THE TWO "QUACKS."

Sheriff Cannon Receives His Warrant From the Governor.

And Proceeds to Tennessee With His Prisoners.

We were informed last evening that Sheriff Cannon, who came here from Tennessee in search of the two "quack" doctors whom Sheriff Miller arrested some few days since, and of which mention was made in THE BEE at the time, yesterday received a warrant from the governor giving the required authority to him for their return to Tennessee, where they are wanted for obtaining money under false pretenses. The defending attorney exerted himself in their behalf in order to obtain a writ of habeas corpus, and Sheriff Cannon was detained at Lincoln for some time on this account. But the governor, viewing things in their proper light, ordered the issuance of the proper papers to Sheriff Cannon, and the "quacks" go back to where they are wanted for their dishonesty, and they will, in all probability have an opportunity of learning good trades at the expense of the state of Tennessee, which will, perhaps, make more useful men of them in the future.

They employed an honest fellow named W. B. Kerley prior to their coming to Omaha, and brought him here with them as their servant. They promised him great things and borrowed all the money he had, which we are informed by Mr. Jones, clerk at the Metropolitan, was about fifty dollars. Mr. Jones informs us that the poor fellow is now here and without a nickel.

IN DEFENSE.

A Claim That "Alpha" Made a Fling at the Wrong Man.

St. Edward, January 25, 1884.
To the Editor of THE BEE.

In THE WEEKLY BEE of January 23rd, we notice an article from "Alpha" of St. Edward. While we heartily endorse what he says in regard to railroad extortion and The Omaha Republican, we regret that he should make his article an excuse for a personal fling at M. J. Thompson. It looks as though "Alpha" was a recent convert to anti-monopoly principles, and had not learned the great truth that personal abuse is not argument. Your correspondent has never voted any but the anti-monopoly ticket since he came to Nebraska, and voted and worked against Thompson, not because he believed him to be a scoundrel, but because he did not believe that any man who was elected by the straight republicans of Boone county could be anti-monopolists. But in justice to Thompson, let me say that he never voted for a steal of any kind, voted consistently for all anti-monopoly measures that came before the house, and although he had two railroad passes tendered him he refused them both, and paid his way like a man. We have known him ever since we have been in the state, and have never known him to stoop to a mean action. He is universally respected, and has the confidence of the people of this town to as great an extent as any man here. In regard to that "Bristol transaction" I want to say that what the U. P. railroad did in that case greatly injured the soul of your scribe. For the reason that Bristol has declared to me on several occasions that the anti-monopoly party was composed solely of "sore-headed office-seekers," and that it was all both this howling about railroad extortion, etc.

Now "Alpha," when you indulge in personal fling, sign your own name and don't hide behind a nom de plume. Believing that the editor of THE BEE does not intend to see injustice done to any through its columns, I have taken upon myself the responsibility of refuting this slander of a fellow-townman. L. P. M.

THE LOUP COUNTRY.

Its Advantages Set Forth in Glowing Terms.

The great number of persons coming into the Loup country at this season looking for homes on the sunny slopes of these beautiful rivers, is a fair indication of what may be expected the coming spring. The reports of our magnificent crop for the past eight or ten years are commencing to dispel the prejudice heretofore formed that the State of Nebraska was a sterile and barren waste. We left Iowa, the best agricultural state in the Union, with some regret, for we left dear friends, who will ever hold a bright place in our memory. Yet we are led to believe with the advantage and opportunity, and our experience in crops for the past four years in this glorious state of Nebraska, in the green veins of the Loup country, in Greeley county, with a yield per acre from our rich golden soil of from 25 to 40 bushels of wheat, 50 to 70 bushels of oats, 60 to 80 bushels of corn, and 400 to 600 bushels of potatoes, and its adaptation to mostly all kinds of cereals and delicious fruits, that the Loup country will, when fully developed, the best agricultural portion of the union. We have the advantage of soil, climate and society. The very best men and women that ever trod the green earth of God, the forefathers of a great and advanced future generation, the intelligence and enterprise of the east are here; and their shining aims and sublime ambition is to educate their children, beautify their homes, and with sweet humanity and unselfish purposes benefit their life. They enjoy the conveniences of life, and some of its luxuries; and with their plentiful stores and generous hospitality they are ready to say: Sweep down with your storms from the northward.

Come out from your ice-encumbered lair; Our farmers have food for a nation. Our wheatlands have nothing to spare; Far off from the corn-bladed prairie, And out from the valleys and hills, The farmer has swept up his harvest.

The miller has emptied his mills. A friendly hand is stretched out to the oppressed people of all nations, and the needy of all straits, and they are invited here to obtain homes. This state will not be far behind others on regulating tariff for the transportation of our produce to market, for there are influences at work now which will ere long accomplish this beneficial end, and which will move to mould the destiny of the state than any man unconnected by power of eloquence can possibly effect. The comfortable and commodious farm dwelling which has taken the place of the old-time prairie rooky, the Texas steer and Hunchback pony, is a true indication of the progress of our people. The sparkling eyes, the chubby forms and rosy cheeks of our children, caused by the bracing and salubrious air, is a true indication of the healthfulness of our country, and persons coming here for the improvement of their health have been benefited beyond their most sanguine expectations. Our friends from the east who are able, whether for health or pleasure, would do well to take a summer tour through our state and inhale the balmy and invigorating air, see in the eastern and central portions of our state vast fields of grain, wheat, oats and corn, and the western prairie dotted over with fine herds of cattle, and if the lovers of the sublime in nature have only to pass on to the Rocky mountains, and there see the most magnificent scenery foretold by seer or sage.

T. P. PHELLEN, O'Conner, Jan. 15, 1884.

The Entertaining Conversation of Two Well-dressed Girls.

Two fashionably-dressed girls met yesterday on Campus Martius; said one: "Hello! you sweet thing, what do you know?"

"Know nothing—except that they've got a new clerk in—'s store—a regular dandy. Went in, you know, for laid sewing silk. Tell you, he's a regular swell. Who, got any money?"

"Some but not much. Why?"

"Oh they've got the boss crum—'I've got a whole nickel; thought you might want it. Met Kit and Sue with a bundle of 'em; they never offered me a smack, the old cranks. Bet's set up opposit."

"Love mean! Been to the postoffice?"

"That ain't many. Come with me. We'll get the candy and sail in and make the pumphandle's eyes stick out. Funny ain't he?"

"Funny, not so funny. Went to the dance at Nell's with him and he walked all over my feet. Say! you know Willie Wall-Eye?"

"I should smell! Did he talk an arm off you?"

"One, Cesar! The other one felt weak. He told me that old joke about his going into the hotel."

"Oh, Jimmie! I've heard that one or more and a half or twice. Say! they've got telephone communications with down town."

"Wow! s'pose I don't know that—talked down the other day to Josiah. Jinks! he was sweet."

"Thought you didn't know him?"

"Oh, you sweet thing! What's the dirt? Told him he would find me if he would take the cars with the blue light on."

"Going to see him?"

"Not much."

"Have you seen the new college tough?"

"Wow! He's no earthly!"

"Why! Is he crushed on anybody?"

"No! seven girls gave him the dead march the other day. He caught step with himself 'steon times, he got so rattled; withy, too, I guess, for he turned around and says, 'Thanks, awfully!'"

"Say, Cal, I was down to Lily-bud."

"How did you get your courage to stick?"

"Stick! had to do it; so I says 'Cal, do you go.' She came to the door in a buff tea-gown, hair done Langtry, and said: 'Wa haw daw you daw, am ay alone.' I thought 'hard luck for me,' and pounded my head when she wasn't looking; staid ten minutes and then remembered that I had to go home because in any time—she wouldn't come in the back door, and I staid skip out that way—am good for that any day."

"Well, you will have a pro-naw when she gets there. Have you seen Da Leonard's new mask? Came over in two ships—it's a soft snap for her—turns its toes in and says: 'Now! don't you know'—two of a kind, ain't it?"

At this time a runaway team put an end to the most interesting conversation on record.
