At the morning session of the undertakers convention nearly all of the delegates were in their seats, looking bright and fresh as datsies, after their recreation at the Coliseum

last night. The session was opened by Mr. McNulty with a tenor solo which was enthusiastically encored.

President Bringhurst prefaced his remarks ppon the opening by informing the convenon that he had been led to suppose by the action of the executive committee that he was to remain the president of the association, a position with which he had been identified for position with which he had been identified for the past three years, and took occasion to inform the delegates that he had firmly and finally decided that he could not devote his time to the duties of that position any further. He said he had taken this time to announce that he should firmly and positively decline to erve the association in that capacity. The exponent attendant upon the proper perform. Expense attendant upon the proper perform-ance of the duties of that office was dwelt upon and the president announced it as his opinion that the expenses of the president bon and that the expenses of the president should be paid by the association. It was decided on account of the amount of business before the convention, that it would be impossible to adjourn before Satur-day afternoon. This was warmly opposed by some of the delegates but was carried.

The committee on obituaries presented its report, containing suitable resolutions upon the death of members of the association.

A report of the committee on the anti-trust bill, which was adopted, was to the effect that the bill abrogated all contracts between the National Burial Case association and the Funeral Directors' association and the com-mittee endorsed the bill in all its features.

The committee on sanitary legislation rec-ommended that the state associations act in concert with other organizations in securing the passage of suitable laws for the enforce-

President on a point of order. The report of the committee on the anti-trust bill was read by request and showed that it had been already decided that all contracts should be abrogated whereupon the discus-tion was declared out of order. The report of the commissioner referring to this same subject was on motion, referred to the com-

The committee on trade papers endorsed the suggestions of the president regarding the necessity of the editors of the same elevating the standard of their publications and recommended that, on account of the action of the paper which had been made the official organ of the association proposing for the notices of a of the association counts of its proceedings, charge meetings

there were twenty-five associations repre-sented at the convention, covering thirty-five CONWAYKILLED AND MANGLED states, territories and provinces, compared with twenty three associations last year rep resulting thirty-one states and provinces. The committee on the revision of the con-stitution and by-laws presented its report, which was adopted. All reference in the constitution and by-laws to a commissioner was stricken out as well as the section of the by-laws relating to the compact between the international association and the national urial case association. J. Howell of filinois said the Burial Case association had boycotted anumber of the undertakers of his state, and he thought it was time to cut loose and let that organization work out its own salvation. The committee on resolutions reported th following, which was unanimously adopted: Resolved. That a vote of thanks be and is hereby extended by this convention to the of-ficers and executive committee of the Ne-braska. Funeral Directors' association: to Kev. A. W. Lamar and the numbers of the commit-tee on entertainment and their ladies for their very kind courtesies shown to the delegates and ladies attending this convention, and the spiendid entertainment furnished us; also to the resident undertakers of the city of Omaha for the kindness they have shown us, and to Governor Thayer for his kind words of wel-come; to the press of the convention; to T. That when we forom this beauti-ful city it be with a feeling of rearet that we cannot stay longer; that we will profit by having been together, and that when we return to our homes we shill go with the deter-sion to a higher and firmer plane than ever before. The committee on place of meeting reported following, which was unanimously adopted

The committee on place of meeting reported in favor of holding the next convention a Richmond, Va., the first Monday in October 1891. The report was unanimously adopted. Joseph Laube of Richmond made a short speech, thanking the convention for selecting his home town, and assured the members of an old Virginia welcome.

A number of bills were allowed, among them being one for $300 as salary for the se retary, and $300 for the president's salary. rected The following officers were lected : Presi-dent, Robert R. Bringhurst of Philadelphia; vice presidents, John B. McIntyre of St. Catherine's, Ontario, Mike O. Maul of Omaha, W. B. McAvoy of California; secretary, John H. Sharer of Ohio; treasurer Charles A. Miller of Ohio. The convention then adjourned until Satur day afternoon at 20 closs, at which time the president will announce the executive committee.

In the notice of the arrival of the delegate from the east there was no reference to the services of a gentleman who has contributed in no small degree to the comfort and convenience of the party in its trip. This gen-tleman was Mr. D. N. Day of Hazelton, Pa., the genial representative of the Hazelton manufacturing company, who had full charge of the arrangements of the party and dis-charged his daties in this line to the complete satisfaction of those most nearly con cerned.

Mike Conway, late president of the plumbers union of this city, was killed near Greeley, Col., on Monday last. The news, how ever, did not reach this city until Wednesday.

How he met his death, whether through the malice of enemies or his own carelessness, h not known. His remains were found on the track of the Union Pacific a few miles from Greeley and were horribly mangled, both nands and legs being severed from the trunk. The body was brought to Greeley, where the pockets were searched In the latter were found two traveling Journeymen's cards of the plumbers' union. One of these bore the name of M. J. Con-way, the other P. J. Moran. There were also several letters found on his person, and some of these had been written by his wife.

Word was sent to the plumbers' union at Denver, and H. D. McGhan, the president, through the cards identified the deceased and ordered the remains brought to that city. He then telegraphed Mr. Joseph Buggy, plumber working for John Rowe & Co stating that the remains were badly decomposed and that the association would bury them at Denver unless otherwise di-

Afternoon Session.

The members were slow in assembling at the afternoon session and it was 2:30 o'clock when President Bringhurst called the convention to order.

A delegate from Virginia arose and said that he had a resolution to offer. It was to the effect that Richmond, Va., beurged as the place for holding the next convention.

The resolution was received and referred. B. Frank Kirk of Germantown, Pa., was Introduced as the speaker for the afternoon. He said he was no orator and advised his hearers to take easy positions, lean back and go to sleep.

The remark was received with loud applause and he then proceeded with his address. He thought the profession would never reach a high standing until a code of thics had been adopted and lived up to in every particular. "Law," said he, "is a commodity that yon can buy and sell as you can merchandise in the markets of the world. A code of eth-les seeks to outline a law unto yourselves, one to be studied so that a man may shed a instre upon the calling he has chosen." The speaker was of the opinion that under-takers should lead pure lives the same as other people and should occasionally accom-pany their wives to the church fairs, "for," pany their wives to the church fairs, "for," said he, "there you will find people raffing off 10-cent articles for 81 each. Don't take offense at this for this may not apply to any member present." He said a man who is in the business for the money, and the morey only should be got rid of as soon as possible, for such a man will always be a cancer and a thorn in the sale of the association and will always be a drawback to the objects to be accomplished. Undertakers can gain more by setting a good example than by tellmore by setting a good example than by tell-ing what others should do. He thought the dignity of the calling had not been considered as fully as it should have been by the men who are in the business. The eyes of the people and the public press are upon the undertakers and this should in-stil them to be true and faithful to a code of still them to be true and faithfui to a code of thies. It is not so much what is accom-plished in the start, but what is wanted, is the confidence of the people. The speaker thought every man in the business should display the sign "undertaker," and not at-tempt to make a show by declaring himself to be a funeral director, "for," said he, "we want to be plain men like our fathers were." At the conclusion of Mr. Kirk's address the pplause was deafening. When it subsided a vote of thanks was extended to him and also to Mr. McIntyre for their addresses. The secretary reported that this year

A Tiger Swallows a Red-Hot Bolt. A curious tale of the death of a tiger comes from the Sonthal Pergunanaha A man was seated on a tree at night watching his fields, when he noticed a tiger prowling and snifting the air and gradually approaching his perch, until it actually came under the machan, which it tried to pull down. The Sonthatee, bold by nature, sat fearlessly looking on, considering all the while as to what he should do. Quick as thought he took a red-hot iron, and as the hungry man eater with open mouth leaped to catch his hanging leg, he dropped the bolt into his mout and the tiger at once swallowed it, with what result it is needless to say, excep that the beast was found not far off the next morning "stark and stiff." Theonly question is: "Where did the red-hot iron come from?" No doubt from the next village, which is about three miles off.

Women Who Kill Flowers.

It is a peculiar fact that some women kill flowers within twenty minutes after they are adjusted to the corsage, says the Chicago Herald. Others will wear them for hours and they will look as fresh as when they were first pinned on A florist said: "Women wear flowers sometimes because they are vain, not because they love them. Flowers are alive and it kills them to lay near the heart that has no love for them. They droop and mourn themselves to death be cause they know there is nothing in common between them and the wearer. They are like little children-they love those who love them, and their best, brightest beauty is given to the woman who pins the bouquet of through her love for the flowers." A physician said: Certainly some women can kill flowers within a very few minutes. The New York Press says that the fol-lowing somewhat romantic story of one of the most popular young duchesses in England is perfectly true, and told by a friend: Before she married-and, in-deed, before she even knew the dukeshe had her fortune told by a gypsy at the races. The woman, with the smooth fattery of her tribe, promised marriage -and marriage with a duke-three years of unalloyed bliss, and then a year of misery. Curiously, in this case, part of the gypsy's words have come true. The duke appeared, saw and conquered, marriage followed, and two very happy years. So far good. But the first part of the prophecy having come as told, the young duchess believes the whole must be realized, and as the time of woe draws night the former that the first part draws nigh the fear preys upon hermind to such an extent she cannot shake off the dread, and has become nervously in-
