Special Dispatch to THE BEE.

CHICAGO, February 1.-The grain markets were more irregular during the week, active at times and dull at others. The volume of speculative business was large and chiefly in wheat, in which there was also a fair shipping trade transacted. Prices show small changes. May being about 1 to lower than on Monday. Nothing was developed of a nature to in fluence prices. The demand continued substantially nil, and stocks are limited only to the storage capacity. Probably there are 60,000,000 bushels of wheat in this country unsold, while the prospects for a spring crop are excellent. Corn declined about 14c, but the market was comparatively strong. The failure of the crop of 1883 is now being felt in New England and elsewhere. There continues a shipping demand that grows continues a shipping demand that grows steadily. Good parties bought corn late in the week on the theory of its merits.

Packers pushed up provisions another dellar during the week. The molement of prices in pork is due entirely to manipulation. Receipts of hogs are so inadequate to the demand, their price is so high and quality so poor that packers can make no money at their packing houses, and therefore are actively engaged in endeavoring to do so in speculation. They are now short on pork and aim, it is said on good authority, to break prices a dollar. Country speculators have avoided provisions for fear of this manipulation. There is no prospect that receipts of hogs will improve or their price decrease.

The dry goods business is very quiet. Boots and shoes and clothing report a slack trade, and none expected till the middle of the month. The iron industries show some improvement. Mills are starting up in Pennsylvania.

Grossries are doing a good business, and the Groceries are doing a good business, and the market is buoyant. Prices of sugar favor buy-ers. Financial affairs are undisturbed. Money is easy, and a great plenty of it. The demand for cursency from the country is small.
