The City Council Holds a Busy Session-Burglars Repeat Their Calls -General and Personal News Notes.

The Preacher Who Shoots. The interest keeps up in the trial of Rev. Mr. Helmick, charged with murder in the second degree. Yesterday's proceedings opened with the recall of the witnesses Oilver and Hardman, for some further slight examination, but nothing of special interest was thus revealed.

The first new witness of the day was Kaliher, a brother-in-law of Hardman, who was visiting at the house of Hardman the night of the shooting. The two heard the shot, and run to the scene, and found Helmick standing holding his horse and a revolver in his hand. The witness testified mainly in support of the state's theory that the night was not so dark but that Helmick could have identified Palmer. He also testified as to what Heimick said right after the shooting. According to his recollection. He lmick said:
"If I didn't kill anybody I wish I had,"

There was some discussion as to allowing Kaliher to testify, the defense objecting on the ground that they had no sufficient no-tice of what the witness was to testify to. The state's attorney showed up a recent decision of the supreme court to support his position, and this seemed to startie Judge fhornell. He remarked that he should rule a accordance with this decision, and that he did not claim to know more than the supreme court, but still this recent decision was just the opposite from fifteen or more previous decisions of the supreme court, and really annulled a portion of the statutes, as well as ran contrary to the practice of years. After the witness had testified the same request to strike out his testimeny was renewed. The witness had been asked as to his employment.

"I'm keeping a restaurant." "An lowa restaurant!" asked Attorney Sims, laying a prohibitory stress on "lowa," and thus intimating that there was a saloon

The witness answered "Yes." Attorney McCabe then jumped up and asked to have the testimony of this witness stricken out. "The state has imposed on us. They gave us notice that they were going to introduce this man as an honest farmer." Bailiff McFadden's jack knife rapped loudly to quiet the laugh which went round. Mrs. Porter, the mother in law of Palmer, was introduced. Her testimony was to the effect that the Rev. Mr. Helmick had interfered with the attentions being paid by Palmer to her daughter, and sought to break off the match. Mr. Helmick was the paster of the church of which she was a member, and to which her daughter belonged also. She thought that even for a secret was a member of the church of the church of the church of the church to feely in her pastor he was interfering too freely in her family matters, but had not told him so. She admitted that at one of these family conferences he was present at her own solicita tion. She denied that she had opposed the match, said she had never seen Palmer drunk, denied that she had ever told certain sisters of the church and Rev. Mr. Brewer that she was ashamed of Palmer and that he was a worthless fellow. She denied having signed a petition for Rev. Mr. Helmick's return to Neola as pastor. Mrs. Palmer, the widow of the man killed by Helmick, appeared next in the witness chair. She is a very comely woman of about twenty-one years of age. Her testimony was to the effect that she was with Palmer early in the evening and that he was not drunk. When he reached home after the shooting she had examined his clothing and found no weapons, there being in his pocket only his bunch of keys and a pocketbook. The de-fense did not ask her a single question and she stepped down.

At the opening of the afternoon session the defense began on its part of the case, the state resting. The first witness called was Rev. Mr. Brewer, paster of the Methodist sharch at Glenwood, by whom it was ex pected to prove that Mrs. Porter, instead of being in favor of Palmer marrying her daughter, was opposed to him, and had derogatory remarks concerning There being some legal objections to the testimony because sufficient ground had not been laid for impeachment, Rev. Mr. Brewer stepped aside for a few moments while Mrs. Porter was recalled for further cross examination by the defense in order to prepare the ground for such impeachment.

Mrs. Porter reaffirmed that she never said she and her husband were opposed to the marriage of Palmer to their daughter.

Rev. Mr. Brewer then took the chair. He was present at a conversation had between Mrs. Porter and Mr. Helmick. From the drift of the talk he gathered that Mr. and Mrs. Porter were opposed to the marriage, but could not give the language or details. John Grendel of Neola was next sworn. Hardman, a witness for the state, had sworn he was at his home that evening. Grende testified to seeing Hardman in a crowd down town in company with the others who afterwards engaged in the egg-throwing. He contradicted Hardman in several other import-ant matters, the tendency of his testimony being that Figraman was of the same gang as Oliver, Graver, Sweeney and others, witness also contradicted Oliver. told him that Palmer had asked him (Oli-ver) to stay by him, so that if he got into a scrape with Helmick he (Oliver) might protect him. Oliver had told witness that the night of the shooting he and Palmer had in Heimick's barn an iron bar two feet and a haif long. Erick Peterson was the next witness. The defense attempted to show that Peterson was subposted for the prosecution and that the state would not put him on the stand. The court would not permit this to be put in evi dence. Peterson heard the shot and on reaching Helmick's barn went in with Helmick, while Hardman and his brother-in-law were out in the alley. Peterson was with Helmick when he was looking over the barn for builet marks. He heard Helmick make no such remarks as Hardman testified to. In either detail he contradicted Hardman. He heard Helmick say something about shooting, but James Powell, now of Woodbine, was in Neola the evening of the tragedy. He had heard numerous threats made by saloon men against Helmick. They said that if Helmick got his nose in their business there would be another Haddock case. The witness told Helmick about this and told him he had

Death of Judge Clinton.

Judge Samuel Clinton, one of the oldest and best known of the citizens of Council Bluffs, is dead. Although well advanced in years and suffering poor health for a numper of months past, neither his friends nor the public were prepared for the announcement of his death, and the news was startling and was the cause of widespread sor-row. He died at his residece at 9:30 yesterday foreneon. Death was the result of the gradual weakening of the vital forces, incident to the progress of the dis-ease from which he has suffered for many years. He passed away peacefully and calmiy, conscious to almost the last the last breath, surrounded by all his family with the exception of one child. In character he was a representative of the best citizenship and manhood and impressed his individuality and integrity upon a wide

Here Judge Clinton has lived continuously ever since. His first law partnership was with Judge Baidwin. The combination of logal talent and manly merit was continued until the ascension of the latter to the bench, when Judge Clinton became associated with Colonel Sapp, and afterward with the firm of Hart & Brewer. Petition of Mynster, Lindt & Seabrook, attorneys, for settlement of a judgment against the city for money in hands of the city treasurer, which was forfeited as appearance money by saloon-keepers and pros-titutes, was objected to by Alderman Ever-ett and a lengthy discussion ensued. Some of the aldermen were in favor of paying it, but Everett and Lacy objected strongly. The discussion brought out the fact that it was understood by some of the aldermen that there was a kind of compromise effected, by the terms of which the injunction. tion now pending against the allowance of the aldermen's fees as members of the board of equalization was to be withdrawn, provided the judgment was quietly paid. Alderman Weaver jumped to his feet and announced in very vigorous language that he was opposed to any compromise and resented the intimation that the council had been making any compromises. He did not want any inference to be obtained by the people generally, and said that if he could not collect his fees by law he didn't want them. Mr. Lacy also had a word to say. He thought that if a judgment had been secured it could be properly collected and he didn't believe in allowing any attorney to come in and run a bluff on the council. John Lindt was present and took an active part in the discussion, but he could not oring the council to his way of thinking. The claim was finally thrown out and it was demeans in his power to have the judgment set

Petition of Fanny L. Prescott for refund was referred. The committee on the city's claim of $22 15 against the engineer's department for damages resulting from a mistake reported that it resulted from the confusion in the office attendant on a change of officers, and that the engineer should not be held responsible but recommended that the officers or pay be required to devote their whole time The report was concurred in, to the city. The report was Alderman Knepler voting no. Alderman Everett then wanted his ordinance that was introduced on the previous evening regulating the salaries of city marshal and chief of police and fixing the at $1,500 each, in lieu of all fees, brought up for its second reading. This brought on a discussion, and Alderman Waterman kicked on singling out one officer to be cut down. He wanted to introduce an ordinance he had prepared, cutting down the salaries of all the city officers. Alderman Everett's ordinance was passed to its second reading, and at the request of some of the aldermen he amended it so that the clause referring to the chief of police was stricken out, A motion to pass it to its third reading was not seconded. Alderman Lacy was in favor of it, provided the council had the power to pass it, and the marshal could not collect his fees by law, but he did not want to raise his salary from $500 to $1.500 and let him have the fees the same as at present. Alderman Waterman's ordinance was then introduced. it fixed the officers' salaries as follows: Mayor, $600; auditor, $800; treasurer, $500; solicitor, $1,250 and an assistant at $600; marshal, $100 and fees, as at present; engineer, $1,200; city clerk, $500, and another $500 as clerk of the superior court; deputy clerk, $780; chief of police, $840; patrolman, $720; aldermen, $250. The ordinance was received with derision, and Alderman Everett stated that it was evidently introduced for spite work or to embarrass the new administration should it be He said that it was ridiculous to expect competent men to accept the offices at any such figures. Other members of the council stated that none of the city officers were receiving too much money, but on the contrary several of them should be raised. Alderman Lacy recommended increasing the salary of the treasurer to $1,200 and increasing his bond to $150,000. After a very lengthy discussion, the motion to pass the ordinance to its second reading was lost, and Alderman Weaver's motion to appoint Alderman Knepher, Lacy and Everett a committee to prepare an ordinance regulating the salaries of officers to report at the next meeting was carried.

He is possessed of a wonderful constitution, for frequently, after spending an entire day in the museum, he dines very frugally, then he goes into his little study and remains there until daybreak. But somehow, with all his hard work, he does not seem to make as much headway as he should. He is occasionally seen at the clubs and at the theater, but he does not make a practice of going much into society. He writes English with ease, but in speaking often seems lost for the right word. He has a small army of friends who stick to him loyally, and in their society and that of his books he seems happy. He is perhaps the best informed man in England on the Russian to America and take the lecture platform, but I doubt whether he would be a success here. His Dead Mistress. On Thursday a week ago, as the lightning express passed through the sub-urban town of Oak Park, near Chicago, Mollie O'Brien, a young girl in the em ploy of Mrs. R. H. Salter, attempted to cross the track. She was accompanied by a Scotch collie, which was a great pet in the family, says the St. Louis Republic. The young girl reached the op-posite side in safety, and turned to see where the dog had gone. Seeing that the dog was in imminent danger of being run over, she started to save him.

The crowd on the opposite platform screamed for her to go back, but she heeded not her own danger, and as she reached the steps slipped and fell just as the great iron monster rushed past. Original of The Senator."

Any one who has seen Comedian Crane in "The Squator" would have recognized the original in the senate yes-terday when Preston B. Plumb of Kansas was making a gymnastic exhibition and speech all a once. Crane in his play has copied Plumb even to the chin beard, but more in the excited manner in which Plumb does business, even in making a speech, šáys a Pittsburg Press Washington letter. He goes at it like a man breasting the waves or battling against odds in a fight. All this has been copied by Crane, and while on the stage the comedian is more stylishly dressed than Senator Plumb appears in everyday life, the resemblance can easily be traced. Yesterday Senator Plumb was talking for the Oklahoma town site bill, which had passed the house, and he used up about twenty square feet of the secate floor in making his words heard and his gestures comprehended. He is not deliberate like his colleague, Ingails, who probably never wets a hair while he makes speech. But during the speech and af terwards Senator Plumb absorbed the sweat from brow and neck with a silk handkerchief and was as much physically excited as if he had been running a foot-race.

Judge King's Daily Session and the Chances of His Being Compelled to Run Again-

A Broken Limb.

Coopers Still Striking. "We are still out on a strike and more confident than ever of winning," said a cooper yesterday. "One man has quit at Hammond's and another non-union man will quit Saturday night unless he gets $3 a day. So far the packers have secured but one man, and he is not a practical cooper, to take a striker's place." The men are certainly confident it will be impossible for the packers to get men to fill their places. Some of the strikers have lett for Kentucky, where there is a demand for skilled coopers at good wages, and there is a request for at least eight more men to go. The strikers will hold a meeting this after "The dissatisfaction existing among the packing house coopers in South Omaha over the cut in wages demanded by the bosses is well founded," said a striker. "Yesterday one of the men who quit Monday went to work in a piece shop, and after eleven months away from piece work made $3.20 the first day. Notwithstanding the good wages earned in the piece shops in Omaha, the packing house proprietors want us to work for $2.75 a day. We wont do it because Does Judge King Hold Over?

"Do you construe the city charter to mean that you hold over for another year?" was asked Judge King yesterday after he had patiently listened to the tale of the four offenders brought before him and had disposed of their cases.

"According to the charter provisions it is plain that I must run again," answered the plain that I must run again, answered the judge. 'But in common with others I have my doubts about the right of special charters to legislate an official cut of office when once elected according to the statutory laws governing cities of the second class. Police Judge King was elected a year ago for a two years' term, but according to the provisions of the charter governing next month's election a new police judge must be chosen. Pleading Before Judge King. It took about half an hour to dispose of four unfortunates in Judge King's court yesterday. They were a very penitent-looking quartette and in each instance acknowledged the shortcomings entered against them on the jail record.

Frank Clements was too drunk when brought in to remember his right name, so the stereotyped "John Doe" was applied to him for the nance. He admitted the charge of drunkenness and was taxed up 33 and costs. He boasted a bank account, but preferred to work his fine out in the county jail during these dull March days.

M. P. Williams, a gray-haired old stock-man, fell by the wayside. He admitted the charge and paid his tine of $3 and costs without a murmur. Dr. W. C. Wardner looked upon the wine when it was red. He gazed so long and steadily that his weak limbs could no longer hold him up. Officer Hughes took pity him and placed him within the four walls of Pat Rowley's whitewashed cellar, better known as South Omaha's place of incarcera-tion. He was taxed the same amount, $3 costs. James Sullivan, a plain, every-day vagrant,

Death Amidst Poverty

There is a pitiable case of destitution in a household on Twenty-ninth street near the L street viaduct. The family is named Strenard. The father has been on a sick bed for some time. A few days ago the mother gave birth to twins. One of the babies died a few days ago and will be buried by the city. The desolate house is without the necessities of life, with both mother and father lying sick in bed. The charitably disposed people of South Omaha can find in the Strenard home plenty of opportunities for alleviating distress and suffering.

The revival meetings now in progress at the Methodist church on the corner of Twenty-second and N streets are attracting large crowds and are proving quite successfui. Mrs. N. E. Roberts of Lincoln is as-sisting the paster. She is a forcible and ef-fective speaker. The services every day are fective speaker. The services every day are as follows: Bible reading and prayer ser-vice at 2 p. m., conducted by Mrs. Roberts: children's meeting at 3:45 p. m., in charge of Mrs Roberts; services every evening, be-ginning at 7:30. The pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Marquette, extends an urgent invitation to everybody to attend the services. Will Parade in Omaha, At the last meeting of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, held at St. Agnes' school hall, preliminary steps were taken for the observance of St. Patrick's day There will be no demonstration in South Omaha as the local division of the Hibernians will join forces with their Omaha brethren in making a successful parade in The annual ball of the South Omaha Hibernians will take place in Rowley's hall amusement he cultivates grapes and fruits in his large garden in one of the suburbs of London. Some time ago he discovered that one of his gardeners had purloined and sold $25 worth of pears, and the old gentleman has been in a condition of great mental pertur-bation ever since. "Lorna Doone" has reached its eighteenth edition. And everybody who reads it wonders whether it were possible for any man to be strong enough to pull the muscle out of another man's arm. for Consideration. The army circle at Fort Yates is reatly agitated over the coming trial of Lieutenant Steele, who out ageously assaulted and caused the imprisonment of Private Dell Wild, says a Bismarck, N. D., dispatch to the New Xork World. The court-martial at which the soldier received his sentence was a farce from beginning to end, and the two officers who took the responsibility of giving justice to poor Wild have been long noted for their tendency to inflict the severest punishment upon their unfortunate subordinates.

Capt. Fechett of the Eighth cavalry has a disagreeable record in this respect and is not at all liked by the soldiers. His hands are already dyed with the blood of a luckless private named Dugan, when he nearly pummelled to death during the Fourth of July celebration at Bismarck last year when the captain narrowly escaped lynching by the indignant citizens. He was spirited away by his friends' and, when the excitement abated, was formally arrested. He went through what appeared to be a trial before the city jusice. Private Dugan of company G was intoxicated on the Fourth of July and in an ugly mood. Fechett ordered him to sit down, which the private refused to do, whereupon the captain grabbed a gun from the hands of a soldier and struck Dugan a terrible blow on the head with the butt end. The blow split Dugan's right car in two, nearly fracturing the side of his head. He presented a sickening sight. and it was a quarter of an hour before he regained consciousness. The affair caused great excitement and effectually put a damper to the celebration of that day. The vast crowd needed only a leader to have strung up Captain Fechett without mercy. It is no wonder then, when one considers the existing relation of rank and file in army life, that Private Wild had all the against him and no possible show for a fair trial. It is the general impression among officers at Fort Yates that Lieutenant Steele will be severely dealt with. The lieutenant and wife are well known in Bismarck, and always have moved in the best of society. Their friends are astounded over the developments and it is believed that other revolutions of a similar nature will be disclosed.

Disease lies in ambush for the weak; feeble constitution is ill adapted to encounter a malarious atmosphere and sudden changes of temperature, and the least robust are usually the easiest victims. Dr. J. H. McLean's Sarsaparilia will give tone, vitality and strength to the entire body.
