The heavy wind vesterday morning shat The heavy wind yesterday morning snat-tered a tree in Bayliss park, and a falling limb struck the water pipes in such a man-ner as to break them, and a portion of the park was flooded before the water could be turned off, as a defective stop box rendered considerable digging necessary before the step cock could be reached.

A little girl, whose name was not ascer tained, was severely bruised Wednesday evening by being thrown to the pavement from a Main street motor car. She says that she asked the conductor, whose name is Young, to let her off, but he refused and she had to jump. Whatever the circumstances, such an accident seems altogether unnecessary, as the use of gates as ordered by the company to protect passengers leaves only one opening on the platform, and the conductor ought to be able to see that children do not get off while the car is in motion.

Arrested for Horse Stealing. The police made a clever haul yesterday morning, and will be very liable to also capture a reward of $100 offered for the arrest of a certain horse thief, The prisoner gave the name of Charles Williamson, and was booked for carrying concealed weapons, but a more serious charge hangs over him. When arrested he had a fine span of horses, harness and top buggy, which he claims to have bought in Denver last January for $280. He says he has been canvassing, and has used the team in driving about the country. The buggy is one sold by the Weir-Shugart company of this city, and it is very doubtful whether it were the property of the country.

Frazier Gets Too Fresh. The loud report of a pistol created quite : little spasm of excitement in the vicinity of Broadway and Bryant street about 10 o'clock last evening, but the sight of an officer in pursuit of a fugitive very quickly explained matters. Officer Noves was called to the Scott house to arrest a young fellow who was insulting the ladies and driving them up stairs. Before the officer arrived the fellow fled, but was found in Smith's restaurant just across the street. Noyes had nearly reached the station with his prisoner, when the lat-

Who Are Vagrants.

The case against Ed. Maher, W. H. Robb and "Dec" Middleton, ex-gambling house attaches, who are charged under the city ordinance with vagrancy, was tried before Judge McGee yesterday afternoon. City Attorney Stewart appeared for the prosecution, and ex-City Attorney G. A. Holmes looked after the defendants' interests. Several members of the police testined as to the general reputation of the defendants, whose conviction was sought under the ordinance which declares all persons vagrants "who have the reputation and character of gamblers." The attorney for the defense held that the city had no right to pass any such ordinance, and could not punish a vagrant as the statutes of the state provided for their punishment at of the state provided for their punishment at imprisonment at hard labor for six months, and the case was therefore outside the juris-diction of a justice or police court, and that such magistrates could only require them to give a bond to keep the peace and for their appearance in the district court. The ques-tion was argued to some length on both sides, several cases being cited in support of both mositions.

ns. Judge discharged Middleton and Robb, and withheld a decision in the case of Maher, stating that a new point had been raised and he wished to investigate it fully before ruling on it. Maher was released on bail,

J. C. MITCHELL,

City Officials Disagree. Three parties were arrested yesterday for leaving their teams on the street without hitching. They were John Sivinger, G. F. Boardman and William Rapp. The arrested parties were quite indignant over their arrest, particularly the first two, whose business is such that they are compelled to leave their teams every few minutes, and they feel that it is an injustice to compel them to hitch their horses each time, especially as the horses are trained and could not be induced to run away, even if a dynamite cartridge was exploded under them. Boardman is a gasoline dealer, d Sivinger drives a vegetable wagon for J. R. McPherson.

Sivinger's arrest was the cause of a little disagreement between the chief of police and Marshal Templeton. It seems that the chief shar an idea that every one who is arrested should be placed behind the bars, and un-fortunately for perfect harmony in the two departments the city marshal thinks differ-ently. The marshal holds that when an acently. The marshal holds that when an ac-quaintance or any reputable citizen is arrested on a minor charge, and can make satisfactory arrangements for his appear-ance for trial, he ought to be released instead of being thrown into the noisome hole where the drunks and vags are confined. This opinion he has frequently expressed, and on several occasions he has given practical illustra-tions of his views in the matter. This has not suited the chief, and he has remonstrated, but the result has not been satisfactory.

Yesterday morning, when Sivinger was arrested, Mr. McPherson telephoned that he could not then appear, but would be respon-sible for the appearance of his man, whom he wanted released to deliver his vegetables wanted released to deliver his vegetables. This was satisfactory to the marshal, who told the man he could go. The chief was present and he proceeded to give vent to a roar against such proceedings. He vowed that if he couldn't put a stop to it in any other way he would get out an injunction. The marshal informed him that all prisoners brought to the police station were then in the custody of the marshal and he was alone responsible. of the marshal, and he was alone responsible for their safe keeping. The chief declared that the marshal was no more responsible than he was. The marshal couldn't see it that way and stated that he proposed to have the handling of the prisoners as long as he was under a $5,000 bond to do so.

The case of the horse thief arrested vesterday morning was then taken up. When the prisoner was brought in by the police he was immediately taken up stairs and locked up without being turned over to the city marshal. When the marshal found out what was going on he sent up his deputy, who brought the man down stairs and locked him up. He informed the chief that he did not consider the upstairs room secure, and wanted all prisoners where he knew they would be safe. Then the chief indulged in another roar, and said he put the prisoner up stairs because he wanted to put a detective in with him and find out what he knew. The marshal was willing to let the man out if the chief would put a man to watch him, but the latter was huffy and wouldn't do anything of the kind, so there the matter outed with higher and so there the matter ended until higher authority could pass on the case.

The reporter saw Judge McGee with reference to the matter, and the judge coincided with the marshal's views. Said he: "The marshal is the officer of the court, and the harshal is the officer of the court, and the law provides that he shall have charge of the jail and the prisoners. The chief of police has nothing to do with the prisoners after they are landed at the station. As far as Marshal Templeton is concerned, I am per-fectly satisfied with his work. He is very discrease and I am willing to rely on his wide. discreet, and I am willing to rely on his judg-ment as to when to release petty offenders on bond or upon their own recognizance."

As the matter now stands the chief's injunction will shortly be in order, but it is exceedingly doubtful whether it will be forthcoming, now that the superior court judge has passed upon the case in advance. Baby carriages at cost. Hays & Bell, 407

They were bound to espoil the trees, and Graves appealed to Mayor Macrae, who gave his opinion that the trees could not be interferred with, and gave orders to that effect. Arrangements were made at police headquarters by which due notice was to be given by telephone if the linemen persisted in their unlawful pruning, and the patrol wagon would be sent down to take in the refractory wire stretchers. Mr. Graves went home rejoicing, and as no call was sent in for the wagon it is presumed that the trees were not interfered with,

J. Q. A. WARD'S GREELEY. The Plaster Model Ready for the Casting in Bronze.

Mr. J. Q. A. Ward, the sculptor, has just completed the statue model of Horace Greeley, which is to be cast in bronze this summer and placed at the entrance of the Tribune counting-room, says the New York Sun. Several gentlemen who held very intimate relations with Mr. Greeley have seen the statue in Mr. Ward's studio and have expressed the highest satisfaction, "Mr. Greeley's face was a very difficult one to deal with," said Mr. Ward yesterday, "but I was greatly helped by having made a mask of it soon after he died. By this means I was enabled to reproduce the peculiar structure of his head that photographs would never have shown. great difficulty was in giving the fea-tures the expression of childlike sim-plicity, together with the strength of a philosopher, which was peculiar to him. After that expression had been caught in the clay the remainder of my task was comparatively easy.

"The statue," continued Mr. Ward, "will be in a sitting position, and from the top of the head to the ground the distance will be about fifteen feet. You see, the head will be much nearer to the eyes of the spectator than is the case in most statutes. I so designed it because it seemed desirable that the expression of the face should be appreciated by the people who stop to look. The whole statue is low, as the pedestal is 64 feet high. If the statue were standing the figure would be 11 feet tall. In the sitting posture it is 8 feet high.

"It may be objected," continued the sculptor, "that the statue will get soiled by newsboys climbing upon the iron fence that is to surround it, but I don't care about that, and I do not thing the committee or the subscribers care so ong as the statue is not disfigured. Mr. Greeley is represented sitting upon an uphoistered lounge chair, which has one arm higher than the other. The left arm of the statue rests on the higher arm of the lounge, the hand dropping gracefully toward the front. Mr. Greeey's habitual attitude when at his desk was with his head bent down to his desk or his newspaper. When a visitor claimed his attention he scarcely moved his body, but turned his head slightly to the visitor in a listening attitude. This attitude I have tried to reproduce, without giving too much of a stoop to the back and shoulders. the right hand is a newspaper that he has dropped upon his knee on the en-Desirable dwellings located in all parts of the city, for rent by E. H. Sheafe & Co., Broadway and Main st., up stairs. trance of the visitor. The attire is in the fashion of the time of the war. A cravat loosely and somewhat negligently tied protrudes from under his neck whiskers and falls upon his broadly plaited shirt bosom. The vest is cut low, and the whole suit is rough cloth. As to the treatment of the drapery I have been as unconventional and as unacademic as possible. Across the vest is shown a broad watch ribbon. Simplicity is the chief expression of the statue; if I may be the judge."

The pedestal will be of granite, six and a half feet in height and five feet square. There will be no carving or ornament on the pedestal, only this in raised letters will appear:

HORACE GREELEY, Founder of the New York Tribune, April 10, 1841.

Mr. Richard M. Hunt designed the pedestal. Mr. Ward has had the commission for the statue for seven years. It will cost, when completed and placed in position, about $18,000. The statue alone cost $15,000. It will be cast in Henry Bonnard's, No. 432 West Sixteenth street, in August or September, and will be set up as soon thereafter as possible with appropriate ceremonies. Minister Whitelaw Reid is chairman of the Greeley monument committee.

National Corsets. One and perhaps the chief reason of the difference in the shape of an English and an American waist on women of similar physique is in the shape of the corset worn, says the New York Sun. American woman wears a corset which extends high in under the arms, covering, and especially in fleshy women, rowding the bust up higher than is natural. Over this she usually wears a tight fitting waist of muslin or cambric, and the result is a gradual but smooth and continuous slope toward the bottom of the waist, which is like a cone inverted. The English woman wears a bit of a corset not much longer from the waist up than the pointed girdles which were stylish a few years ago and very much shorter than our riding corset. sult is that their bodices with short darts give a very low effect to the bust, a counded fulness of outline, and a sudden tightening in at the waist, which one often mistakes as being produced by tight lacing. No tightly fitted waist is worn beneath the dress, and the general effect possesses all the charm of a corsetless figure, with comparatively none of its disadvantages, and the beauty of their exquisitely fitted tailor dresses results largely from the fact that they are molded by skillful tailors on to a live woman's figure and not over a stiff, unyielding armor of bones and steel.

Yesterday-A Divorce in Three Hours-Ex-Governor Butler's Scheme Fails.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 22 .- [Special to THE BEE.]-At the afternoon session of the state board of transportation only one person responded to the invitation to formally present a complaint concerning freight rates to the board. That one was Mr. J. W. Rice of Jordan, and he testified that he had two boxes shipped the same distance and both weighing exactly the same. One box contained hardware and was shipped from Omaha to Ord. The other contained seeds shipped from Council Bluffs to Erickson. The freight on the first was 93 cents and that on the second 25 cents. In reply to a question from Auditor Benton, he stated that there had been a reduction in rates during the past two years as the box that cost him 25 cents this year cost 40 cents for shipment last year and the year before 67 cents.

Mr. I. M. Raymond, the wholerale grocer, arose and said the trouble was not with the rates, but discrimination. If a farmer at O'Neill must pay 44 cents for a carload of beans to Lincoln, while an Illinois farmer ships the same amount for 29 cents, he thought there must be some suspicion of discrimina-

Mr. Holdrege was on hand and arose to correct what he most emphatically declared was a misstatement by Attorney General Leese, that the stocks and bonds of the Burington amounted to $37,260 per mile. John Utt of the Lincoln freight bureau was called on and stated that the Lincoln shippers and jobbers were satisfied with the rates. He said he represented Lincoln interests only. He said the rates for manufactured goods were high enough to keep out the products of other places and to protect Lincoln He testified that estimates made for the con-struction and completion of the Lincoln & Des Moines road showed that it could be laid for $15,000 per mile, without the bridge over

M. L. Elsmore, of Hastings, who claimed to

The convention of members of the grange and other labor organizations called by O. E. Hall and ex-Governor Butler, called, as alleged, for their own personal benefit, failed to pan out as they had hoped for and both appear to have a contemptuous regard for the action taken by the delegates in refusing to be whipped or cajoled into joining the inde-pendent movement. The business portion of the convention was field with closed doors, the convention was field with closed doors, but people living in the vicinity report that there must have been a lively time of the noise made was any criterion. Hints have been obtained to the effect that the efforts of Butler and Hall to sway the convention failed. The opposition was headed by Mr. Cantlin of Dodge county and L. C. Root of Indianola, both of whom are staunch remulticans. The discussion was are staunch republicans. The discussion was very heated.

It was finally decided to let each man vote for whom he pleases.

Resolutions were passed denouncing corporate greed and the various trusts. The convention aped the anti-monopoly conven-tion of the night before by endorsing the Australian method of voting

THE DOCTORS DIFFERED. Mrs. Nellie Haskins in her suit against the city for $5,000 for the loss of her husband met with disappointment today. Two years met with disappointment today. Two years ago her husband drove after night into a ditch and was badly injured. In a few hours he died. Mrs. Haskins blamed the city and sued for damages. In the hearing of the case this morning three physicians swore positively that her nusband died from injuries received from the accident, while six other physicians swore with count positiveness that the deserved from the accident, while six other physicians swore with equal positiveness that the de-ceased had died from heart disease. As the greater portion of the witnesses were against Mrs. Haskins she lost the case. The lady is greatly depressed over the result.

WON'T PAY PIVE CENTS DAMAGES. Louis Peterson has filed a petition in the supreme court asking that tribunal to reverse the decree for 5 cents damages, against him awarded to James W. Tufts in the district court of Douglas county. The case is the re-sult of a repleving snit brought by Tufts against Peterson, who as a constable had seized possession of the soda water paraphernalia in Eaton's confectionery store on the southeast corner of Fifteenth and Farnam streets in Omaha, the outfit being valued at $2,500. In the district court Tufts was de-clared the rightful owner of the goods and was awarded 5 cents damages.

Lincoln promises to be a record breaker soon in the line of quick divorces. Shortly before noon Mrs. Wilson decided to apply for a divorce, and the petition was filed before dinner. She then went to lunch and returned at 2 o'clock. The case was called and the lady testified to the cruel treatment and neglect to which she had been subjected by her liege lord. One or two other witnesses corroborated her statements, and at 3 o'clock sharp the judge granted the decree, and Mrs. Wilson found herself a free woman. The lady says that the whole affair was carried through with such railroad speed that she can hardly believe her good fortune and is afraid that she may wake up and find that it is all a dream. A DIVORCE IN THREE BOURS. is all a dream.

given to the superintendent of public instructions, who in turn will make out the proper apportionment as soon as he receives the returns from the various counties showing the number of school children in each. These collections are less than those of either last June amounting to $117,629.98 and those of December aggregating $282,425.21. This is accounted for through the alleged extravagance of the last legislature, as the state treasurer had to make an extra call in April, 1899, on the county treasurers for money to pay up the extra expenses of the last legislature, and this made both the school fund as well as the general fund larger.

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific company asks the supreme court to reverse a judgment for $400, obtained against them by William H. Witty of Jefferson county, for a horse valued at $1,800 that was fatally in-jured, while being shipped from Henry, Ill, to Jansen, Neb. In addition to the alleged errors of procedure in the lower court the railway company claims that at the time of the shipment it was not receiving freight for shipments beyond points on its own line, in-cluding points on the Chicago, Kansas & Northern, except by special agreement; that in the contract for this shipment it was spec-ially agreed that the company's liability for damages should in no case exceed $100

Cheap Weddings by Law. The Bombay government has drawn ip rules for regulating the marriage exnses of the Kadva Kanbi caste in the listrict of Ahmedabad and Kaira, say the New York Morning Journal. Power to make these rules is given under the act for the prevention of female infanticide. Some of them are curious. The chentlo or present given at the betrothal by the bride's father to the bridegroom's father is not to exceed one rupee and seven suparis and betelnuts. The mariage chentlo payable to the bridegroom's father may be one rupee and shall not exceed 100 rupees. The value of the cocoanuts distributed at the marriage procession is not to exceed 10 rupees, and the same limit is fixed on the value of the mosalu, or present by the bride's maternal relative. The payment at the ceremony when the bridegroom touches with his finger his mother-in-law's dress must not go beyond

2 rupees. The number of dinner parties given by the bride's family is not to be more than five, and the number of guests at each not more than twenty-five. The marriage party going to the bride's village are not to spend more than 30 rupees, and when the bride groom is invited to a social evening at his father in law's house he is not to be paid more than 2 rupees nor to take with him more than five men.
