

THE DAILY BEE.

COUNCIL BLUFFS.

Saturday Morning, October 6.

Subscription Rates: By Carrier 50 cents per week; By Mail $10.00 per Year.

Office: 67 Pearl Street, Near Broadway.

MINOR MENTION.

See Joseph Reiter's tall goods. Cheap Railroad Tickets at Bushnell's. In the Superior Court yesterday the business of issuing naturalization papers began.

The Baptist Sunday school is to be given a concert to-morrow evening at the church.

Usual service in the morning at the Baptist church to-morrow, and a Sunday School concert in the evening.

Peter Bechtele is getting the interior of his hotel fitted up, so that he expects to open in grand style by a week from to-day.

Permit to wed was granted yesterday to Thomas H. Lee and Ida Reed, both of Saunders, Neb.; P. E. Boeckel and Adelia Timm, both of Avoca.

The boys charged with stealing water-melons were before Justice Abbott yesterday. One was discharged, and the others are to be heard from on the 16th inst.

The horse team contest, between the Thursdays and Bluff City, takes place across the river to-day. It is to be hoped that a return race will be arranged for this side.

Rev. Alfred K. Bates has accepted the call as pastor of the Presbyterian church in this city, and expects to enter upon his work here on the first Sabbath of November.

In view of the many things which the city needs more just now, it is probable that the preparing of plans for improving Fairmount park will be put off until another season.

Evidence of immortality. Investigators invited. Spiritual circle to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon and evening, in Spiritual hall, Shugart & Ben's block. Meeting at 2 and 7:30 o'clock.

An information was filed yesterday against Charles Sales, charging him with doing a common carrier business without having the necessary license. John Martin, the expressman, made the complaint.

The city has broken sidewalks and bot-tomless street to ensnare the unwary and break their legs, but no hospital into which to take the wounded for treatment. As long as it is the one it should hasten to provide the other.

There will be a Sunday School Concert at the Baptist church to-morrow evening. The young folks have been under the training of Mrs. D. C. Myers, and an interesting programme has been arranged which everybody will be invited to be present and enjoy.

Contributions continue to pour into the Home of the Friendless, indicating that Council Bluffs not only recognizes but gladly gives support to a worthy institution. With this proof there should be a revival of the scene for starting a city hospital, which is greatly needed.

Mr. Cannon, the father-in-law of Mr. J. W. Roderfer, died Thursday night. The death was by no means unexpected, as the old gentleman had been ill some time and very feeble. The remains will probably be taken to Keokuk, his old home, for interment.

Quite a colony from Sullivan, Ind., were at the Pacific house yesterday on route for Dakota in search of land. In the party were J. A. Scammon, Eliza Wells, A. N. Weir, George Case, James Hughes, F. Hunsell, Wm. C. Shattuck, M. S. Herbert, and Jno. W. Hunt.

Oscar Phelps, one of the fast pacing team formerly owned by C. E. Mayne, has been winning some fast races and high honors at Ohio falls this fall. He is now owned by Mr. Palmer, of Bellefontaine, O., who has lately become a member of the coal firm of Mayne & Palmer here.

The case against Frank Odell for paying himself off with a load of hay, was promptly dismissed by Justice Abbott, the evidence showing that he was acting in accordance with the instructions of employer and agreement made with him and that he was entitled to the hay.

Information was yesterday filed against W. E. Hilliker, Ed. Anderson, Jim Wilson, John Nortie, and Bowen & Morrison, for keeping gambling houses. In other words these gentlemen were invited to call at the city headquarters and pay their usual license for running a business in violation of both city and State law.

The addition to the Home for the Friendless, is 37 feet long, divided into three rooms. Work is progressing, and it is hoped that within a week or ten days it will be ready for the donations of furniture, bedding, etc., to fit them up. Hays & Gleason, and Maurer & Craig, are among the latest contributors in cash, each giving $10, and others have also been generous, but there are still many needs to be met.

George Fuerhausen was brought before Justice Abbott yesterday on a charge of malicious trespass. It appears that he sold some lumber to Ezra Mott, to use in his house, and because the latter failed to pay, he put wheels under the house and rolled it off. Fuerhausen in turn had Mott arrested for disposing of mort-gaged property, claiming that he ran off a wagon and other property on which he held a mortgage. Both cases are to be heard on the 12th inst.

Jim Givens and Floyd Cozzena, the two colored fellows who cut each other up so badly in an affray at the Ogdén house, where they were employed, had their examination before Judge Ayres and were sent back to jail to await the action of the grand jury, bail being fixed at $500 each, the charge being assault with intent to do great bodily injury. It seems that both were to blame, and that it was a sort of a slashing duel, each determined to carve the other up into pieces.

To Voters. I hereby announce myself to the voters of Pottawattamie county as an independent candidate for county surveyor.

J. P. Jusoux. House Furnishing. When in need of carpets, curtains, shades, rugs, blankets, or other household supplies, you will save money by buying of CASADY & ORCUTT.

SLICK SCHEMES.

They Fall, However, to Bleed the In-tended Victim.

One Jailed on the Charge of Black-mailing, the Other Escaped.

A Warning to Suspicious Couples.

A very shrewd scheme was planned to entrap John Nicholson into paying $100 for alleged detective work, but it failed in this case, but with a less confiding couple than he and his wife, it might not only have been worked successfully, but might easily have resulted in the breaking up of the home life, furnishing food for scandal, and possibly leading to a tragedy. The fellow planning it ran the risk of all this for the sake of getting a little money.

A note was brought to Mr. Nicholson's place of business on Broadway, a boy handing it to him. It was signed Maggie Buckingham, and written in a feminine hand. It requested him to call upon her that evening, giving the number of the house as that of a well known sporting place. Nicholson told the boy to tell the woman that he didn't know her, and didn't want to know her. If she had any business with him she could come to his place.

A note was brought to Mr. Nicholson's place of business on Broadway, a boy handing it to him. It was signed Maggie Buckingham, and written in a feminine hand. It requested him to call upon her that evening, giving the number of the house as that of a well known sporting place. Nicholson told the boy to tell the woman that he didn't know her, and didn't want to know her. If she had any business with him she could come to his place.

At an early hour yesterday morning some passer-by on Broadway, near the Coy house, made a strange discovery, which caused quite a good deal of excitement for a time in that vicinity and soon got noised around pretty generally on the streets. The discovery was that of the remains of some stranger, the only part at first discernible being the toes of the boots, which were just above the mud, indicating that the man was lying at full length on his back. The boots were pretty badly dilapidated, as though belonging to some homeless or poverty-stricken sort of a man, who, in his wanderings about at night, had laid down in the street to sleep, or had been felled by some deadly blow, or dropped by some sudden attack of apoplexy, heart disease or something of the sort.

The street at and below that point is in a horrible condition, and almost bottomless, and while so many of those who gathered at the spot were conjecturing as to how the remains came there, or whose they were, the more practical ones proceeded to examine and remove them. The remains lay very near the street car track, and some thought that he must have fallen off the car, and on wading out to where the remains were, and examining them, they were found in a horrible condition, and beyond recognition. The remains were those of a man of pretty large size, but getting a shovelful of earth away from the mud, all that was found of the remains was the boots, that which appeared to be the body being only where some of the mud, more solid than most of it, had been formed into a little mound. The boots were replaced as found, the mound restored, a large withered bouquet placed above the form thus made, and a board stuck up where the head ought to be, with due cautions placed upon it, calling the attention of the city council to the condition of the street, and warning passers-by of the fate which would befall them if they did not keep on the sidewalk.

It then became apparent that the plan was to get Mrs. Nicholson to visit the house referred to, excited by the information that her husband was there. One of the parties evidently intended to introduce himself as the friend who sent the note to her, and offer to escort her to the place and convince her of the truth of the assertion, and doubtless get her to pay him for the information.

The other would take Nicholson to a spot where he could see the other two enter the house, and get $100 for the information furnished him, and before explanations could be made, the fellows would be off with the black-mailing plunder.

The plan failed signally, in their case, as Mr. Nicholson putting the police on the track, they soon arrested one of the young men concerned, who gave his name as Arnold Jesse. He was placed in jail to await examination. His comrade has disappeared, and the boy who brought the note to Nicholson is also missing. Had Nicholson and his wife been more suspicious, there is no telling what might have been the final outcome.

The Anniversary of the Finding of the Buried Money for which Murder was Committed.

The rainy day reminiscences given by THE BEE yesterday, as gathered from a talk among some old settlers sheltering themselves at the Pacific house, called forth many comments during the day, and some further differences of opinion as to which was the first brick house built in Council Bluffs. One who was a boy at the time of the murders narrated in THE BEE as taking place thirty years ago, spoke up and said: "Well, there's one thing I do remember in connection with Muir murdering Lord. I remember the finding of the money seventeen or eighteen years after the murder. It was about this way. Just before Muir was hung by the crowd, he made full confession to D. B. Clark and Mr. Shinn, who afterwards went to Omaha, the father of Frank Shinn, the lawyer. Muir went on to tell where he had buried the money, too, and described the spot as best he could, and the very tree under which it was buried, together with the watch. Shinn took down everything in a memorandum book, and afterwards he and Clark tried to find the place in Missouri, where he had buried a bit more money, and they took the description of that too. They hunted up the place here, where Muir said he had buried Lord's money, but could not find any wealth. They hunted and dug and dug and hunted, and gave it up finally, thinking the fellow had lied to them.

"Years after that when the road was being cut through there by H. H. Fields some of the men were digging out a stump came across the spot, found some of the money and the silver watch which belonged to Lord. The purse was a sort of buckskin affair, and there was nothing left of that but the steel rings, and the watch wasn't, of course, worth anything. That was years after the murder--I don't remember exactly how long--why, I declare, there's the old man over there that can tell all about it," and grabbing THE BEE reporter by the arm he steered him for the muddy crossing, which an old man, an Irishman, was trying to clean off with a shovel.

This old man remembered the event well. He was there, but was not the one that found the money. A man named Burns found some of it first. The old man was working a little distance away, and noticing the men gathering about the stump and looking earnestly at something he went to where they were. At first Burns said he had dropped a knife, and was hunting for it, but it soon looked out differently. The first piece found was a twenty franc gold piece, and the finder thought it was a medal, but some one else of the party soon told what it was. On hearing of the discovery Mr. Shinn came over from Omaha, and comparing the description of the spot and the tree as given by the murderer and robber nearly twenty years before, found that it answered exactly, and that he and Mr. Clark had hunted within twenty feet of this very spot, and had failed to find the money. Mr. Shinn then took new faith in the story about having hidden money in Missouri, and thought quite seriously of making a hunt there. The old man said that the finding of the money was in 1871, just twelve years ago this very month, and that having given the final touch to the sequel of the Lord murder he went on with his shoveling.

BURIED IN MUD.

The Remains of a Stranger Found in the Mire on Broadway.

The Toes of His Boots the Only Part Above Ground.

At an early hour yesterday morning some passer-by on Broadway, near the Coy house, made a strange discovery, which caused quite a good deal of excitement for a time in that vicinity and soon got noised around pretty generally on the streets. The discovery was that of the remains of some stranger, the only part at first discernible being the toes of the boots, which were just above the mud, indicating that the man was lying at full length on his back. The boots were pretty badly dilapidated, as though belonging to some homeless or poverty-stricken sort of a man, who, in his wanderings about at night, had laid down in the street to sleep, or had been felled by some deadly blow, or dropped by some sudden attack of apoplexy, heart disease or something of the sort.

The street at and below that point is in a horrible condition, and almost bottomless, and while so many of those who gathered at the spot were conjecturing as to how the remains came there, or whose they were, the more practical ones proceeded to examine and remove them. The remains lay very near the street car track, and some thought that he must have fallen off the car, and on wading out to where the remains were, and examining them, they were found in a horrible condition, and beyond recognition. The remains were those of a man of pretty large size, but getting a shovelful of earth away from the mud, all that was found of the remains was the boots, that which appeared to be the body being only where some of the mud, more solid than most of it, had been formed into a little mound. The boots were replaced as found, the mound restored, a large withered bouquet placed above the form thus made, and a board stuck up where the head ought to be, with due cautions placed upon it, calling the attention of the city council to the condition of the street, and warning passers-by of the fate which would befall them if they did not keep on the sidewalk.

It then became apparent that the plan was to get Mrs. Nicholson to visit the house referred to, excited by the information that her husband was there. One of the parties evidently intended to introduce himself as the friend who sent the note to her, and offer to escort her to the place and convince her of the truth of the assertion, and doubtless get her to pay him for the information.

The other would take Nicholson to a spot where he could see the other two enter the house, and get $100 for the information furnished him, and before explanations could be made, the fellows would be off with the black-mailing plunder.

The plan failed signally, in their case, as Mr. Nicholson putting the police on the track, they soon arrested one of the young men concerned, who gave his name as Arnold Jesse. He was placed in jail to await examination. His comrade has disappeared, and the boy who brought the note to Nicholson is also missing. Had Nicholson and his wife been more suspicious, there is no telling what might have been the final outcome.

The Anniversary of the Finding of the Buried Money for which Murder was Committed.

The rainy day reminiscences given by THE BEE yesterday, as gathered from a talk among some old settlers sheltering themselves at the Pacific house, called forth many comments during the day, and some further differences of opinion as to which was the first brick house built in Council Bluffs. One who was a boy at the time of the murders narrated in THE BEE as taking place thirty years ago, spoke up and said: "Well, there's one thing I do remember in connection with Muir murdering Lord. I remember the finding of the money seventeen or eighteen years after the murder. It was about this way. Just before Muir was hung by the crowd, he made full confession to D. B. Clark and Mr. Shinn, who afterwards went to Omaha, the father of Frank Shinn, the lawyer. Muir went on to tell where he had buried the money, too, and described the spot as best he could, and the very tree under which it was buried, together with the watch. Shinn took down everything in a memorandum book, and afterwards he and Clark tried to find the place in Missouri, where he had buried a bit more money, and they took the description of that too. They hunted up the place here, where Muir said he had buried Lord's money, but could not find any wealth. They hunted and dug and dug and hunted, and gave it up finally, thinking the fellow had lied to them.

"Years after that when the road was being cut through there by H. H. Fields some of the men were digging out a stump came across the spot, found some of the money and the silver watch which belonged to Lord. The purse was a sort of buckskin affair, and there was nothing left of that but the steel rings, and the watch wasn't, of course, worth anything. That was years after the murder--I don't remember exactly how long--why, I declare, there's the old man over there that can tell all about it," and grabbing THE BEE reporter by the arm he steered him for the muddy crossing, which an old man, an Irishman, was trying to clean off with a shovel.

This old man remembered the event well. He was there, but was not the one that found the money. A man named Burns found some of it first. The old man was working a little distance away, and noticing the men gathering about the stump and looking earnestly at something he went to where they were. At first Burns said he had dropped a knife, and was hunting for it, but it soon looked out differently. The first piece found was a twenty franc gold piece, and the finder thought it was a medal, but some one else of the party soon told what it was. On hearing of the discovery Mr. Shinn came over from Omaha, and comparing the description of the spot and the tree as given by the murderer and robber nearly twenty years before, found that it answered exactly, and that he and Mr. Clark had hunted within twenty feet of this very spot, and had failed to find the money. Mr. Shinn then took new faith in the story about having hidden money in Missouri, and thought quite seriously of making a hunt there. The old man said that the finding of the money was in 1871, just twelve years ago this very month, and that having given the final touch to the sequel of the Lord murder he went on with his shoveling.

It then became apparent that the plan was to get Mrs. Nicholson to visit the house referred to, excited by the information that her husband was there. One of the parties evidently intended to introduce himself as the friend who sent the note to her, and offer to escort her to the place and convince her of the truth of the assertion, and doubtless get her to pay him for the information.

The other would take Nicholson to a spot where he could see the other two enter the house, and get $100 for the information furnished him, and before explanations could be made, the fellows would be off with the black-mailing plunder.

The plan failed signally, in their case, as Mr. Nicholson putting the police on the track, they soon arrested one of the young men concerned, who gave his name as Arnold Jesse. He was placed in jail to await examination. His comrade has disappeared, and the boy who brought the note to Nicholson is also missing. Had Nicholson and his wife been more suspicious, there is no telling what might have been the final outcome.

The Anniversary of the Finding of the Buried Money for which Murder was Committed.

The rainy day reminiscences given by THE BEE yesterday, as gathered from a talk among some old settlers sheltering themselves at the Pacific house, called forth many comments during the day, and some further differences of opinion as to which was the first brick house built in Council Bluffs. One who was a boy at the time of the murders narrated in THE BEE as taking place thirty years ago, spoke up and said: "Well, there's one thing I do remember in connection with Muir murdering Lord. I remember the finding of the money seventeen or eighteen years after the murder. It was about this way. Just before Muir was hung by the crowd, he made full confession to D. B. Clark and Mr. Shinn, who afterwards went to Omaha, the father of Frank Shinn, the lawyer. Muir went on to tell where he had buried the money, too, and described the spot as best he could, and the very tree under which it was buried, together with the watch. Shinn took down everything in a memorandum book, and afterwards he and Clark tried to find the place in Missouri, where he had buried a bit more money, and they took the description of that too. They hunted up the place here, where Muir said he had buried Lord's money, but could not find any wealth. They hunted and dug and dug and hunted, and gave it up finally, thinking the fellow had lied to them.

"Years after that when the road was being cut through there by H. H. Fields some of the men were digging out a stump came across the spot, found some of the money and the silver watch which belonged to Lord. The purse was a sort of buckskin affair, and there was nothing left of that but the steel rings, and the watch wasn't, of course, worth anything. That was years after the murder--I don't remember exactly how long--why, I declare, there's the old man over there that can tell all about it," and grabbing THE BEE reporter by the arm he steered him for the muddy crossing, which an old man, an Irishman, was trying to clean off with a shovel.

This old man remembered the event well. He was there, but was not the one that found the money. A man named Burns found some of it first. The old man was working a little distance away, and noticing the men gathering about the stump and looking earnestly at something he went to where they were. At first Burns said he had dropped a knife, and was hunting for it, but it soon looked out differently. The first piece found was a twenty franc gold piece, and the finder thought it was a medal, but some one else of the party soon told what it was. On hearing of the discovery Mr. Shinn came over from Omaha, and comparing the description of the spot and the tree as given by the murderer and robber nearly twenty years before, found that it answered exactly, and that he and Mr. Clark had hunted within twenty feet of this very spot, and had failed to find the money. Mr. Shinn then took new faith in the story about having hidden money in Missouri, and thought quite seriously of making a hunt there. The old man said that the finding of the money was in 1871, just twelve years ago this very month, and that having given the final touch to the sequel of the Lord murder he went on with his shoveling.

It then became apparent that the plan was to get Mrs. Nicholson to visit the house referred to, excited by the information that her husband was there. One of the parties evidently intended to introduce himself as the friend who sent the note to her, and offer to escort her to the place and convince her of the truth of the assertion, and doubtless get her to pay him for the information.

The other would take Nicholson to a spot where he could see the other two enter the house, and get $100 for the information furnished him, and before explanations could be made, the fellows would be off with the black-mailing plunder.

The plan failed signally, in their case, as Mr. Nicholson putting the police on the track, they soon arrested one of the young men concerned, who gave his name as Arnold Jesse. He was placed in jail to await examination. His comrade has disappeared, and the boy who brought the note to Nicholson is also missing. Had Nicholson and his wife been more suspicious, there is no telling what might have been the final outcome.

The Anniversary of the Finding of the Buried Money for which Murder was Committed.

The rainy day reminiscences given by THE BEE yesterday, as gathered from a talk among some old settlers sheltering themselves at the Pacific house, called forth many comments during the day, and some further differences of opinion as to which was the first brick house built in Council Bluffs. One who was a boy at the time of the murders narrated in THE BEE as taking place thirty years ago, spoke up and said: "Well, there's one thing I do remember in connection with Muir murdering Lord. I remember the finding of the money seventeen or eighteen years after the murder. It was about this way. Just before Muir was hung by the crowd, he made full confession to D. B. Clark and Mr. Shinn, who afterwards went to Omaha, the father of Frank Shinn, the lawyer. Muir went on to tell where he had buried the money, too, and described the spot as best he could, and the very tree under which it was buried, together with the watch. Shinn took down everything in a memorandum book, and afterwards he and Clark tried to find the place in Missouri, where he had buried a bit more money, and they took the description of that too. They hunted up the place here, where Muir said he had buried Lord's money, but could not find any wealth. They hunted and dug and dug and hunted, and gave it up finally, thinking the fellow had lied to them.

"Years after that when the road was being cut through there by H. H. Fields some of the men were digging out a stump came across the spot, found some of the money and the silver watch which belonged to Lord. The purse was a sort of buckskin affair, and there was nothing left of that but the steel rings, and the watch wasn't, of course, worth anything. That was years after the murder--I don't remember exactly how long--why, I declare, there's the old man over there that can tell all about it," and grabbing THE BEE reporter by the arm he steered him for the muddy crossing, which an old man, an Irishman, was trying to clean off with a shovel.

This old man remembered the event well. He was there, but was not the one that found the money. A man named Burns found some of it first. The old man was working a little distance away, and noticing the men gathering about the stump and looking earnestly at something he went to where they were. At first Burns said he had dropped a knife, and was hunting for it, but it soon looked out differently. The first piece found was a twenty franc gold piece, and the finder thought it was a medal, but some one else of the party soon told what it was. On hearing of the discovery Mr. Shinn came over from Omaha, and comparing the description of the spot and the tree as given by the murderer and robber nearly twenty years before, found that it answered exactly, and that he and Mr. Clark had hunted within twenty feet of this very spot, and had failed to find the money. Mr. Shinn then took new faith in the story about having hidden money in Missouri, and thought quite seriously of making a hunt there. The old man said that the finding of the money was in 1871, just twelve years ago this very month, and that having given the final touch to the sequel of the Lord murder he went on with his shoveling.

It then became apparent that the plan was to get Mrs. Nicholson to visit the house referred to, excited by the information that her husband was there. One of the parties evidently intended to introduce himself as the friend who sent the note to her, and offer to escort her to the place and convince her of the truth of the assertion, and doubtless get her to pay him for the information.

Empkie Hardware Co. WHOLESALE Hardware! 109 and 111 S. Main Street, COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA.

Metcalf Bros., WHOLESALE DEALERS IN HATS, CAPS BUCK GLOVES, 342 and 344 Broadway, COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA.

Ice Cream, Fruits & Confectionery Parties, Sociables and Picnics supplied on short notice, and goods delivered to all parts of the city. Vienna Bread, and Pies. Fine Cigars. W. T. BRAUN'S European Restaurant, 404 West Broadway, COUNCIL BLUFFS.

HOUSES, LOTS AND LANDS Bought and Sold. Money Loaned, Abstracts Furnished P. J. McMAHON No. 4 Pearl Street, COUNCIL BLUFFS.

MAYNE & PALMER, DEALERS IN Bulk and Barrel Lime Louisville & Portland Cement MICHIGAN PLASTER, HAIR AND SEWER PIPE, HARD AND SOFT COAL AT LOWEST PRICE. No. 539 Broadway, COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA.

SMITH & TOLLER, Overcoatings and PANTALOONS! Merchant Tailors. 7 and 9 Main Street.

DIRECTORY, COUNCIL BLUFFS, IA.

JOHN BENO & CO., GENERAL MERCHANDISE, 18 Main Street and 17 Pearl Street. MAX MOHN, GROCERY HOUSE, Grocery, 216 Main Street. DR. J. F. WHITE, OFFICE, Corner Main and Fifth streets. N. SCHURZ, JUSTICE OF THE PEACE, Office over American Express. S. S. WAGNER, LIVERY AND FEED, Will contract for funerals at reasonable rates. J. M. ST. JOHN & CO., CASH BUYERS, Wholesale and Retail Eggs, poultry and fruit. D. A. BENEDICT, SIGN WRITER AND GRAINER, Office 327 Broadway, Council Bluffs, Iowa. JACOB KOCH, MERCHANT TAILOR, Stock Complete. Suits made at reasonable prices. G. F. SMITH, CONTRACTOR AND BUILDER, Corner 7th and Broadway. W. W. SHERMAN, DEALER IN FINE HAIRNESS, I have the variety that brings patronage. JAMES FRANEY, MERCHANT TAILOR, Artistic Work and reasonable charges. HOWE & SON, FURNITURE STORES, 265 Broadway. LINDT & HART, ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Practice in State and Federal Courts. SANITARIUM, And bath house, 427 and 422 Broadway. EDWIN J. ABBOTT, JUSTICE OF THE PEACE, Notary Public and General Conveyancer. REVERE HOUSE, SMITH & NORTON, Broadway opposite New Opera House.

HAIR GOODS OF ALL KINDS. Sold at the Lowest Prices. IN THE WEST, QUALITY CONSIDERED. AT MRS. D. A. BENEDICT, 337 W. Broadway, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

SULLIVAN & FITZGERALD, DEALERS IN Groceries, Provisions, Boots and Shoes IMMIGRATION AGENTS. DRAFTS ON THE BANK OF IRELAND, DUBLIN, FOR SALE, 343 BROADWAY, COUNCIL BLUFFS.

CRESTON HOUSE, MAX MOHN, PROPRIETOR, 212, 217 and 219 S. Main Street, COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA.

SKELTON, HENDRICKS & RICE, TAILORS, 102 MAIN STREET, COUNCIL BLUFFS.

FALL AND WINTER STOCK NOW COMPLETE, EMBRACING MANY NOVELTIES NOT TO BE FOUND ELSEWHERE. YOUR TRADE IS SOLICITED

MRS. D. A. BENEDICT, DEALER IN Ladies' Furnishing Goods! NOTIONS, JEWELRY, &c. 337 W. Broadway, COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA.

PETER C. MILLER, WHOLESALE AND RETAIL Wall-Paper and Window Shades and Painting in all its Branches. FRESKOING IN MODERN STYLE. No. 13 South Pearl St. - Council Bluffs.

DEVOL & WRIGHT, Hardware. 504 Broadway and 10 and 12 Main St., Council Bluffs. PROMPT ATTENTION AND CLOSE PRICES ON MAIL ORDERS.

R. S. COLE & CO., MANUFACTURER AND DEALERS IN ALL the Most Improved Kinds of Lightning Rods And Ornaments. Also Wood and Iron Pumps, Wood Tubing and Gas Pipe and Pipe Fittings, for both No. 604 South Main Street, COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA.

M. CALLACHER, GROCERIES. New Store, Fresh Goods, Low Prices and Polite Attendants. First Door east of Metropolitan Hotel, LOWER BROADWAY, Council Bluffs.

Broadway Steam Laundry! 724 WEST BROADWAY. A. C. LARSON, Proprietor. LATEST IMPROVED MACHINERY.

Clifton Restaurant. J. A. ROSS, PROPRIETOR. 537 BROADWAY, COUNCIL BLUFFS. Is the place for A. No. 1 Meals. Day Boarders accommodated and guarantee satisfaction.

Model Steam Laundry! 712 BROADWAY, COUNCIL BLUFFS. N. A. CHRISTIANSON, Proprietor. Has just opened a new and well fitted steam laundry. Guarantee good work. Please give me a trial.

IF YOU WANT BOOTS, SHOES OR RUBBERS CALL ON S. A. PIERCE, Corner Main and First Avenue, Council Bluffs. He has Them.

CURE OR NO PAY. SILOAM Mineral Springs! The following are the time of arrival and departure of trains from the local depot. The trains of the Union Pacific depot about ten minutes earlier than below stated, and arrive at the depot about ten minutes later.

Novelty Works 17 NORTH MAIN ST., COUNCIL BLUFFS. KLENCK & JUREY, PROPRIETORS. All kinds of repairing. Furniture repaired and finished. Chairs re-upholstered and re-seated. All kinds of Upholstering. Locks, Bolts and Electric Instruments repaired. Speaking Tubes put in old or new buildings. Keys fitted and Saws repaired. First class work guaranteed. Give us a trial.

OFFICER & PUSEY BANKERS. Council Bluffs. Established 1856. Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Exchange and Home Securities.

W. R. VAUGHAN, Justice of the Peace. Omaha and Council Bluffs. Real estate and collection agency. 555 1/2 Fellow's block, over Savings Bank.

R. Rice M. D. Cancers, or other tumors removed without the knife or drawing of blood. Chronic Diseases of kind's a specialty. My thirty years practical experience. Office No. 5 Pearl Street, Council Bluffs, Iowa. Consultation free.

Mrs. H. J. Hilton, M. D., PHYSICIAN & SURGEON, 222 Broadway, Council Bluffs.

JACOB SIMS, E. J. CADWELL, Attorneys-at-Law, COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA. Office, Main Street, Rooms 1 and 2, Shugart & McMain's Block. Will practice in State and Federal Courts.

DR. CHEEVERS' ELECTRIC BELT FOR MEN ONLY. The most powerful and largest stock west of Chicago of Wooden and Metallic Cases. Calls attended to at all hours. We do not consider the quality of goods or price. Our MR. SARGENT has served as undertaker for forty years and thoroughly understands his business. Warranted, $10 BROADWAY, UPOLSTERING in all its branches promptly attended to; also carpet laying, lampreting, etc. Telephone calls; mail orders filled without delay.

MISSOURI HARD WOOD! AND HARD AND SOFT Coal A BOON TO MEN -WITH- P. OVERTON, 505 First Avenue, - Council Bluffs, Iowa. And secure the best article and full measure at the very low price. Stone wood delivered to any part of the city.