

THE DAILY BEE. Tuesday Morning, May 12.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

The worthless dogs must go. The city council will meet to-night. That court house picnic is to come off on the 28th. Yesterday's receipts at the county treasury were $564.92. Justice Selden tried his hand yesterday at the work of pronouncing a marriage ceremony, and joined together a pair of Bohemians—Joseph Steiger and Josephine Drida. The subject of the lecture at Oregon college on Tuesday evening, 12th inst., will be one which excites a great deal of interest in the city at present. "Rabies, its nature and means of preventing it." As Rev. M. Stone was attempting to board a moving street car yesterday morning, he lost his footing and was thrown to the pavement, striking in such a manner as to dislocate his right arm. The injury is a very painful one. The committee soliciting stock for the Omaha Fair feel that they cannot spare more time from their business and therefore urge the citizens of Omaha to come forward and subscribe the balance of the stock in order to make the fair a success. Mrs. Minnie Drexel, wife of Colonel Drexel, died yesterday morning about 6 o'clock after a short illness, aged twenty-two years and one day. The funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at St. Philomena cathedral. Mass will be said and the remains interred at the cemetery of the Holy Sepulcher.

Switzer, Platemouth; J. B. McMillan, Portland, Ore.; F. M. Marquette, Lincoln; D. P. Lillis, Springfield, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Price are at the Millard on their way to San Francisco. Mrs. Price is more familiarly known to the public as Fannie Davenport, of the theatrical fame. Mr. H. M. St. Clair, a prominent attorney of Plumb Creek, was in the city yesterday, but left for home last night to defend Long and Powell, the Brighton ranch murderers. J. Caro, Covington, Ky.; H. M. Sinclair, Plum Creek; James Stevens, Shelton; C. Roehler, Jr., and wife, Blue Hill; C. E. Mazoon, Lincoln; A. C. Colton, Beatrice, are at the Paxton. At the Canfield: E. C. HEADED OFF.

A Wedding that was to have occurred at 4 o'clock yesterday slipped in the bud.

A very ordinary looking individual calling himself Ezra Ebricht, meekly entered the county court room yesterday morning, and asked Judge McCulloch for a marriage license. With his usual, pleased-to-accommodate-all-candidates-for-the-matrimonial-yoke style, the judge dropped every thing else, and soon had the desired document made out. Miss Cora Bowman appearing as party of the second part. As Mr. Ebricht started to go, he expressed his thanks at being so nicely treated and promised to return promptly at 4 o'clock with the object of his affections and have Judge McCulloch perform the ceremony for them. This arrangement was satisfactory all around and the judge commenced immediately to study up a nice little speech. But before the anxiously awaited hour came another little event occurred and if the couple got married at all it was at the home of the bride. The man who married them was not the man who married them. About 2 o'clock p. m. his front door swung open again and in walked an extremely repulsive looking old woman who wanted to ascertain whether one Ezra Ebricht had obtained a marriage license within the past month. Being informed that she secured that coveted document only a few hours before her arrival she would be back with his blushing bride at 4 o'clock to get applied, the old woman vehemently declared that she would be there, too, and proceed to give them a picnic. Then she entered into an elaborate story about how, years and years ago, when she was a fresh and handsome young girl, Ebricht had courted and married her and it will her husband, though they have been living apart and in the city of Omaha for the past four years. She also asserted that he has never been divorced from her. As Mr. Ebricht and his intended failed to put in an appearance at the appointed hour, or any other time, and as the old lady did not return again it is supposed she must have headed them off some place else and blocked their movements. She was after the gentleman red hot and proposed to nip his little game in the bud.

Stabbed. Sunday evening John Holmes (colored) residing on California street, got into an altercation with John White (colored) at the corner of Tenth and Capitol avenue, when White drew a large knife and stabbed Holmes in the right chest, inflicting a dangerous wound. Drs. Dyar, Mercer and Brown were called and dressed the wound. They consider the wound a dangerous one, though not necessarily fatal. White did not remain to see the result of his victim's injury but fled, and has not yet been apprehended.

A RIDE TO PORTLAND.

From Laramie to Pocatello; through Coalfields, Sagebrush and Tunnels.

Over Green Valleys and Along Rippling Rivers—Wayside Scenes and Incidents.

FRIDAY, May 8.—At 9:20 Thursday evening the Omaha-Portland party halted at Laramie and received the visit of a number of citizens who called to pay their respects. Among these were Will H. Kent, now editor of the Boomerang, and once well known in Omaha.

Leaving Laramie the train kept its westward way without incident, having previously passed Sherman, the highest point on the Union Pacific road and near which stands the Oakes Ames monument, which by reason of the darkness and falling snow, was invisible.

The night passed in friendly chit-chat and refreshing sleep, preparing all for the nice breakfast in Green River, which the nice Johnson, well known to the Paxton's guests, had prepared at the Desert house.

At Rock Springs a fine view of the IMMENSE COAL BEDS was had. That entire country for miles is one continuous bed of coal of the finest quality, and the mines now open supply 750,000 tons per year, filling the great lack which the railroad people so feared in the early days of the Union Pacific.

General Freight Agent Shelby gave the Bex representative many useful and interesting facts touching the discovery, developments and yield of these most valuable properties, to all of which the strait and activity of the camp bore eloquent testimony.

Passing along to Granger and bidding adieu to friends bound for the Golden Gate, the Bogota and Morlin sleepers were switched on to the Oregon Short line train and then began the NORTHWESTWARD JOURNEY, which will continue to Umattilla Junction, Oregon, 788 miles away. The O. S. L. runs to Huntington, 540 miles from Granger, thence the train moves via the O. R. W. & Nav. Co. to Portland, 944 miles from Granger and 1820 miles from Omaha. From Umattilla the route is nearly directly west, 180 miles to Portland, the metropolis of Oregon and the new coast.

The route passed over to-day after leaving Granger is interesting, picturesque and lovely. The wide, level valleys of Ham's Fork, of Green River and of the Bear river are clothed in green grasses on which great "bunches" of fattened cattle were here and off yonder peacefully grazing. The faces of these valleys are dotted with miniature lakes, whose crystal waters brook of wild fowl dive and sport in the marriage of their artless life, and their sides are bordered and fringed by rolling uplands that in places arise to the dignity of footholds to the mountains beyond.

Upward and upward, higher and higher, the way was mounted to-day, and nearer and nearer grew the

CASCADE RANGE, whose cloud-piercing peaks catch with a kiss the winds of the Pacific sea on their passage to the east, and in the form of rain, give them back like "gentle dew from heaven upon the place beneath."

Now "border," on the Idaho line, as a reminder that the Wyoming plains were left far behind, the bright sunlight was suddenly shut out by a rain-cloud that came down,

ROLLING OVER THE HILLS and bursting upon the darkened plain, washing the pert faces of the frisky prairie-dogs and baptizing the green young grass. At its coming, on either side along the bordering foot-hills, rosy-cheeked daughters of the lowlands were seen hurrying about their pretty cottage homes, "taking in" the bright-colored apparel of "father and the boys," which hung side by side with their finer texture upon the homelike clothed. Ah! the wonderful progress of this mighty and splendid west. Indeed it is a wild land of earth, and stone and tree: Where breathes no cool'd lord nor cabin'd slave; When word and thought, and men are free, And friends always welcome, foes find a grave. And where none kneel, save when to God they pray; Not even men—except in their own way!

At Soda Springs station, in Bingham county, Idaho, are the magnificent "SODA SPRINGS," that are already famous and destined in the near future to become of world wide repute. Of these more full description will be given to-morrow. Suffice it now to say that the two sleepers in which the party travel were out loose from the track and the springs, some one and a half miles distant from the line of railroad.

LUTHER DRAKE'S TRIAL. During the day the party were all dismayed by the behavior of one to another that Mr. Luther Drake, who had already made himself beloved by the members for his pleasant, genial and gentlemanly deportment, had been caught during the night taking articles of apparel belonging to Messrs Rogers and Gallagher. Men who had been chatting cheerily looked at one another in silence, and with blanched cheek and pallid lips. Soon the whisper grew into loud complaint, and as the enormity of the deed became more clearly understood, an excitement more clearly was organized, and Hon. J. C. Cowin appointed judge thereof, with Jackson, of the Herald, marshal. A complaint had been filed with the judge, charging the unfortunate man with the theft of a tooth brush (old), and a night robe (unwashed), of the goods land chest, etc. A jury, consisting of Messrs. Dewey, Creighton, Metz, Morsman, Lininger and Rustie were selected, the prisoner brought to the bar, and M. A. Kurtz appeared to prosecute. The accused pleaded not guilty and poverty, and John H. Donnelly was assigned by the court to defend him. The trial was deeply interesting and most solemn. The witnesses were many and their testimony damning and conclusive of his guilt. The poor man was shown to have no semblance of good character, and in the argument of the prosecution he fairly sank under the denunciation of the zealous prosecutor. Every act of his life was shown, until it was seriously discussed if it were not best to stop the train and put him off alone in the dreary waste to die.

The jury retired, and notwithstanding the Pullman car porter (Charles Watkins), testified that the tooth brush had belonged to the car for two years, and the night robe was left by George Q. Cannon, the mormon, in his last flight, they soon returned and handed in the VERDICT OF GUILTY.

For a moment all was still; then Judge Cowan, with great emotion read the verdict and in scathing terms pictured the nature of the crime; its meanness, littleness and lack of cause, and then sentenced Drake to the extreme punishment known to the "Code of the Excelsiorists"—to be "shut up each day for one hour in the smoking room with Lawyer Kurtz until he shall be talked to death!" Oh! mercy what a doom!

When! how these two cars are flying! They have hitched on a special engine to catch the train which went on from Soda Springs; the telegraph poles appear like a long, tall fence, and the piles of rocks here and there in the valley are caught but a glimpse—then a flash and a vanish. "Toot, toot," growls the engine, the stat on is near, and thus kind reader have passed the evening and the morning of the second day.

Every lady uses Pozzoni's medicated complexion powder. It is a household treasure, and makes it impossible to go down town without first rubbing it on. If the baby cries she goes for the puff box. If the "old man" comes home ruffled or chafed, because business is dull, etc., Pozzoni's powder cools and allays his troubles. Then all is glad some joy. No family should be without it.

MONDAY MORNING.

Plenty of Arrests, But Few Appearances Before the Court.

There were quite a number of arrests made by the police between Saturday and Sunday nights, but a good many of the individuals so arrested were released on bail, which they preferred to forfeit rather than appear before Judge Stenberg yesterday morning. These bashful individuals bore the following names: Frankie Miller, O. Beers, H. Sollinger, F. Schull, Henry Levi, Nels Nelson, Charles Dorsey, George Jordan and F. A. Olney. Most of the cases were for intoxication and disorderly conduct.

George Smith came before the court on a charge of disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace, to which charge he answered not guilty. George has been selling songs around the streets, and with his loud talk and other offensive ways he created considerable disturbance around the entrance to Wood's museum. One of the employees of that institution, and Officer Lowry, who made the arrest, were on hand to prove the charge, and Judge Stenberg sentenced the young man to pay a fine of $5 and costs.

Sadie McBride was also arrested for disturbing the peace of the city of Omaha, but she pleaded not guilty and was discharged.

William Jones was only a plain drunk. But as it was his first offense and he a hard working man, the judge was lenient with him and allowed him to depart in peace.

Merriam Bates, colored, was accused of being an inmate of a house of prostitution. He said he was not guilty, but the judge concluded to give him $5 and costs. J. G. German, arrested on the same charge, was discharged.

James Rossman was accused of vagrancy, but the charge was not sustained and he is again at liberty.

Two boys named Morris Penville and Will Rugg were brought before Judge Stenberg, charged with using indecent language on the street. The woman who made the complaint appeared in court this morning, but it was decided to have a jury trial, and the case is to be tried before Judge Stenberg on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

B. H. Douglas and Sons' Capsicum Cough Drops are manufactured by themselves and are the result of over forty years experience in compounding cough mixtures.

Bicycling By Steam. Mr. L. D. Copeland, of Arizona, arrived in Omaha Sunday morning, bringing with him a bicycle which is something of a novelty in its line. In fact it is the only one in the world of its kind, having been invented by its present owner. The bicycle is one of the Star variety, its peculiarity existing in the fact that it is propelled by steam instead of by foot power.

The little quarter-horse-power engine which does the work is located just above the small front wheel, and is as complete a machine as one could desire. The steam is generated by benzine, and the engine is easily controlled by a contrivance which makes it as safe a mode of conveyance as when run by foot power. Mr. Copeland is now on his way to New Jersey, where he expects to have his machine manufactured. He will return to Omaha this week, however, to visit his brother, who resides at 837 Leavenworth street, and any person who would like to see the machine operate is at liberty to call.

Standing Off Poor Men. It is reported that Myers & Duffy, contractors on the grounds of the new school building on Williams street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, are not using the men employed by them in a fair manner. The men say that they have received no money for three weeks, but have been given due bills, which will not be taken except at a heavy discount. They have made numerous complaints to the contractors, but have been put off on the plea that the firm had no money. Yesterday, when they came to work, one of the bosses appeared on the scene and informed them that work would be discontinued for the present. All the men employed are poor and need the money, and should not be kept waiting for it. If the contractors cannot raise enough to pay them, they should abandon their contract, and turn it over to some one who can pay.

Skipped the City.

It is reported that a man named Norrlis, who has been acting as book-keeper and collector for several firms in the city recently, has disappeared from Omaha with money collected for persons who have lately employed him. The last time he was seen in the city was Friday night, and at that time he is said to have had in his possession $180, which he had collected for Dennis Cunningham, a blacksmith on Sixteenth street, and it is thought that he also had collected a considerable amount for G. M. Hitchcock, who acts as agent for Judge Crouse. Owing to the absence of Mr. Hitchcock from the city Judge Crouse was telegraphed to at Fort Calhoun and arrived Sunday to look into the matter. So nothing definite is known, and no trace of the man Norrlis has been found.

SOUTH OMAHA The Advantage of Settling in the New Town

The title "South Omaha" does not mean the southern part of the city of Omaha, but is the name of the thriving town commencing at the Union Stock yards on the south, and extending for a mile and a half north, nearly connecting with the city limits of Omaha.

Some may say: "If this is so, why do not the company keep it and realize this profit? The answer is, that in order to make lots valuable, there must be improvements on or around them, and as is the case in all new towns, special inducements must be offered first to get the people to take hold and build."
