farnham's resignation has been offered and accepted, and Prof. J. M. McNaughton, now superintendent of the schools at Winona, Minn., is elected to fill the vacancy.

The causes which led to Prof. Farnham's resignation are numerous and complex, and a full discussion of them would evidently not help matters. It is sufficient to state that he has, during the years in which he has had charge of the schools here, met with many obstacles and hindrances, and bravely and earnestly has he kept on his course, and has won himself and for his policy of school management and theories of education many warm supporters. He is admitted to have shown himself not only an enthusiastic worker but an able man in his field of work. The board of education has seen fit to accept his resignation, however, and let him go, and a man of his experience, ability and reputation will eagerly be called for elsewhere. The board has selected as his successor Prof. J. M. McNaughton. The ballot stood at first a tie between him and Prof. Glendon, of this city, each receiving three votes, but the matter was finally decided in favor of the former. Prof. McNaughton will come here as a comparative stranger, and it is to be hoped that now that he has been elected, he will be treated with more consideration than have some of his predecessors. It is to be hoped that the position will no longer be allowed to be a mere bone of contention, and that the interests of the schools will become paramount to any desire to reward political friends, punish political enemies, and that every position in the gift of the board will be awarded for the good of the school rather than the good of the person receiving the appointment, or the mere gratification of the whims of the persons appointing. There is reason to believe that the new superintendent is a worthy man for the place. If he proves such, he certainly shall receive a hearty support and be given a chance to show his own ability without being hampered by petty jealousy and encumbered by pet schemes of others.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is designed to meet the wants of those who need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood and oil up the machinery of their bodies. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like Hood's Sarsaparilla. It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy. $1 a bottle; six for $5.

THE HAUNTED JAIL.

Some Strange Voices Talk With the Prisoners at Night.

The Mysterious Doings Now Credited to a Jailed Confidence Man.

For some time past there has been strange doings at the jail which have given the impression that the place must be haunted. Every few nights some prisoner would hear his name called by some one outside of the jail, and going to the nearest window would in the darkness carry on a conversation with some friend or relative, who failed to materialize, however. A short time ago a man who was put in jail for assaulting his brother-in-law with a razor, and cutting his throat badly, heard some one calling him at the window. He got up out of his bunk, and feeling his way to the window, asked the name of the visitor. The name was given, and proved to be that of an Irish friend, who had taken this way of holding a little chat with him. The visitor could not be mistaken, and the prisoner had no suspicion of there being anything mysterious about the matter or anything wrong. The visitor in bidding him good-bye told him that he had left some tobacco for him with the jailer. In the meantime Jailer Schontz hearing the voices staid outside to see who was there, and though he could hear the talk could discover no one. The next day the prisoner insisted on the jailer giving him the tobacco which his friend had left for him, and was quite indignant when told that his friend had left none.

The same sort of an occurrence was repeated with other prisoners. The colored boy who was lately imprisoned for stealing a watch, was called for the other night by some one outside, and on going to the window held quite a conversation with a colored friend of his, in which he talked over his case quite freely, but Jailer Schontz could not discover any one. The colored boy the next day was equally earnest in demanding the package of smoking tobacco his friend had left with the jailer, but of course the jailer had no such package.

A few days ago another prisoner named Bennett, who was arrested Sunday night for carrying concealed weapons, on being released demanded a dollar from the jailer, insisting that he had been told by a friend through the window that he had left that amount for him. In none of these cases could Jailer Schontz discover that any one had been around the outside of the jail.

The prisoners are greatly mystified, too, and it being evident that there were spirits about, they had begun to connect the manifestations with the mysterious cavern discovered on the jail grounds some time ago.

The puzzling matter has now been straightened out, and its mystery solved. The young man Fred Hill, confined in jail on the charge of being a confidence man, seems to be at the bottom of the whole affair, and the cause of the manifestations. He is a remarkable mimic, and needs only to hear a man's voice once to be able to duplicate it. He is also a good deal of a ventriloquist, and these two features of his own vocal ability, aided by the peculiar construction of the jail and the location of his cell, has enabled him, at night, to throw his voice outside, so that it appears to prisoners on the south side of the jail as if there was some one at the window calling them. He has used his ventriloquism for much amusement, and by learning a prisoner's name and something of his history, by the prisoners mingling during the daytime, has been well-informed for a midnight chat with them, impersonating some friend or relative. To add to his enjoyment he has invariably added the "tobacco" postscript at the close of the conversation, thus causing the prisoners to better Jailer Schontz by insisting on having what their friends have left for them.

Since the discovery of Fred Hill's tricks, they are being played now only on new-comers, while the other prisoners are allowed to share the fun which Hill makes for them. When Hill gets through his mysterious night visits, and fun-making at the jail, he will probably be fitted for appearing before the public and give ventriloquistic exhibitions.

Why are you ill? Why do you suffer? Everybody knows all aches and pains, all languor and debility are cured by Brown's Iron Bitters.

A Worthy Cause.

N. J. Lewis, son of J. B. Lewis, and who formerly made his home here, arrived in the city yesterday to see what could be done in regard to securing means for the relief of the family of J. W. Maddy, who was killed while assisting in the capture of the Polk City murderers. At a meeting of the citizens of Mame and vicinity a committee was appointed to procure aid for the family thus deprived of its head and support. The family consists of a wife and five children. Mr. Lewis was himself in the skirmish line, and was next to Maddy, only about ten feet from him, at the time the latter was shot down. As he had some acquaintance in Council Bluffs, the committee have sent him here to represent the case, and Mayor Bowman, with some other prominent, are to meet this morning to decide how best to go at the matter.

Several towns in this vicinity are cheerfully contributing already, and Council Bluffs will not be found behind in doing its share. The case needs little urging, the details of the whole affair being fresh in the public mind.

Look to Your Licenses.

City Clerk Troutman was heard yesterday evening giving some information to the city marshal in regard to the licenses. There were last year fifty-four expressmen who took out licenses, and, though all licenses expired on the first of the month, only nine had thus far come in to renew.

This made Jackson hot. Everybody knew that their licenses had expired. The United States never sent its officers around begging people to get out their licenses. Why should the great city of Council Bluffs do so then? He had notified the delinquents by proclamations in the papers; he had called on them, sent them word, invited them up, threatened them, abused them for their own good, reasoned with them, almost prayed with them, in fact had gone so far as to use scriptural language, though he might perhaps have used a little wrong, had in fact done everything, and now by -- well, it is evident that Jackson had got tired out of the fooling around, and was sworn off. We believe him now, when he declares that now the delinquents, not merely expressmen, but everybody, will be invited up by a process of the court, and pay the additional expense. Of course they will kick, and claim they should have been notified once more, but he says they will kick anyway, and so proposes to commence filing complaints against all who are neglecting the matter.
