

BLANKETS.

$10 California Blankets.....reduced to $6.80
 $7.50 Colored Blankets.....reduced to $5.00
 $5 White Blankets.....reduced to $3.75
 $3 White Blankets.....reduced to $1.75
 $3 Sanitary Grey Blankets....reduced to $3.75

MORSE'S SALE.

The last week. We have so many items that it is hard to particularize. We call especial attention to our

HOSIERY DEPARTMENT

Next week. Hosiery boxes are so easily broken up that we will make great sacrifices rather than move them.

COLORED DEPARTMENT.

Dresses, Costumes, Jackets, Fall Ulsters, Suits, etc., all reduced to less than cost.

Jersey Waists. Blouse Waists.

Some Special Bargains at $3.75, worth $5; and all the lower grades at equally low prices.

LINENS.

Heavy Goods to Move and We Make Great Sacrifices.

100 dozen 5-8 Cream Napkins 85c; worth $1.50.
 Turkey Red Damask reduced from 65c to 50c.
 Glass Crash at 9c, reduced from 12c.
 Plush Table Covers reduced from $2 to $1.50.
 72-inch Satin Damask reduced $1.35 to $1.
 $5 Breakfast Napkins reduced down to $2.50.
 Finest Cambric Muslin, 84c; worth 12c.
 Sheetings, Muslins, Domestics, &c., at less than cost before moving.

HOSIERY.

Ladies' very finest Black Silk Hose, $2.50; worth $5.
 Ladies' 35c Black Cotton Hose, reduced to 25c.
 Ladies' Fast Black Hose, 15c; reduced from 25c.
 Ladies' Black Lisle Hose, 37 1/2c; worth 75c.
 Ladies' 65c Striped Hose reduced to 25c.
 Ladies' Colored Taffeta Gloves, 25c; reduced from 65c.

WASH GOODS.

Indigo Blue Calico, 3c; worth 6 1/2c.
 Lot of 15c Satines reduced to 6 1/2c.
 Best Domestic Plaid Gingham, 6 1/2c; worth 15c.
 Finest Outing Flannels reduced to 10c.

REMNANTS—Calico, Beiges, Cotton Flannels, Gingham, etc.

CARPETS.

We have all the stock that was intended for our new store. It was ordered delivered Sept. 1st. Moquettes, Body Brussels, Ingrains, Wiltons—the choicest patterns—cheap before moving.

CURTAINS, DRAPERIES.

350 pairs Lace Curtains, 84 inches wide, 8 1/2 yards long, regular price $3.25 a pair.
 Removal Price $2.50.

Portieres, $10.

75 pair extra quality Chenille Portieres, full length and width, fringe and border top and bottom, $10; regular price $15.

Dress Goods

54-inch Paris Suitings at $1.25; worth $1.50.
 39c Dress Goods reduced from 60c and 65c.
 50c Dress Goods reduced from 75c and 85c.
 68c Dress Goods reduced from $1 and $1.25.

SILKS AND VELVETS.

24-inch Surah Silks, worth $1, marked down to 69c.
 All the $1.25 Colored Silk Velvets down to 85c.
 Gauzes, Crepe de Chines, Colored Satins, Surahs, &c., reduced.

BLACK SURAHS—Special Value in Black Surah,

$1.38; reduced from $2.

Dress Goods

Combination Suits $10; regular $15 quality.
 Combination Suits $12.50; regular $18 quality.
 Combination Suits $15; regular $20 quality.
 Drap D'Alma, 50c—all newest colors; reduced from 75c.

MEN'S FURNISHINGS.

Some Undershirts, 39c; slightly soiled, worth 75c.
 The best Laundered Shirt in Omaha for $1.
 Black Silk Handkerchiefs reduced to 50c.
 Boys' All Wool Tricot Waists, 95c; worth $1.75.
 Men's new Neckwear. New Collars, 12 1/2c. New Cuffs, 25c. The goods must be sold before removal.

Morse Dry Goods Co.

NOTIONS, ETC.

Ladies' Linen Collars, 8c. Hand Bags, 75c. Ribbons, Laces, Handkerchiefs, Veilings, &c., all reduced for this sale.

Note Paper, Envelopes, &c.

Whittings Best Linen Paper, 15c a quire; envelopes to match, 15c packages. Nail Brushes, Hand Brushes, and all Toilet Articles reduced.

Morse Dry Goods Co.

GLOVES.

All our Kid and Fabric Gloves reduced. We have some of the very finest brands such as Courvoisier, Jouvin, &c., that we will sell cheap.

CORSETS.

39c, 75c and $1. Some waists, some Children's and Misses' Corsets very cheap.

MORSE DRY GOODS CO.

PUTTING ON THE WAR PAINT.

Local Politicians Bedecking Themselves for the November Contest.

MANY ARE WILLING TO BE SOUGHT.

The Offices to Be Filled and the Men Anxious to Fill Them—The Legislative and County Seats.

While a great deal of interest is centered in state politics just now, there is a quiet bustle among the locals for the various county and city officers to be elected this fall.

At the November election, in addition to the state ticket, there is to be elected three senators, a county attorney, two members of the board of county commissioners and eleven members of the legislature, three of whom are members of the senate.

For the senate W. F. Beehel and W. I. Kierstead are mentioned as republican candidates, though both disclaim any personal desire for the position. W. R. Vaughan modestly admits that he is the strongest democratic candidate for the position, and will not stand out against the great pressure that has been brought to bear upon him to induce him to sacrifice himself for his party's good. Each of these is also mentioned as a democratic candidate for legislative honors.

The legislative crop has not fully blossomed yet, but there are a number of lightening rods. Dan O'Keefe, Chris Sawyer, F. W. Fitch, I. S. Hascall and Dorsey Hoack are among the republicans who are willing to represent the county in the legislature.

George O'Brien would do a second term if properly approached and Dr. M. O. Ricketts is being urged for the position by the colored Republicans. The doctor is president of the state Afro-American league and a champion of the cause of his race. W. J. Mount heads the democratic list of aspirants for legislative honors and is probably fifty more in the faithful anxious to be with him—or without him.

County Attorney Mahoney is after a reelection and will have no opposition in securing the democratic nomination. A half dozen republican attorneys have been mentioned for the fight against him, but the probability list now includes only the names of W. S. Strawn, R. A. L. Dick, J. C. Wharton and J. H. Van Dusen. Wharton and Dick are pulling the greater number of political strings, but Strawn is receiving a substantial support that may capture the nomination. Van Dusen, who hails from South Omaha, has not shown any great strength in the preliminary skirmish, but his friends say he will be in it when the fight really opens.

In the third commissioner district William Turner is anxious to succeed himself, while J. C. Reeves, a young farmer of Elkhorn, is seeking the nomination on the democratic ticket. Mr. Reeves has lived all his life in the county, voted the democratic ticket from the time he was able, and served on the school board for about twelve years. He has been a delegate to nearly all the party conventions for years, retiring but recently, as he says, people might think he couldn't be approached with.

George Geston of Elk City is another candidate. He is popular with the farmers and prominent in village affairs.

George Timme of Jefferson, who served one term as commissioner, has had a rest for a couple of years and now wants to get back into the fight. He is making an energetic canvass for the democratic nomination.

L. M. Anderson is working quietly for a reelection for the county clerk. He has been laying pipes all summer, but is meeting with a great deal of opposition, having antagonized some of the leaders of his own party, who will seek to compass his defeat in the convention.

The republicans have been casting about for a contest of pits against Anderson, and surrounding the nomination is most frequently mentioned. There is a score to settle between these gentlemen, and if Mr. Anderson is elected, the contest is a decidedly warm fight is assured.

OPENING STREETS.

It Occasions a Great Deal of Talk at Yesterday's Meeting.

The members of the city council met at a board of equalization in City Clerk George's office yesterday. Councilman Morearty acted as chairman.

P. J. Quenaley had been assessed $2,000 for certain property owned by him. After some discussion the assessment was reduced to $1,000.

The question of opening South Twelfth street was taken up, and after being discussed was referred back to the committee.

In the matter of opening Bart street from Thirty-fourth to Thirty-sixth streets, through Hillside addition, the damages, $4,000, will be assessed against lots 1 to 4 in block 1, and lots 1 to 12 in block 12.

The report of the appraisers on the opening of Nebraska seventh street, south to Bristol, was adopted.

On the opening of Nineteenth street, from Center to Williams, the committee reported damages in the sum of $10,000.44. It was decided to assess A. J. Meyers $1 per front foot and the other property owners along the street a rate which would raise the assessment to $10,000. The limit of the assessment will extend as far as Castellar street.

The report of the appraisers on California street near of Lowe avenue was adopted and the board adjourned.

FROM THE CAPITAL CITY.

A New Railroad Files Articles with the Secretary of State

IT IS THE SIOUX CITY & NORTHWESTERN.

Contractor Miller's Ascending Partner Heard from—An Old Lincoln Thief Wanders Back and is Nabbed.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 6.—[Special to The Bee.]—The Sioux City & Northwestern railroad company filed articles of incorporation today with Secretary of State Cowley. The capital stock is fixed at present at $10,000,000. The incorporators avow their intention of building a railroad from Sioux City west and northward through Nebraska into South Dakota. The Nebraska counties through which it is to pass are Dakota, Dixon, Cedar, Knox, Holt and Kewa Paha. The incorporators are the following named men: A. S. Garretson, E. T. Hedger, S. L. Dows, C. T. Dore and John Duncombe.

CLINE HEARD FROM.

J. C. Cline, Mr. Miller's ascending partner, has been heard from. He has written a letter saying that he is in Council Bluffs stranded. After going to that city it is claimed that he was held up and robbed of $300 of his partner's money. But this is taken with a great deal of allowance. Cline intimates that he intends coming back to Lincoln and Miller says he will not cause his arrest provided he makes good the deficiency, but he declares he never could trust his partner, and his recent escape has not been much of a surprise to him.

WANTED TO STEAL AND NOT TO BUY.

Tom Mallon and Tom Filmore went into John Morrison's store at 11 North Eleventh street a couple of evenings ago ostensibly to purchase some buttons, but in reality to steal. While the proprietor was waiting on one of them the other fellow slipped one of a number of bolts of cloth under his coat and made his escape. Both crooks were captured later and today were fined $100 and costs each. In default of payment each went to the county jail to board it out.

HE WANDERED BACK AGAIN.

Harry Emerson, who stole a gold watch and chain, a handsome valise and $22 in money from Frankie Weatherly a year ago, wandered back to Lincoln two days ago and yesterday was captured by the police. He had grown a moustache meanwhile and thought that this would hide his identity, but was deceived in this belief. He was recognized by the Weatherly woman as the fellow who robbed her. He was arraigned, found guilty and held to the district court as a candidate for the penitentiary under $500 bonds. In default he went to jail.

A CHILD'S NARROW ESCAPE.

The two-year-old child of Mr. Heers, who lives on Washington between Tenth and Eleventh, had a narrow escape from death today. The mother of the child had placed some liquid fly poison in a saucer on a window in the parlor. The child happened to stray into the room and while the mother was looking for it later she discovered it there imbibing the poison, and as it was sweet it had drunk nearly all the liquid. The frightened mother promptly called a physician and after applying emetics and other remedies the child's life was saved.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

The Nebraska terminal railroad and elevator company of South Sioux City has filed articles of incorporation. The object of the organization is to furnish terminal railroad facilities. The capital stock is $500,000.

The Farmers and Merchants' bank is the name of a new money loaning and depository institution started at Gresham. The capital stock is $100,000. R. S. Hirsch and ten other gentlemen constitute the stockholders.

A Modern Woodmen Accident association has been started at York. A. O. Falcker is president, R. J. Cole as vice president, A. D. Hicks as secretary, N. M. Ferguson as treasurer, and N. W. Noble as general agent.

THE NEW PATROL WAGON.

The city of Lincoln finally has a patrol wagon of its own and not only the police but also the citizens are proud of the fact. The vehicle is the latest and the kind in this part of the country. Bob Malone, one of the oldest members of the fire department and a driver of long experience, is to handle the reins. John Simpson, the recent invictus, received the appointment of official dog catcher and will endeavor to equal Count Piskel of Omaha in amassing wealth by capturing calves.

WANT BIG DAMAGES.

The Misses Ella and Libby Meloy brought suit this afternoon for $10,000 damages each against the Eden Music company because a few nights since the girls were ejected from the place on the ground that they were not respectable characters.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Commencing tomorrow the church of the Holy Trinity will hereafter have a full choral service.

Claude Bennett, a small boy who acts as errand boy for the Lincoln News, was held up by highwaymen Thursday evening and robbed of $5, all of which was the earnings of the lad.

Dr. Birney cures hay fever. Bee bldg.

A JUDGE IN TROUBLE.

He Beats His Wife and Offends Judge Heasley.

G. Reuther, the ex-police judge of South Omaha, was before Judge Heasley for disturbing the peace by being drunk and fighting. He was arrested at the corner of Eleventh and Farnam streets, where he was fighting with his wife. The woman's clothes were badly torn before the pair was placed in the patrol wagon.

At the station the woman said that she had been running a lunch stand at the county fair and had cleared about $60. Reuther, she claimed, had come home intoxicated Thursday about midnight and demanded the money. She refused to let him have it, whereupon he knocked her down and beat her until she lost the money away from her, after which he left the house.

Friday noon he sent her word that he wanted her to meet him at a Farnam street restaurant at 2 o'clock.

She went there at the appointed time and was told by her husband that he was going to Chicago. She demanded her money, but he refused to give it up, when she said that she would not remain here to support the family if he was going away. She could support herself, but not all of her children and several of his by a corner marriage.

Reuther hurried to a neighboring ticket office and bought his ticket, and when he was interfered with by his wife the row ensued, which resulted in the arrest of both.

Mrs. Reuther was released and Judge Heasley sent an order to release Reuther as soon as he was sober. He had $25.25 when arrested and was required to deposit $15 of that amount for his appearance.

"Here" she appeared in court he asked for a continuance of the case until Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, which was granted. He then asked for his money, and the court gave him his $15 and he would return $5 for appearance money.

This did not suit Reuther, who began to criticize the court. "That was a little more than Judge Heasley would give me," he said.

"See here, Reuther," said he sharply, "I know my business. If you know it better than I do get in here and run it. You can't appreciate a favor, and you can't now leave the whole amount here on deposit."

Attorney Townsend, who appeared for Reuther, had in the meantime picked up the "tenner" and was walking out with it.

"Here" called the court, "come back here with that—come back here, come back here. That money stays right here, and we'll see whether or not this court knows its own business."

Townsend reluctantly returned the money, and with it surrendered a large percentage of his chances for a fee. Reuther slipped out of the court room and around a neighboring corner, where he could express his thoughts with perfect safety and without fear of interruption.

When the case was called in the afternoon the defendant's attorney was present and made a touching plea for client, who he claimed, was a much abused and hounded man. He said the ex-judge only wanted half a chance to get out of the city and go to Chicago, and he would leave many miles between himself and spouse. He said he was authorized to apologize for his client's behavior in the morning, and he hoped that the court would not further humiliate him.

Judge Heasley thoughtfully scratched his head for several minutes, and then discharged the defendant with the understanding that he would at once depart and bother his wife no more.

Dr. Birney cures hay fever. Bee bldg.

TORE UP THE MONEY.

Strange Behavior of a Woman at the Union Pacific Depot.

There must be something very unusual disturbing the mind of a person who will deliberately tear a roll of greenbacks to tatters and throw them away.

That is what a woman did yesterday while riding in the patrol wagon from the Union Pacific depot to the police station. She had been arrested at the depot by Officer Cook because she acted strangely. She appeared at the depot about 9 o'clock yesterday morning and purchased a ticket to Ogden. After sitting about the depot until almost time for the west bound train to pull out she went to the ticket agent and requested him to take back the ticket to Ogden and her one to San Francisco. The agent did so, but when the train left for the west the woman failed to get aboard, saying to the officer who assists passengers to get on the train that she would wait for the afternoon train.

About noon she went to the baggage room and talked with some trunk and checked off them. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she left Denver. She gave her name as Bridget Harrison and talked very freely with every one about the money. This convinced Officer Cook that the woman was not right mentally, and he began to question her. She displayed a large roll of bills and said her neighbor had given her the money before she