AMUSEMENTS.

Mrs. George S. Knight has made a new departure in the dramatic profession. She has abandoned horse play and large companies of supernumeraries for simple farces and light comedy with the support of a coterie of five acting people.

The departure is both radical and bold. One cannot see why it should fail of success. There is little doubt that the lady's venture will be followed by a host of imitators.

Three jolly little one-act pieces in one night! Omaha has never witnessed such a bill as the good old comedy of the stock companies. Each of the pieces was a gem, improving in interest and increasing their hold upon the audience until the last was reached.

"A Luck Number" introduced all the members of the company except the star, the principal character, being sustained by Jennie Kelly, a bright and youthful actress, and Edward Warren, who essayed a lawyer's part.

"Hoop La," a piece introduced here by Rozina Vos, under the name of the "Circus Riders." Mrs. Knight played the title role with admirable grace, naïveté and abandon, capturing the audience not less by her singing, which was a gem, than by her acting.

"My Lord in Livery," full of activity, with the simplest of plots, kept the audience in the seat in this comedy. The star, who distinguished himself. His speech was the work of a master. In a simulation of age, infirmity, devotion to his mistress and a general scorn of mankind and a happy appreciation of the humorous possibilities of the character, nothing more could be desired.

Here, too, the star distinguished himself again, sending the audience home in most lively spirits.
