THE PYTHIAN GRAND LODGE.

The Annual Session to Be Held This Week.

DEDICATION OF A MASONIC TEMPLE.

Geneva Lodge in Elegant New Quarters—The Modern Woodmen Trouble—Grand Lodge of Oddfellows This Week.

The twenty-third annual session of the grand lodge of Nebraska, Knights of Pythias, will be held in this city commencing Tuesday next at 10 a. m. The sessions will be held in the large hall in the Freemasons' building, corner of Sixteenth street and Capital avenue.

The representatives of the Omaha lodges to the grand lodge have been appointed a committee to provide suitable entertainment for that body and this committee has appointed an executive committee which has charge of all details of the entertainment, providing lodges, etc. This committee consists of George W. Sabine of Myrtle lodge No. 3, Harry Merriam of Oriole No. 76, R. H. Lucas of Triangle No. 57, A. E. Pike of Hathorne No. 126, and M. H. Harner of Nebraska No. 1.

The session of the grand lodge will probably continue three days. The grand lodge will be asked to adjourn Wednesday night and will be escorted to Goodrich hall where the work of the three ranks will be exemplified by the team of Virginia lodges. This will save the time usually consumed in grand lodge in exemplifying the work, and will give the delegates an opportunity of witnessing the work in a fine hall with all the necessary accessories by a good team.

Numerous candidates have materialized for the various offices. Up to date there are seven or eight candidates for the office of grand chancellor, and as many more for that of grand keeper of records and seal. Lincoln alone has five candidates for the office of grand secretary, and as usual, it will be remembered that the delegation from that village resorted to the most approved methods of the ward workers to carry their prepared slate.

H. M. Bushnell, the present keeper of records and seal, has announced that he will be a candidate for re-election. This office is fully as important as that of grand chancellor, and the folly of electing a man to that position who has had no experience in the duties of that or a similar office was fully shown by the experience of the past year. There is a strong sentiment among the lodges out in the state to replace the tried and competent officer who ably demonstrated during the twenty years which he held that position his complete fitness for the office. E. E. French, the present supreme representative, presided over the records of this grand jurisdiction for over twenty years and established an excellent reputation as a faithful and efficient officer. He is not a candidate for the office, but he should be prevailed upon to allow the use of his name in that connection.

The management of the Coliseum invited the Knights of Pythias of Nebraska and Iowa to attend the exposition tomorrow night. Responses have been received from a number of towns in the state and delegations are expected from Fremont, Hebron, Ashland, Council Bluffs and Falls City. Colonel Downs of the First regiment will come up from Lincoln with a large delegation of his regiment. Lieutenant Colonel Brown of the Second regiment has issued an order calling out the regiment on that night. They will rendezvous at Pythian hall in the Paxton block and go in a body to the Coliseum.

The grand lodge meets at Beatrice on the 15th inst. and will continue in session about three days.

The dedication of the new temple of the Rebekah will be held at Beatrice on the evening of the 14th inst.

A dispatch was received from Chicago on Wednesday last which reads as follows: "Dr. P. L. McKimble, head physician of the Modern Woodmen of America, yesterday said that the office of J. C. Root at Elgin, Ill., was vacated Saturday last. Mr. Root is head of the order. Dr. McKimble said that H. M. Kennedy, late head clerk, packed up all the stuff and left for Omaha. This, however, does not affect the books of the order, which are in the office at Elgin, Ill., and which were granted July 27 by Judge Tuttle. A prominent member of the Woodmen in this city, and one who is in a position to know the exact state of affairs, states that the whole statement is a downright lie."

"The P. L. McKimble, who is given as authority for the statement, was expelled from his office of head physician for gross fraud and malfeasance and has been doing everything in his power to injure the order since that time. He has been the author of the scurrilous dispatch sent out to the press during the past few months defaming Root and the whole order. He is not in a position to know anything about the affairs of the order except from hearsay, and is not to be believed."

J. R. Carothers, deputy head consul of the order for Iowa, was in the city last Thursday and stated that he had received a letter from clerk H. W. Kennedy in reply to a request for supplies, in which he stated that he was in Lyons, Ia., where he had gone on business, but would return to Fulton, Ill., in a few days and send the supplies as soon as he reached the office. The supplied committee first of the week, showing that Mr. Kennedy had been at his office in Fulton attending to business, and that the whole statement is a downright lie."

The fulminations of McKimble receive no credence in this section as all members of the order are well aware of the animosity of the attacks, and which no importance is attached to such assertions concerning Head Consul Root.

Omaha camp No. 120 gave its first entertainment of the season at its hall in the Barker block on Wednesday evening. The hall was filled and an entertaining programme was rendered by local talent. This was followed by refreshments and dancing.

Notes.

The Missouri grand lodge of Knights of Pythias will meet in St. Louis the 12th inst. The grand lodge of A. F. & A. M. of Missouri will meet in St. Louis, Mo., on October 13.

Abraham temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, of Leaveworth, held a session on the 2nd inst., at which a large class were received into the temple.

HE MET HIS FATE AT LAST.

THE ASSASSINATION OF HENDERSON.

Marked by the Bad Men of Sweetwater County and Killed to Avenge the Lynching of Cattle Raisers.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 11.—(Special to THE BEE.)—The assassination of George B. Henderson, manager of the "71" cattle outfit on the Sweetwater last Wednesday created a big sensation all over this state and again brings into notoriety the Sweetwater country, the home and hobnob of the rustling element in Wyoming. The bitter animosity has for several years existed between the large and small cattle outfits. Rustling was practiced to a degree hitherto unknown in this section of the country. Men who came to the country with nothing started out with a braiding-iron and their gall, and in the course of a few brief years accumulated hundreds of head of cattle. The method by which they were secured was an open secret, but all those engaged in the business were banded together for self-protection.

The cowboys of the big outfits, who sympathized with the rustlers, or feared to thwart them. Case after case was taken into the courts, only to be thrown out by the grand jury or verdicts of "not guilty" returned by the petit jury. In some of these cases the most palpable failure of justice was recorded.

The more difficult it became to convict those who stole cattle, the bolder the rustlers grew. Those who were not engaged in the business were intimidated, and those who did their duty for the big corporations were marked men. Under these circumstances it is only natural that assassinations were not far off.

In this emergency Henderson was sought out and offered the peace. Henderson came here in 1887, when the cattle business was in its glory. He was well supplied with money and bought a herd of cattle, most of which he lost in the subsequent hard winter and through the depression in price. He was accompanied here by his wife and son. There was always something mysterious about Henderson. Nobody knew where he had come from or anything about his antecedents. To a certain extent he was a convict man, but never confidential about his history prior to his arrival in Wyoming. Among his casual acquaintances Henderson was not very popular, but with those who finally began to know him pretty well he was highly esteemed. His address was very gentlemanly and back of a few paces of a man who confided him in horseback. The man had a bad drawn on him.

Henderson said: "You d-d whelp, give me a chance to get my gun and I'll fight it out with you." The man never opened his lips, but there was an ominous gleam from the rifle. Henderson broke and ran for the cabin, out the shot fortunately missed him. In a moment he returned with his rifle, but the intended assassin was scampering away at breakneck speed over the mountain prairie.

Shortly afterward, on a dark night, as he was riding in a buckboard toward the ranch, he was first upon from ambush, but the shot again missed him. The horses became unmanageable and ran away. Fortunately they kept the road and ran for a mile to a ranch house. As he reached the corral one of the horses dropped dead. He had been shot in the flank.

Following this came the hanging of Jim Averill and Cattle Kate. This was commonly regarded as a retaliation upon the rustlers by the stockmen. Both Averill and Cattle Kate were notorious characters and were undoubtedly engaged in rustling cattle, although their lynching sent a thrill of horror through the whole state. The supposed lynchers were arrested, but no indictments were ever found against them. At the time of the lynching Henderson was in Cheyenne. It was then commonly understood that Henderson was one of the three men marked out for assassination.

Several weeks after this incident he returned to his ranch. While on route there he was again shot at from ambush. The shot lodged in the pommel of his saddle, and Henderson again escaped unhurt.

Sleep is, under right conditions, a wonderful tonic to the human system. Few women realize the value and yet it is a sickness that Lucrecia and all the great singers and actresses and famous beauties, who, like Mrs. Hemminger, were wondrously beautiful, were when ordinary women, returned from the festive scenes of life, have owed their well preserved beauty to sleep. A beautiful woman who at first shows the brilliancy of youth in her eyes and skin and the animation of youth in her form says that she has made it a rule all her life to retire, whenever possible, at 10 o'clock.
