BAD WHISKY.

Several Fights Help Out the State Fair Excitement.

But No One Is Seriously Injured.

State fair week started out comparatively quiet for Omaha, and very few arrests have been made thus far.

A man named Ed. Hanley was arrested about noon yesterday for picking a man's pocket of a watch and a small sum of money. Last evening Mr. W. H Smith, one of the proprietors of the saloon on Twelfth and Harney, was assaulted in front of the St. Charles hotel, knocked down, kicked and terribly beaten. W. B. McCutcheon was arrested as the perpetrator of the deed. McCutcheon had been in the saloon in the afternoon and had a difficulty with Smith's partner, who was equal to the omergency and cleaned him out. He seems to have laid up a grudge against Smith, and attacked him as he was returning from supper. Smith was quite badly cut, and his wounds were dressed by a doctor at the jail.

A serious fight occurred on Fifteenth and Douglas, between a saloonkeeper and a young man, which drew a crewd of two or three handred people. Both men were run in and locked up. There was a regular battle just outside the gates of the fair grounds about six o'clock, which lasted for half an hour. A couple of men were arrested and sub-sequently released.

SOAKING THE SHOW.

A Bad Day But a Big Crowd

The State Fair Booms Despite Adverse Weather.

The Races Postponed Until To-Day. The fourth day of the state fair dawned

Every train in brought crowds of visitors, the hotels were thronged and the streets crowded. By nine o'clock a train of vehicles of every description filled the thoroughfare leading to the driving park and the which went out were loaded down with sight seers. The scene at the main gateway was a lively one, and it was with the utmost difficulty that the buggies and foot passengers could crowd in. It was evident that the crowd was to be a big one, and so it proved, for there nust have been at least 20,000 people on the grounds before the day

The rain had somewhat hurt the condition The rain had somewhat hurt the condition of things, for great pools of water lay along the east side and on the inside ponds were to be seen here and there and mud everywhere. Notwithstanding this disagreeable state of of affairs, the crowd seemed disposed to make the best of everything, and the day passed off in the pleasantest manner imaginable. The halls were all in complete order, and, together with the show of stock and agricultural implements, made up an exhibition worth traveling with the show of stock and agricultural implements, made up an exhibition worth traveling many miles to see. In fact, if the fair was designed to show the boundless resources of Nebraska, it could not possibly have been more of a success, and some of the county exhibits were truly wonderful.

The races were of course an important feature of the day, and it was feared that the track would not be in condition for them. An attempt was made to drain the course, but about noon the sky sgain, because coversat attempt was made to drain the course, but about noon the sky again became overcast and the rain was soon falling in so lively a manner that it was determined to give up all the races except the chariot race, which pleased the visitors probably more than any other would have done.

The races announced for yesterday afternoon will take place at 10 a.m. to-day, and the regular programme will follow in the afternoon. Thus it will be seen that to-day will be the biggest day of the week in point of attractions, and it will no doubt see the largest attendance yet had.

The or repertoire is the same but more prop ally presented. All of Fay's costumes and Olivette belitted her charmingly. She made her appearance in a short skirt of rose satin, with enormous hat and corsage bo-quet as big, and changed it or a Mother Hubbard, of creamy Spraigh lace. In the second act she came out with a silver gray satin, and in the third was dressed silk and lace, with heavy veil, a Spanish costume, in which she was most bewitching of all.

Her support is better from the ladies than the gentlemen, with the exception, perhaps, of Le Lange as Coguelicot. The duet, "A Te O Cara," between Olivette and the Countess, was very well

A Case of Deliberate Suicide,

About 9:30 last evening Mr. Bowen, of the firm of Bowen & McGreer, carpenters and manufacturers, shot himself at his room on Dodge and Eleventh and discoursed their sweetest music dur-

Bowen was a young man about 24 years from Muscatine, Iowa. He was subject to fits of melancholy and had often threatened to blow his brains eut. Yesterday afternoon his partner and roommate, Mr. McGreer, went to the fair, leaving him in apparently good spirits. When he went to tea in the evening he learned that Bowen had not been there but thought nothing of it until he went to his room about 9:30, when he found a ghastly sight awaitieg him. His partner lay stretched out on the floor, his head toward the east, a pool of blood surrounding him and his brains oozing out through a fearful hole in his skull. A revolver found lying by his side with one empty chamber and a box of cartridges on the window-sill, told the story. If additional confirmation was needed it was found in the bullet-hole, which showed itself just above the right temple, and the hole made by its exit, back of the left ear. The bullet, somewhat flattened, was also picked up in one corner of the room. Dr. Geo. B. Ayres was summoned and Sheriff Miller and Met Baker, of Coroner Jacobs, establishment were notified, and all three soon put in an appearance.
