Dilatary Bridge Work.

"I want to growl," said a First ward citizen yesterday afternoon, "and I wish some of the aldermen were here to hear me. It's all because of the way the streets across the creek are stopped up and we have to go out of our way to get down town. Five of the Indian creek bridges are being repaired at the present time, and there is no way of getting across without going around. I like to see them kept in repair, but it seems to me that the council is rather indifferent as to whether they are ever opened again to the public or not. The Benton street bridge has been completed for three weeks, and since that time no work has been done toward opening it to the public. The approaches are not in, but there is no way of getting a team across. A single plank has been thrown across the gap for the temporary accommodation of pedestrians, but that is all, and there is no sign of any change, as the lumber for the approach is not yet delivered on the ground. Front street, Eighth street and Second street are also blocked on account of the bridge work, and I would like to see the bridges completed and the lively hustle along the work is completed."

A Union Baptist Meeting.

The pastors of the various Baptist churches in this city quietly arranged for a notable gathering to be held in the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon. No announcements were made through the papers, and the information was conveyed to the members by pulpits announcements. This was in accordance with the purpose to have a union meeting of the Baptist churches of the city and the desire to see how large an exclusive Baptist audience could be gotten together and how it would look. The plan succeeded admirably, and at 3:30 yesterday afternoon the auditorium of the church was densely packed with as fine looking an audience as has ever assembled there. In the pulpit were the six Baptist churches in Council Bluffs, and outside of The Bee representative there was not an Ishmael in the building. Rev. J. H. Campbell, of the Iowa board of Baptist missions, who is now a resident here, was chosen master of ceremonies, and in a brief opening address he stated the objects of the meeting to be a Baptist love feast, an interchange of Baptist enthusiasm for the pushing ahead with greater vigor the work of the church in this city.

Rev. T. P. Thielstun offered the invocation, after which the congregation joined in singing with great spirit the first hymn. The speaking was limited to short addresses by the pastors upon subjects selected for them by the committee who arranged the program for the day.

Rev. Reichenbach of the Scandinavian church was the first speaker, and he was called upon to talk for ten minutes upon the subject of "The Church in the World, and especially in the Council Bluffs. He gave a brief summary of the history of the church in this city, and then proceeded to a telling personal reminiscence of his experience in connection with the work in this city, and felt assured that we were all in the hands of the Father, and that the future was bright and looked forward to the future with high anticipations of brighter prospects than the past.

Dr. Cooley was required to talk upon the subject, "Watchman, What of the Night, or the Outlook of the Baptist Churches in Council Bluffs." He remarked that in speaking of the night it might be well to talk about the poverty of the church. There was one church in Council Bluffs that had a high reputation, and that was not a cow or a feather bed among its members. Poverty may be a blessing, and it is the Baptist churches in Council Bluffs that are the poorest in the world, and that is the saddest thing that can befall a church. He said that he had often felt since his ministry began that he was merely the agent of a necessary people come and go, and there was not twenty members in the church today who were there when he began his work here five years ago. There were more encouragements than discouragements. There was encouragement in the belief of the divine mission of the church, and that the great majority of the people in the city belong to the middle class, the class that holds the balance of power in the world and who constitute the majority of the membership of the Baptist church in the city of the masses.

Rev. Thielstun spoke upon the mission of the church in this city. The Bethany church spoke on the duty of the Baptists to themselves. Rev. Jamany, pastor of the colored church, made the most remarkable address of the afternoon. He is a full-blooded negro, with a bright, shiny face, and detailed in a graphic manner his experience in establishing his church here, which today comprised only eight members.

Other short addresses were followed by a closing prayer, and a meeting participated in by the members present.

OF INTEREST TO THE FARMERS

A Strong Plea For the Neglected Merino Sheep Industry.

THE DEHORNING OF CATTLE.

An English Paper Condemns the Practice as Needless and Cruel—The Profitable Holstein Cow—Salt for Animals.

In Kansas, Nebraska and other pre-eminently agricultural states, agricultural pursuits naturally crowded out wool growing, the latter being a matter of only secondary consideration; the plough drove out the sheep, but the cause of a partial abandonment of the business is the great grazing area of the west and improper care, and as a neglect to produce in the stud flocks of the east, size, strength, length of staple and vigor in the constitution of an animal not originally too strong, such sheep were fit subjects to "rough it" on the boundless plains of the west, says a writer in the American Wool Reporter.

It is a tale told in Ohio and elsewhere, today, of how the "Vermonters" with a shrewdness characteristic only of a New England "Yankee," peddled his sheep through their domains, how with glib tongue they decried on the merits of such stock as "Rip Van Winkle," "Wall Street," "Banker" and "Contention," of the heavy fleeces of "Jason" (of "Golden Fleece" fame), of "Magnet" and of "Wrinkley," and traced readily their distinct blood lines and individuality. Many were the victims of sheep peddlers. Many there were who found out, alas! too late, that an excess of wrinkles and grease were what they were breeding, and that they could not meet with such sheep, the requirements of the day.

We believe that a little good judgment and faith in the business will bring the Merino sheep industry out all right in the near future. Let us say that no industry artificially carried on can long flourish. It is a business which has cost so much watchful care, time and money to build up.

Disorning Cattle. The subject of disorning cattle, says the London Lancet, is again attracting the attention of Scottish agriculturists, in consequence of the case now pending in the courts of appeal in Scotland.
