WIDE AWAKE.

A City of Five Thousand Inhabitants, with Water Works and Street Cars, and Still Growing.

Correspondence of Tux Bax.

Ren Oak, Iowa, December 5,taste in location, excellency in construction, and beauty of surroundings, Red Oak may justly claim the title of "Gem of the Valley," situated, as it is, a little east of the confluence of a stream called Red Oak with the Nishnabotana river, fringed on the east, south and west with beautiful woodland. It presents the appearance of a beautiful picture set in an elegant frame.

It is built partly in the valley and partly on a hill, the business part of the town being in the valley, while the more pretentious residences occupy the hills. Numbering nearly five thousand inhabitants, it is far ahead of many towns of double that number in public spirit, enterprise and everything that goes to make up a town of grit and "git there." It has long since laid aside its village swaddling clothes, and assumed those of a metropolitan cut, and wears them with ease and grace. It has a splendid system of water works, that supplies the city with an abundance of good and pure water, which have been in operation something more than three years and have paid for themto give a ball on Christmas evening, and selves many times over in the saving of one occasion of late, and the only excuse

The improvements in the city this year new grove in Argus, Boone county, have not been so great in numbers but construction. The Red Oak National bank Co. have erected one of the finest bank buildings in this part of the state and indeed it will compare favorably with any in the state. This institution will be very strong financially and, under the management of the Hon. Justus Clark its president it can seurcely fail to exert a commanding influence over the fortunes of the town.

FOOLISHLY JEALOUS.

A Man Loves His Wife So Much That He Thumps Her.

Yesterday afternoon Judge Aylesworth was called upon to adjust W. J. Matthews, a man who seems to be getting along very well in the world, financially and otherwise, except that he is intensely jealous and of a very excitable nature, so much so that his acts have about broken up his home. His wife complained of him, because yesterday he thumped her and even raised a chair to brain herwith. She claimed that he had been very quarrelsome for about two weeks, and she could stand it no more. He admitted that he had struck his wife on more than he could give was that he did it on the spur of the moment, and that county, a pedlar came to the house while he was away, and on his return his wife told him that the man was a hard look- No. 7 and 9 Main Street, Council Bluffs, Iowa. ing customer, and that she was afraid he would come back and do them harm. He wanted to know of his wife if the man had insulted her, but she calmned him ago, however, in talking with him she owned up that the peddlar had insulted her, and from that time since the husband has been charging her with being untrue to him, and at times became at enraged by his foolish jealousy as to beat her and abuse her. The neighbors and friends all give her the credit of being after receiving some pretty sharp advice from the court, and making promises to fine.
