

CONTINUE FOR ANOTHER WEEK

In Order to Benefit Hundreds of Railroad Employees, the "Quarter of a Million Compulsory Sale Will Continue One Week Longer.

The People's Mammoth Overstocking House, during the past week, was packed from early till late by one solid mass of people. The announcement that they were in trouble, due to heavy overstocking, was the means of bringing thousands from far and near, to this now well renowned establishment. What seemed a crisis ten days ago, is to-day a boom for this popular firm, as every dollar's worth of goods packed in their store and warehouses is worth to-day, according to market value, 20 per cent more than a few weeks ago, this being entirely due to the passage of the McKinley bill. Prices are rapidly advancing. Every furniture, carpet and stove dealer in Omaha has already been notified by manufacturers of heavy advances, and they have consequently advanced the selling price. Our prices for the coming week will be the same as last, in order to allow hundreds of railroad employees and others who were delayed in receiving their pay this month to benefit by our "Quarter of a Million Compulsory Sale." All prices will be guaranteed the same as advertised until Saturday, Oct 18th, but no longer. Those contemplating furnishing, will do well to place their orders the coming week, as the general impression in trade circles is, that prices will continue to advance.

THESE PRICES GOOD THIS WEEK, BUT NO LONGER.

THE SPORTSMEN'S OWN MONTH

October and Its Various Attractions to the Outdoor Enthusiasts.

WESTERN ASSOCIATION MATTERS.

McCormick Talks Nonsense and So Does Dave Rowe--How the Teams Finished--Wheel Notes--Other Sports.

October is the sportsman's month and in Nebraska and the west the season has opened most auspiciously. The early frost and the subsequent heavy, cold rains have stripped the trees of the burden of their foliage, and shooting conditions are in their prime. Quail are reported in abundance and the sportsmen early in the field are promised a rich harvest. The mild winter last year was favorable to the prolific breeding of these birds, and the stubble fields in the shooting districts swarm with them. Prairie chickens are reported plentiful on the Platte, while Honey creeper swarms with ducks. A few more cold nights and the geese will arrive on their southern voyage, and then the enthusiastic lovers of field sports may find a practically unlimited supply of game in the Nebraska and Iowa fields.

Dave Rowe Talks.
Dave Rowe, the exalted past president, manager, captain and first baseman of the Denver team, was in the city yesterday, en route home from a homelike visit with eastern brotherhood magnates. Rowe has sold his interest in the Denver team and has, he says, not yet decided as to what he will do next season, except that he will be as big as life in a baseball project somewhere.

He is more thoroughly convinced than ever, he says, that the brotherhood will be the notchers in next season's fight. "The National league," said Dave, "will be a small affair next year. Of course it won't die, because its time has not come yet, but it will have to take second place. With Louisville, Columbus, Indianapolis and like towns it would be as strong as the Western association is today while the brotherhood, already on top, will get stronger. Ward and Byrne will undoubtedly consolidate the Brooklyn teams, and the brotherhood ranks will be strengthened in every respect.

"As to the Western association," continued Rowe, "of course I can't make any authoritative statement. The association will probably remain about as it is, with Lincoln in Des Moines place. Salaries must come down, however, and better umpires must be secured. With these changes the association would be all right. Milwaukee's talk about jumping the association is a big bluff. If the present man goes elsewhere, there are other Brewers anxious to put a team in this association."

A Change at Minneapolis.
The baseball magnates at Minneapolis have finally deposed Sam Morton, late manager and heavy owner of the Minneapolis club. By the new deal Hy. L. Hatch and A. H. Griffin become absolute owners of the Minneapolis franchise as well as the Nicollet avenue sports house of Morton & Co. Mr. Griffin was formerly chief clerk in the store of which he has become a part owner, and, although not used to the baseball business, is well versed in general athletics. The consideration of the deal is not made public, but it is known to be a large one.

Messrs. Morton and Glade have not decided upon any new venue, but may purchase the entire stock of the St. Paul franchise. Several business men in that city have made them an offer, which is under consideration, and may be closed with the St. Paul street railway company will put in electrical cable service to West Side park. In either event Sam Morton's eye is taking on a glaze of the down river team will mean a first-class club for that town.

How They Finished.

The association season will not close until Tuesday, October 14, but the present position will not be materially changed.

Uncle Dick Depressed.
Even Uncle Dick McCormick, president of the Western association, has a slight touch of the blues. He expressed his opinion that the rockers had the hip hold just at present, and that the outlook for the national league was a little gloomy. He said that matters would undoubtedly be compromised and that the league and brotherhood would either consolidate or else divide territory. There must be no more baseball wars, he says, as neither the Players' league nor the National league is in a position to go through another season's fight. The gloomy weather of the past few days and unrealized dreams of profits in the baseball business have had a sadly depressing effect upon the president of the Western association.

Western Association Matters.
President McCormick of the Western association says he probably knows less about baseball just now than any man on earth and his Brotherhood talk, quoted elsewhere, is convincing proof that his statement is correct.

He says that the Omahas made $9,000 in 1890, principally by the sale of its players, and that in the past season they lost a season's earnings and another $1,000. Omaha will have a team in the field next year, he says, but some of the players have been signed yet except Willis and that the plans are very indefinite. The annual meeting of the association will be held in this city October 22 and no plans for next season will be made until after that meeting. It is pretty well understood, however, that radical changes will be made in the local team for next year. None of the players have been sold and with the present organized condition of the game players will not be in great demand for some months yet.

It has been practically settled, however, that Manager Leonard will not be with Omaha next year, but that one of the players will manage the team. The association will be made up practically as it was at the close of the season, although Milwaukee has the American association in her honor, but will probably get rid of it. In a recent interview Manager Cushman said: "If we thought we would get the shabby treatment next year that we have had this would leave it in a holy minute. The clubs have been doing just as they pleased and have transferred games right and left without consulting the other teams. It's a very dangerous practice, and Milwaukee has not been guilty of it except with the St. Pauls, when Watkins asked it because his team was not drawing fans at home. The association needs a general overhauling, and if I didn't think it would get that the November meeting Milwaukee would probably be in some other organization. But in all probability we will stick, and the same team, with fair umpiring and no transferring of games, is good enough to win the pennant next year."

Sam Macey's Mistake.
In a retrospective glance at the Western association season one mistake of Sam Merton should stand out as a hazy nightmare, for it undoubtedly lost their club the flag, says the Kansas City Times. When the Minneapolis club played its first series here admirers of the game saw that it was the club that would most likely kill Kansas City's pennant aspirations; it was the one to be most feared. When Merton's trouble with Myers, Foster, Hengle and Hudson came and that quartette of star players left the team cranks in this town, breathed a sigh of relief. Had they been retained it is exceedingly doubtful if the Blues with all their wonderful work since then would have been first at the end of the season. It was a bad mistake for Merton, from a Minneapolis standpoint, for the loss of these players greatly weakened the team, and it assisted materially in boosting the Blues into their present position.

"Silver" Smith's Offer.
The Brotherhood magnates have been watching the work of Western association players all season, says the Kansas City Times. They have seen that the teams are about to disband for the year they have been sending out missionaries to lasso the stars that will add strength to their organization. Elmer Smith's phenomenal success with the Blues had not escaped their notice, and he was one of the Western association luminaries that they most desired. When the team was in Milwaukee, Otto Ficht, once a representative of Parson Davis, the noted promoter of fistie contests, but who has lately been allied with the Players' league in a business capacity, went there to sign Elmer for the Brotherhood, and after hobnobbing around with the popular player went back to Chicago empty handed. Yesterday the same Brotherhood missionary appeared in Kansas City, and after spending the day with "Smitty" in a vain endeavor to win him over, returned to Chicago. Yesterday Manager Manning thought it time to shut out all chance of losing Smith and, after a short talk the latter grasped a pen in his good left hand and the deal was done. The Brotherhood was hot after the king, and it is presumed that he was wanted for Comisky's club, which needs to have some of its stars replaced by players who value victories higher than reputations.

It is stated yesterday that the Brotherhood folks made an offer of $3,500 a season, but he preferred to remain with the Kansas City club, where everything will be congenial to him, although the contract signed yesterday does not call for so large a sum by a mere hundred dollars. Elmer is to be contented with his display of sound sense in remaining with the Blues. Here he is assured of good treatment by the management, and of remaining a popular favorite, while with the Brotherhood he would be taking some chance of getting his salary besides.

Elmer Smith is not the only player in the ranks of the Blues that will make an excellent brace up old man. It would seem that the Brotherhood must be afraid to meet the Shamrocks on the latter's grounds, as they have failed to make a game as yet. Williams will hit hard by Fremont in the last game of the season, as he has very few Carrigan having seven passed balls, Altham Jack.

The Gate City club will be made of the following players: Brown, Parsons, Smith, Watt, Dorel, Minnick, Kuhn, Sawyer and Gibson. Address all challenges to H. K. Smith, Coe hotel.

Harley, who covered center field for the City Stars this year, will make an excellent pitcher if he takes lots of practice. He has all the curves and the best assortment of any amateur in the city.

The Shamrocks failed to receive their $25 game of last Sunday. It seems that a dispute arose in the ninth inning over a decision made by the umpire, the Shamrocks refusing to finish the game, which was awarded to Blair's team.

Miscellaneous Sports.
Cincinnati has joined the Brotherhood. Buffalo is behind regulars and will have to go. George Smith has signed with the Brooklyn leaguers. Sam Wise has the best batting average among the Blues.

One of the current rumors is that Gleason of the Phillies has been raised for the Cincinnati of '91.

John Kastman, St. Louis sprinter, is out with a challenge for America's championship and a $500 stake. One hundred yards is the limit.
