NORTH OMAHA.

The Determination of the People of That Portion of the City to Make Public Improvements.

An Interesting Meeting of the Pro perty Owners Held Saturday Evening.

Another meeting of the property own ers of North Omaha, to consider the feasibility of opening Seventeenth street and other needs of that part of the city, was held in Smith's planing mill on North Sixteenth street on Saturday evening last. J. O. Corby was elected temporary chairman, and M. M. Sears secretary. Nearly two hundred were present, who held a very lively and animated meeting.

For a long time the people of North Omaha have been trying to open North Seventeenth street, but have been frustrated in their attempt in a great degree by Mr. Horbach, who owns considerable of real estate abutting on the proposed extension. The deed of Mr. Horbach releasing and conveying to the city of the whole property so conveyed was mortgaged, was warmly discussed.

Mr. I. S. Hascall, councilman from the Second ward and chairman of the judiround house was in the city Saturday on his re-turn from a two weeks' visit in the east. that the board of education shall not waive the right of finally accepting or rejecting the building. Under the orig- Dissecting Her Silvery Ribs and Exinal contrrct, Mr. Potvin should have finished it by December 1, 1883, but being unable to do so, the building committee of the board extended the time. The interior of the building is fully completed under the contract, and but little remains to be done on the outside. The contractor was to receive $17,500 for furnishing the material and constructing it, and, with the extra work to be done, will make the total cost $18,000.

Miss Nellie Wood will be principal the school, which, for the present, will have only four or five rooms.

The funeral of Lizzie, eldest daughter of Major George L. and Magdeless Den nis, occurred at the family residence on Dodge street yesterday, Rev. Shirrell officiating.

There were several beautiful flora cributes from friends of the deceased re siding in the city-among them a pillow, cross, and a star.

Few young people possess so beautiful disposition as did this young lady, and few are so deeply beloved as she. By her death the stricken parents lose a loving and dutiful daughter, her surviving sister and brother their heart's idol, and her young friends the sympathy of a pure and generous heart.

There are several peculiarly sad fea tures connected with her unexpected death. She had been for several months with her aged grandmother in Pough keepsie, N. Y., and about three weeks ago returned home, her father deferring his departure for New York on abusiness trip to welcome her home again. He had been in New York little more than a week, when he received a telegram an nouncing her dangerous iliness; and at Cleveland, on his hurried return, a dispatch was put in his hand announcing her death.

IMPORTANT TO BUSINESS MEN. It has lately been decided, as reported by Bradstreet's Journal, that in a suit against a mercantile agency for libel, the plaintiff may be compelled so declare the names of the persons to whom the alleged ibelous communication has been made. This is the rule of practice in such cases as settled by recent adjudication of the New York supreme court. This will prove a very inconvenient rule for persons who are in the habit of communicat ing to others information of a confidential nature, and which they specially agree to in the contract with their mercantile agency, 'n writing, not to disclose. The business of the Bradstreet agency is be coming so necessary to business men that they are recognized as a power in the land that is gaining in strength and importance each year, and the courts are continually throwing around them their protecting care. An agency well managed loing a legitimate business, is almost indispensable to any firm doing a whole sale trade of any amount.
